ROOSEVELT ASKS 60 CENT DOLLAR

Stocks Advance One To Five Points; Market Active

COTTON AND WHEAT ALSO GO FORWARD

TICKERS LAG BEHIND

Steel and Automobiles Are in Demand; Gold Issues in Demand During Day

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Stocks shot ahead 1 to 5 points today in the heaviest trading in six months. Bonds joined the rise in large volume. Commodities soared under lead of wheat which rose 3 5-8 to 4 1-8 cents a bushel and cotton up more than $2 a bale. The dollar sank in terms of foreign exchange.

The spark that set off the roaring markets was a boost in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's gold price from $34.06 to $34.45, the latter effective tomorrow.

The $34.45 figure makes the dollar worth exactly 60 cents which is the upper limit at which stabilization might take place under President Roosevelt's plan given to congress today.

Buying orders came in from all parts of the United States. Tickers were unable to keep pace with the huge buying volume. Sales crossed 2,600,000 shares before 2 p. m. The Dow-Jones industrial average rose about 4 per cent above Saturday's close to a new high since September 19, while the rail average rose nearly 5 per cent and the utility average more than 7 per cent.

Steel and automobile shares vied for leadership. General Motors in gigantic turnover mounted to a new high since 1931, above 37. A block of 10,000 shares sold at the latter price. U. S. Steel was next in activity at a new high on the movement, and then came Chrysler, the recent leader.

Gold mining shares were in urgent demand with Homestake soaring 26 points. Rails made consistent gains, while utilities made the best percentage showing of any group on the board. Farm equipments mounted sharply along with grains. Du Pont soared above 98 for the first time since 1931. Nash made a new top since 1931 in its division. Libby-Owens-Ford was at its best price since 1929.

Heavy turnover was noted in Bethlehem Steel, United Corporation, Socony-Vacuum, Consolidated Gas, Commonwealth and Southern, Alaska Juneau, Commercial Solvents, New York Central, and Radio Corporation. A block of the latter amounting to 8,000 shares came out at 7 1-2 up 1-2 point.

Allied Chemical jumped nearly 7 points; American Telephone more than 5, and Atchison 4, while gains of 2 to 3 points were made by American Can, Baltimore & Ohio, U. S. Smelting, Montgomery Ward, Johns Manville, and American Smelting.

A notable exception to the rise was the alcohol group where two of the issues were depressed sharply on a government suit to collect taxes alleged to have been evaded during the prohibition era.

In the commodity markets, silver futures joined the rise despite the fact the President made no appeal for silver at this time. All other commodities advanced, including rubber, silk, hides and copper.

The drop in the dollar was sharp. The pound sterling reached $5.15-1-4 up 81-4 cents, while the French franc touched 6.39 cents up 24 3-4 points.

Forces Sent to Shore to Protect American Citizens and Property

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—American, Japanese and British forces have been landed near Foochow, scene of recent fighting between Chinese rebels and nationalists, the navy department was advised today by Admiral Frank B. Upham, commander of the United States Asiatic squadron.

The dispatches said requests for the landing parties to protect foreign citizens and property were made by the foreign consuls in view of the unsettled conditions following the rout of the rebels.

The American landing party consisted of the marine guard of the crusier Tulsa, in charge of Commander F. G. Reinicke.

Admiral Upham said the marines would be used to guard the U. S. consulate until responsible Chinese government forces could take over the situation. He said the government troops had been promised shortly.

Victorious nationalist military forces scattered the fleeing Fukien rebel soldiers with an aerial bombardment today and prepared to encircle the famed 19th route army, backbone of the revolt.

The route army, which achieved world fame in its heroic defense of Shanghai against the Japanese, was reported trapped at Nantal following the occupation of Foo-

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Medical fakers have turned to radio to promote their "rackets because it offers an opportunity for these charlatans to approach a group formerly unreached by printed advertising," Dr. Charles Pinkham, secretary of the state board of medical examiners, charged in the annual report of the board.

"Especially does this apply to all those persons who find reading difficult and laborious, either because of limited literacy or dificient eyesight," Dr. Pinkham explained.

PRESIDENT OF CUBA RESIGNS UPON REQUEST

Tenders Resignation Today to Revolutionary Committee at Havana

BULLETIN

HAVANA, Cuba., Jan. 15.—(US)—Carlos Hevia, youthful secretary of agriculture and Annapolis graduate of 1920, today was designated provisional president by the Revolutionary Junt, the newspaper El Pais announced.

By LAWRENCE S. HAAS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—(UP)—President Ramon Grau San Martin today submitted his resignation to a revolutionary committee composed of his own former supporters who had invited him to step out.

Members of the revolutionary committee met throughout the night to select his successor. There was some threat of trouble, as radical and conservative leaders seemed to disagree on future policy.

The committee, after many hours of vain argument over Grau's successor, adjourned until 10 a. m. without reaching a decision.

Two main candidates for the vacated presidency were considered by the revolutionary committee—Col. Carlos Mendieta, Nationalist leader and perhaps the country's most popular politician, and young Secretary of Agriculture Carlos Hevia, graduate of Annapolis Naval Academy in the class of 1920.

Grau's submission of his resignation came after an exciting day during which the government seized control of the American-owned Cuban Electric company because it failed to reach agreement with its employes on a new wage scale.

The question of his real name and origin remained unanswered. Lamar was found dead Saturday in his hotel room.

SPRAGUE TAKES EXCEPTION TO REVALUATION

Former Advisor to Treasury Department Sees Trouble Ahead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, monetary expert, criticized President Roosevelt's revaluation plan before the house coinage, weights and measures commitee today.

Sprague, former monetary advisor to the treasury department, was called before the committee to testify as to the inadvisability of reducing the gold content of the dollar.

He based his criticism of the president's plan on these points:

The administration has no plan for tapering off emergency expenditures.

Revaluation may prove an even more disturbing influence.

Such action may bring retaliatory moves from foreign nations.

Sprague contended that the attempt to restart the economic machine by spending billions of dollars for public works would not selve the problem.

"I fear," he said, "that when we have expended $6,000,000,000 we will find the emergency is still with us and when we stop the expenditures in 1935 or 1936 we will find ourselves in the same position as we were when the armistice was signed in 1918."

Sprague said, however, that despite whatever ultimate effect this will have the public works program has been beneficial in that it has distributed a large sum of money throughout the country and has alleviated distress among the unemployed.

He recommended a scaling down of debts as a partial solution of the economic problem.

"I believe," he said, "that it would be wise on the part of creditors and extremely helpful to the country at large if creditors would accept for the time being a lower interest payment and were prepared to reduce principals without forcing debtors into bankruptcy courts."

Sprague was the first of a series of leading monetary experts who will appear before the committee to offer testimony on money problems.

Seven Inmates at Pacific Colony at Spadra Are at Large Today

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Seven girl inmates of the Pacific College for Narcotic Treatment at Spadra were free today, after having overpowered a night nurse to escape the institution last night. Earlier, two other girls had walked out of the building.

Ganging the nurse, the seven girls took her keys, opened the doors and fled. Though the alarm was spread immediately and officers patrolled the highways for several hours, no trace of the girls had been found today.

Besides four girls from Los Angeles, the seven included Nathelia Martin, 17, Inglewood, Eulalia Vasquez, 24 of Azusa, and Ethel Harrington, 18, Santa Ana. The two who walked out earlier were Marie Aldama, 15, of Pico Park, and Connie Lee Fry, 14 of Huntington Beach.

L. A. FRUIT PACKING HOUSES GUARDED BY DEPUTIES WHEN STRIKE THREATS ARE HEARD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—With strikes impending in at least two large citrus sections, and a posible attempt on the life of a fruit exchange official disclosed by authorities, the board of supervisors today ordered deputy sheriffs to guard all fruit-packing houses.

Officers were instructed to hold themselves in readiness for emergency calls from growers.

Ingeniously wired to the motor, a bomb sheriff'a officers declared contained a latently deadly quantity of explosive was found in the automobile belonging to H. J. Ramsey, buyer for the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. Ramsey said he believed the bomb had been planted while his car remained overnight in a San Bernardino garage.

Built like a firecracker, the bomb was attached to the sparkplugs by fine copper wires embedded in the powder. It appeared to have been set to explode when the motor was started, and bomb experts of the sheriff's office were at a loss to account immediately for its failure.

Ramsey, who lives at Pasadena, told Altadena deputies he left his car in a San Bernardino garage Friday night. Returning home Saturday, he said he noticed that the motor was not functioning well, but did not stop to investigate. Yesterday, he lifted the hood and discovered the bomb.

Preliminary examination of the bomb—four inches long and half an inch in diameter—convinced officers that it contained a lethal amount of explosive.

Ramsey declined to discuss the affair, but was inclined to deprecate the danger, declaring that he believed the amount of powder was only sufficient to startle him.

He said he had experienced no trouble with agitators either here or in San Bernardino.

The walkout was called for later today in San Bernardino.

Meanwhile, quiet prevailed on the milk front in Los Angeles. Employers continued in the belief that the backbone of the strike had been broken, while strikers said 53 producers had signed agreements over the week end recognizing the Dairy Workers' Union. Picketing was light, with no disorder.

The spreading strike among agricultural workers, however, "is a great deal more serious than the milk strike," Supervisor Hugh Thatcher warned the board.

"The city of Los Angeles and nearby cities are dependent upon the agricultural districts for daily supplies of foodstuffs. Most of our farmers, because of the reverses of the past few seasons, are not financially able to protect themselves with private guards, as the dairy proprietors did.

"The area affected is large, and the citrus strike would be much harder to handle than the milk strike."

INVESTIGATION OF CWA IN L. A. TO BE STARTED

Reports of "Public Scandal" Forwarded Today to Roosevelt

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—A federal grand jury investigation into the local civil works administration was promised today as reports of "a public scandal" were communicated to President Roosevelt by a special Democratic state central investigating committee.

John B. Elliott, who headed President Roosevelt's campaign in Southern California in 1932, asked the president to reorganize the CWA state administration. His committee alleged:

"That the entire CWA program is in a chaotic condition; local favoritism is everywhere apparent; a political machine has been built at the expense of human suffering; gross inefficiency is apparent, pointing to criminal negligence; large sums of public money have been wasted, as well as having been diverted from their true purpose; that there is every indication of a deliberate betrayal of the president's program, constituting a public scandal, that there have been continued and ridiculous delays in the payment of the workers and that thousands of men have remained idle through lack of tools and materials with which to work.

All information in the investigation will be turned over to U. S. Attorney Peirson Hall for an immediate grand jury inquiry, it was said.

Copies of the report were sent to U. S. Senators Hiram Johnson and William G. McAdoo, and each of the 21 California representatives in congress.

DEFENSE DEFEATED IN WYNEKOOP TRIAL

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The trial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop was delayed today as her attorneys argued that the aged woman be allowed to appear in court in a wheel chair during her trial on charges of murdering her daughter-in-law, Rheta.

After hearing medical testimony Judge David ruled that the defendant was not in such condition as to necessitate a wheel chair and the trial proceeded.

Dr. James Whitney Hall, physician for the defense, was called to the witness stand to be examined by Judge David regarding Dr. Wynekoop's condition. He said that her heart was very weak and that he would not be responsible for her condition if she were forced to undergo the daily rigors of trial.

WALTER HINES IS CALLED BY DEATH

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The death of Walker Downer Hines, director-general of the nation's railroads during the most turbulent period of government operation in 1919, was revealed in a cable to his son-in-law, Paul T. Tison, of Darien, Conn., from Merano, Italy.

Hines, 63, died of apoplexy. He had been abroad as head of an American commission advising Turkey on an industrialization program. Poor health compelled him to relinquish his position temporarily. Burial will be in Florence.

Hines was appointed assistant to William G. McAdoo when the latter became director-general of the railroads, and on Jan. 10, 1919, when McAdoo resigned, Hines succeeded him. His regime was beset with labor troubles, run-down equipment, and opposition from congress and the public.

SEEKS TITLE TO ALL GOLD IN COUNTRY

President Recommends Circulation of Gold Be Permanently Forbidden

MORE USE OF SILVER

Desires Further Study of International Silver Action Before Moving

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today asked congress for legislation to give the government permanent and undisputed possession of all the country's $4,000,000,000 gold resources, including the $3,566,290,000 held by the federal reserve banks.

The president also asked congress to make mandatory a revaluation of the dollar at not more than 60 per cent of its present gold value. Present law empowers the president to devalue the dollar down to 50 per cent.

"Careful study leads me to believe that any revaluation at more than 60 per cent would not be in the public interest," Mr. Roosevelt said.

He asked that the government's profits from devaluation be used to set up a $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

The treasury would be expressly empowered to use this fund in foreign exchange transactions, as well as to deal in gold and securities in order to stabilize the credit of the government and regulate the value of money.

Organize System

"With the legislation to make this ownership clear, we can organize a currency system which will be both sound and adequate," the president said.

The president said this action was needed "in conformity with the progress we are making in restoring a fairer price level and with our purpose of arriving eventually at a less variable purchasing power for the dollar."

The president said experience had shown that free circulation of gold coins was unnecessary and that instead all gold should be held in the form of bullion.

Circulation of coins, he said, "leads to hoarding and tends to a possible weakening of national financial structures in times of emergency."

"The practice of transferring gold from one individual to another or from the government to an individual within a nation is not only unnecessary, but is in every way undesirable," the president continued.

"The transfer of gold in bulk is essential only for the payment of international trade balances.

"Therefore it is a prudent step to vest in the government of a nation the title to and possession of all monetary gold within its boundaries and to keep that gold in the form of bullion rather than in coin."

Much Confusion

The president expressed hope that "events are leading to some future form of general agreement" among the nations on monetary policy. At the present time, however, there is still much confusion and much divergence of views as to whether gold alone, silver, or both should be used as the basis of currency.

Mr. Roosevelt said he already had authority to take title to the gold held by the reserve banks, but "this is a step of such importance that I prefer to ask the congress by specific enactment to vest in the United States government title to all supplies of American owned monetary gold, with provision for the payment therefor in gold certificates."

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Viscount Rothermere, proprietor of the Daily Mail, today urged his nearly 2,000,000 readers to join the British Fascists.

Declaring Italy and Germany to be the best governed countries in Europe, Rothermere said:

"While leaders of other states are reorganizing their national resources to break the crushing grip of the world crisis, our own are content to drift and dawdle."

Rothemere's endorsement is the most important advance Fascism has made in Britain. For the first time, the Fascists will have a medium of publicity that blankets the country.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 15.—(UP)—Herbert Hoover, jr., offered to resign as chief engineer of Western Air Express in 1930 to spare his father embarrassment when air mail contracts were being awarded he notified a senate investigating committee today.

Replying to a questionnaire the committee sent him in its investigation of ocean and airmail contracts, young Hoover said he proffered his resignation when advised by then Secretary of War Patrick Hurley that " a man named Haliburton" charged in Washington that he was using his influence to promote airmail contracts for Western Air.

Night Nurse Is Overcome By Inmates

Seven Inmates at Pacific Colony at Spadra Are at Large Today

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Seven girl inmates of the Pacific College for Narcotic Treatment at Spadra were free today, after having overpowered a night nurse to escape the institution last night. Earlier, two other girls had walked out of the building.

Ganging the nurse, the seven girls took her keys, opened the doors and fled. Though the alarm was spread immediately and officers patrolled the highways for several hours, no trace of the girls had been found today.

Besides four girls from Los Angeles, the seven included Nathelia Martin, 17, Inglewood, Eulalia Vasquez, 24 of Azusa, and Ethel Harrington, 18, Santa Ana. The two who walked out earlier were Marie Aldama, 15, of Pico Park, and Connie Lee Fry, 14 of Huntington Beach.

CALIFORNIA GOLD MINERS ASK LOAN

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 15.—(UP)—United in a demand for a federal loan of $250,000,000 to aid the industry gold miners of California today prepared to draw a resolution for submission to congress.

A lengthy meeting of large and small operators here failed to reach a final agreement on anything except the amount of money to be sought. A committee was appointed to draft a resolution, and was expected to meet in San Francisco this week.

Eight persons were reported killed at Patna and nine at Gaya.

Funeral services were held at Newhall, a suburb, where the comedian owned a ranch. William S. Hart, a longtime friend and neighbor, delivered the eulogy, praising him for his contributions to the stage and screen. Noah Beery sang a solo. A violin number was played by Jay Whidden, orchestra leader.

L. A. FRUIT PACKING HOUSES GUARDED BY DEPUTIES WHEN STRIKE THREATS ARE HEARD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—With strikes impending in at least two large citrus sections, and a posible attempt on the life of a fruit exchange official disclosed by authorities, the board of supervisors today ordered deputy sheriffs to guard all fruit-packing houses.

Officers were instructed to hold themselves in readiness for emergency calls from growers.

Ingeniously wired to the motor, a bomb sheriff's officers declared contained a latently deadly quantity of explosive was found in the automobile belonging to H. J. Ramsey, buyer for the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. Ramsey said he believed the bomb had been planted while his car remained overnight in a San Bernardino garage.

Built like a firecracker, the bomb was attached to the sparkplugs by fine copper wires embedded in the powder. It appeared to have been set to explode when the motor was started, and bomb experts of the sheriff's office were at a loss to account immediately for its failure.

Ramsey, who lives at Pasadena, told Altadena deputies he left his car in a San Bernardino garage Friday night. Returning home Saturday, he said he noticed that the motor was not functioning well, but did not stop to investigate. Yesterday, he lifted the hood and discovered the bomb.

Preliminary examination of the bomb—four inches long and half an inch in diameter—convinced officers that it contained a lethal amount of explosive.

Ramsey declined to discuss the affair, but was inclined to deprecate the danger, declaring that he believed the amount of powder was only sufficient to startle him.

He said he had experienced no trouble with agitators either here or in San Bernardino.

The walkout was called for later today in San Bernardino.

Meanwhile, quiet prevailed on the milk front in Los Angeles. Employers continued in the belief that the backbone of the strike had been broken, while strikers said 53 producers had signed agreements over the week end recognizing the Dairy Workers' Union. Picketing was light, with no disorder.

The spreading strike among agricultural workers, however, "is a great deal more serious than the milk strike," Supervisor Hugh Thatcher warned the board.

"The city of Los Angeles and nearby cities are dependent upon the agricultural districts for daily supplies of foodstuffs. Most of our farmers, because of the reverses of the past few seasons, are not financially able to protect themselves with private guards, as the dairy proprietors did.

"The area affected is large, and the citrus strike would be much harder to handle than the milk strike."

INVESTIGATION OF CWA IN L. A. TO BE STARTED

Reports of "Public Scandal" Forwarded Today to Roosevelt

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—A federal grand jury investigation into the local civil works administration was promised today as reports of "a public scandal" were communicated to President Roosevelt by a special Democratic state central investigating committee.

John B. Elliott, who headed President Roosevelt's campaign in Southern California in 1932, asked the president to reorganize the CWA state administration. His committee alleged:

"That the entire CWA program is in a chaotic condition; local favoritism is everywhere apparent; a political machine has been built at the expense of human suffering; gross inefficiency is apparent, pointing to criminal negligence; large sums of public money have been wasted, as well as having been diverted from their true purpose; that there is every indication of a deliberate betrayal of the president's program, constituting a public scandal, that there have been continued and ridiculous delays in the payment of the workers and that thousands of men have remained idle through lack of tools and materials with which to work.

All information in the investigation will be turned over to U. S. Attorney Peirson Hall for an immediate grand jury inquiry, it was said.

Copies of the report were sent to U. S. Senators Hiram Johnson and William G. McAdoo, and each of the 21 California representatives in congress.

DEFENSE DEFEATED IN WYNEKOOP TRIAL

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The trial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop was delayed today as her attorneys argued that the aged woman be allowed to appear in court in a wheel chair during her trial on charges of murdering her daughter-in-law, Rheta.

After hearing medical testimony Judge David ruled that the defendant was not in such condition as to necessitate a wheel chair and the trial proceeded.

Dr. James Whitney Hall, physician for the defense, was called to the witness stand to be examined by Judge David regarding Dr. Wynekoop's condition. He said that her heart was very weak and that he would not be responsible for her condition if she were forced to undergo the daily rigors of trial.

WALTER HINES IS CALLED BY DEATH

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The death of Walker Downer Hines, director-general of the nation's railroads during the most turbulent period of government operation in 1919, was revealed in a cable to his son-in-law, Paul T. Tison, of Darien, Conn., from Merano, Italy.

Hines, 63, died of apoplexy. He had been abroad as head of an American commission advising Turkey on an industrialization program. Poor health compelled him to relinquish his position temporarily. Burial will be in Florence.

Hines was appointed assistant to William G. McAdoo when the latter became director-general of the railroads, and on Jan. 10, 1919, when McAdoo resigned, Hines succeeded him. His regime was beset with labor troubles, run-down equipment, and opposition from congress and the public.

SEEKS TITLE TO ALL GOLD IN COUNTRY

MORE USE OF SILVER

Desires Further Study of International Silver Action Before Moving

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today asked congress for legislation to give the government permanent and undisputed possession of all the country's $4,000,000,000 gold resources, including the $3,566,290,000 held by the federal reserve banks.

The president also asked congress to make mandatory a revaluation of the dollar at not more than 60 per cent of its present gold value. Present law empowers the president to devalue the dollar down to 50 per cent.

"Careful study leads me to believe that any revaluation at more than 60 per cent would not be in the public interest," Mr. Roosevelt said.

He asked that the government's profits from devaluation be used to set up a $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

The treasury would be expressly empowered to use this fund in foreign exchange transactions, as well as to deal in gold and securities in order to stabilize the credit of the government and regulate the value of money.

Organize System

"With the legislation to make this ownership clear, we can organize a currency system which will be both sound and adequate," the president said.

The president said this action was needed "in conformity with the progress we are making in restoring a fairer price level and with our purpose of arriving eventually at a less variable purchasing power for the dollar."

The president said experience had shown that free circulation of gold coins was unnecessary and that instead all gold should be held in the form of bullion.

Circulation of coins, he said, "leads to hoarding and tends to a possible weakening of national financial structures in times of emergency."

"The practice of transferring gold from one individual to another or from the government to an individual within a nation is not only unnecessary, but is in every way undesirable," the president continued.

"The transfer of gold in bulk is essential only for the payment of international trade balances.

"Therefore it is a prudent step to vest in the government of a nation the title to and possession of all monetary gold within its boundaries and to keep that gold in the form of bullion rather than in coin."

Much Confusion

The president expressed hope that "events are leading to some future form of general agreement" among the nations on monetary policy. At the present time, however, there is still much confusion and much divergence of views as to whether gold alone, silver, or both should be used as the basis of currency.

Mr. Roosevelt said he already had authority to take title to the gold held by the reserve banks, but "this is a step of such importance that I prefer to ask the congress by specific enactment to vest in the United States government title to all supplies of American owned monetary gold, with provision for the payment therefor in gold certificates."

Orders were sent to all troops, sailors and police to remain in barracks.

Even after it became clear that Grau was being dismissed, the motive behind this dismissal was vague. There were reports that the extreme left wing believed he was too weak to carry out their revolutionary program.

"We shall abide by any decision the revolutionary committee may make. But we are awaiting word from the Army. If the Army does not accept the committee's decision there will be a fight."

BEVERLY HILLS, Jan. 15. (To the Editor of The Register:) Trouble with us we had the tax on liquor at the wrong time. We should have had it on from 1919 to 1933, when people were drinking. A prospector in the heart of Death Valley is not as lonesome-looking as a salesman in a liquor store. That Japanese admiral that declared war on America got a lot of publicity, but no war. In fact, all the writers and predicters haven't been able to produce a war as readily as they promised. chow, capital of the independent states by the central government navy.

Dispatches said that General Tsai Ting-Kai's famed army was unable to find transportation to take them from the territory into which nationalist troops were pouring.

Military observers believed that the 19th route soldiers would make their final stand at Nantai.

The aerial bombarbment reported in dispatches centering on the outskirts of Foochow as the Nationalist aviators sought to disperse scattered ranks of rebel soldiers. The occupation of Foochow was effected by the sailors without bloodshed in line with an agreement with the rebels.

The bombs reportedly killed 50 and wounded many other soldiers of the rebellious "third army." Some of the bombs, it was said, fell on Nantai island, to which the central government had advised foreigners to flee before the attack on the rebel capital began. None of the explosives, however, injured foreigners, the dispatches said.

Japanese landed a marine detachment at Foochow to protect their nationals. Other nations purportedly planned like action. The Nanking government officially denied reports that Japanese and Chinese had engaged in fighting against each other in the area.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's monetary message to congress:

To the Congress:

In conformity with the progress we are making in restoring a fairer price level and with our purpose of arriving eventually at a less variable purchasing power for the dollar, I ask the congress for certain additional legislation to improve our financial and monetary system. By making clear that we are establishing permanent metallic reserves in the possession and ownership of the federal government, we can organize a currency system which will be both sound and adequate.

The issuance and control of the medium of exchange which we call "money" is a high prerogative of government. It has been such for many centuries. Because they were scarce, because they could readily be subdivided and transported, gold and silver have been used either for money or as a basis for forms of money which in themselves had only nominal intrinsic value.

In pure theory, of course, a government could issue mere tokens to serve as money—tokens which would be accepted at their face value if it were certain that the amount of these tokens were permanently limited and confined to the total amount necessary for the daily cash needs of the community. Because this assurance could not always or sufficiently be given, governments have found that reserves for basis of gold and silver behind their paper or token currency added stability to their financial systems.

Great Confusion

There is still much confusion of thought which prevents a world-wide agreement creating a uniform monetary policy. Many advocate gold as the sole basis of currency; others advocate silver; still others advocate both gold and silver whether as separate or on a basis with fixed ratio, or on a fused basis.

We hope that, despite present world confusion events are leading to some future form of general agreement. The recent London agreement in regard to silver was a step, though only a step, in this direction.

At this time we can usefully take a further step, which we hope will contribute to an ultimate world wide solution.

Certain lessons seem clear. For example, the free circulation of gold coins is unnecessary, leads to hoarding, and tends to a possible weakening of national financial structures in times of emergency. The practice of transferring gold from one individual to another or from the government to an individual within a nation is not only unnecessary, but is in every way undesirable. The transfer of gold in bulk is essential only for the payment of international trade balances. Therefore it is a prudent step to vest in the government of a nation the title to and possession of all monetary gold within its boundaries and to keep that gold in the form of bullion rather than in coin.

Because the safe keeping of this monetary basis rests with the government, we have already called in the gold which was in the possession of private individuals or corporations. There remains, however, a very large weight of gold, bullion and coins which is still in the possession or control of federal reserve banks.

Asks Authority

Although under existing law there is authority, by executive act, to take title to the gold in the possession or control of the reserve banks, this is a step of such importance that I prefer to ask the congress by specific enactment to vest in the United States government title to all supplies of American-owned monetary gold, with provision for the payment therefor in gold certificates. These gold certificates will be, as now, secured at all times dollar for dollar by gold in the treasury—gold for each dollar of such weight and fineness as may be established from time to time.

Such legislation places the right, title and ownership to our gold reserves in the government itself; it makes clear the government's ownership of any added dollar value of the country's stock of gold which would result from any decrease of gold content of the dollar which may be made in the public interest. It would also, of course, with equal justice, cast upon the government the loss of such dollar value if the public interest in the future should require an increase in the amount of gold designated as a dollar.

The title to all gold being in the government, the total stock will serve as a permanent and fixed metallic reserve which will change in amount only so far as necessary for the settlement of international balances or as may be required by a future agreement among the nations of the world for a redistribution of the world stock of monetary gold.

60-Cent Dollar

With the establishment of this permanent policy, placing all monetary gold in the ownership of the government as a bullion base for its currency, the time has come for a more certain determination of the gold value of the American dollar, Because of world uncertainties, I do not believe it desirable in the public interest that an exact value be now fixed. The President is authorized by present legislation to fix the lower limit of permissible revaluation at 50 per cent. Careful study leads me to believe that any revaluation at more than 60 per cent of the present statutory value would not be in the public interest.. I, therefore, recommend to the congress that it fix the upper limit of permissible revaluation at 60 per cent.

That we may be further prepared to bring some greater degree of stability to foreign exchange rates in the interests of our people, there should be added to the present power of the secretary of the treasury to buy and sell gold at home and abroad, express power to deal in foreign exchange as such. As a part of this power, I suggest that, out of the profits of any devaluation, there should be set up a fund of two billion dollars for such purchases and sales of gold, foreign exchange, and government securities as the regulation of the currency, the maintenance of the credit of the government and the general welfare of the United States may require.

Certain amendments of existing legislation relating to the purchase and sale of gold and to other monetary matters would add to the convenience of handling current problems in this field. The secretary of the treasury is prepared to submit information concerning such changes to the appropriate committees of the congress.

Important Issue

The foregoing recommendations relate chiefly to gold. The other principal previous metal—silver—has also been used from time immemorial as a metallic base for currencies as well as for actual currency itself. It is used as such by probably half the population of the world. It constitutes a very important part of our own monetary structure. It is such a crucial factor in much of the world's international trade that it cannot be neglected.

In December 21, 1933, I issued a proclamation providing for the coinage of our newly mined silver and for increasing our reserves of silver bullion, thereby putting us among the first nations to carry out the silver agreement entered into by sixty-six governments at the London conference. This agreement is distinctly a step in the right direction and we are proceeding to perform our part of it.

All of the sixty-six nations agreed to refrain from melting or debasing their silver coins, to replace paper currency of small denominations with silver coins and to refrain from legislation that would depreciate the value of silver in the world markets. Those nations producing large quantities of silver agreed to take specified amounts from their domestic production and those holding and using large quantities agreed to restrict the amount they would sell during the four years covered by the agreement.

Use of Silver

If all these undertakings are carried out by the governments concerned, there will be a marked increase in the use and value of silver.

Governments can well, as they have in the past, employ silver as a basis for currency, and I look for a greatly increased use. I am, however, withholding any recommendation to the congress looking to further extension of the monetary use of silver because I believe that we should gain more knowledge of the results of the London agreement and of our other monetary measures.

Permit me once more to stress two principles. Our national currency must be maintained as a sound currency which, insofar as possible, will have a fairly constant standard of purchasing power and be adequate for the purposes of daily use and the establishment of credit.

The other principle is the inherent right of government to issue currency and to be the sole custodian and owner of the base or reserve of precious metals underlying that currency. With this goes the prerogative of government to determine from time to time the extent and nature of the metallic reserve. I am confident that the nation will well realize the definite purpose of the government to maintain the credit of that government and, at the same time, to provide a sound medium of exchange which will serve the needs of our people.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

ROOSEVELT IN MESSAGE ASKS TITLE TO GOLD

This would make clear the government's right to the profit on all gold in event of devaluation—a profit which would amount to $4,000,000,000 if the present legal gold content of the dollar were reduced 50 per cent.

Turning to silver, the president said he looked for greatly increased use of silver as a monetary base. He added, however, that he was withholding recommendations to congress along this line "because I believe that we should gain more knowledge of the results of the London agreement and of our other monetary measures."

Right Step

He pointed out that in December, in accordance with the silver agreement reached at the London conference, he had provided for coinage of this country's newly-mined silver and for increasing reserves of monetary silver.

Mr. Roosevelt said the London agreement was "distinctly a step in the right direction."

In closing, the president stressed two principles:

1—"Our national currency must be maintained as a sound currency which, insofar as possible, will have a fairly constant standard of purchasing power and be adequate for the purposes of daily use and the establishment of credit."

2—"The inherent right of government to issue currency and to be the sole custodian and owner of the base or reserve of previous metals underlying that currency. With this goes the prerogative of government to determine from time to time the extent and nature of the metallic reserve."

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 15.—(UP)—A major marine disaster was averted narrowly when the 2600-ton freighter Sagamore grounded on Corwin's Rock, lost her steel bottom plates, and then, sinking, was driven through a blinding blizzard and beached at Prout's Neck, where it was being pounded to pieces today.

Seven hours later coast guards took off the entire crew of 26 sailors. Even the ship's mascot, a collie named Bozo, was saved.

morning, and for hours the capital and provincial towns were without light or power.

Army, navy and police force seemed united against Grau, the university medical professor who they put into power in September after deposing Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes.

Orders were sent to all troops, sailors and police to remain in barracks.

Even after it became clear that Grau was being dismissed, the motive behind this dismissal was vague. There were reports that the extreme left wing believed he was too weak to carry out their revolutionary program.

Antonio Guiteras, secretary of war, emerged from the meeting long enough to say:

"We shall abide by any decision the revolutionary committee may make. But we are awaiting word from the Army. If the Army does not accept the committee's decision there will be a fight."

ACTS TWO WAYS AT ONCE

WILL ROGERS says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Jan. 15. (To the Editor of The Register:) Trouble with us we had the tax on liquor at the wrong time. We should have had it on from 1919 to 1933, when people were drinking. A prospector in the heart of Death Valley is not as lonesome-looking as a salesman in a liquor store. That Japanese admiral that declared war on America got a lot of publicity, but no war. In fact, all the writers and predicters haven't been able to produce a war as readily as they promised. Every nation thinks they are getting ready for it quicker than the other, and if they each know that the other is ready there will be none.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

UNITED STATES LANDS MARINES NEAR FOOCHOW

chow, capital of the independent states by the central government navy.

Dispatches said that General Tsai Ting-Kai's famed army was unable to find transportation to take them from the territory into which nationalist troops were pouring.

Military observers believed that the 19th route soldiers would make their final stand at Nantai.

The aerial bombarbment reported in dispatches centering on the outskirts of Foochow as the Nationalist aviators sought to disperse scattered ranks of rebel soldiers. The occupation of Foochow was effected by the sailors without bloodshed in line with an agreement with the rebels.

The bombs reportedly killed 50 and wounded many other soldiers of the rebellious "third army." Some of the bombs, it was said, fell on Nantai island, to which the central government had advised foreigners to flee before the attack on the rebel capital began. None of the explosives, however, injured foreigners, the dispatches said.

Japanese landed a marine detachment at Foochow to protect their nationals. Other nations purportedly planned like action. The Nanking government officially denied reports that Japanese and Chinese had engaged in fighting against each other in the area.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's monetary message to congress:

To the Congress:

In conformity with the progress we are making in restoring a fairer price level and with our purpose of arriving eventually at a less variable purchasing power for the dollar, I ask the congress for certain additional legislation to improve our financial and monetary system. By making clear that we are establishing permanent metallic reserves in the possession and ownership of the federal government, we can organize a currency system which will be both sound and adequate.

The issuance and control of the medium of exchange which we call "money" is a high prerogative of government. It has been such for many centuries. Because they were scarce, because they could readily be subdivided and transported, gold and silver have been used either for money or as a basis for forms of money which in themselves had only nominal intrinsic value.

In pure theory, of course, a government could issue mere tokens to serve as money—tokens which would be accepted at their face value if it were certain that the amount of these tokens were permanently limited and confined to the total amount necessary for the daily cash needs of the community. Because this assurance could not always or sufficiently be given, governments have found that reserves for basis of gold and silver behind their paper or token currency added stability to their financial systems.

Great Confusion

There is still much confusion of thought which prevents a world-wide agreement creating a uniform monetary policy. Many advocate gold as the sole basis of currency; others advocate silver; still others advocate both gold and silver whether as separate or on a basis with fixed ratio, or on a fused basis.

We hope that, despite present world confusion events are leading to some future form of general agreement. The recent London agreement in regard to silver was a step, though only a step, in this direction.

At this time we can usefully take a further step, which we hope will contribute to an ultimate world wide solution.

Certain lessons seem clear. For example, the free circulation of gold coins is unnecessary, leads to hoarding, and tends to a possible weakening of national financial structures in times of emergency. The practice of transferring gold from one individual to another or from the government to an individual within a nation is not only unnecessary, but is in every way undesirable. The transfer of gold in bulk is essential only for the payment of international trade balances. Therefore it is a prudent step to vest in the government of a nation the title to and possession of all monetary gold within its boundaries and to keep that gold in the form of bullion rather than in coin.

Because the safe keeping of this monetary basis rests with the government, we have already called in the gold which was in the possession of private individuals or corporations. There remains, however, a very large weight of gold, bullion and coins which is still in the possession or control of federal reserve banks.

Asks Authority

Although under existing law there is authority, by executive act, to take title to the gold in the possession or control of the reserve banks, this is a step of such importance that I prefer to ask the congress by specific enactment to vest in the United States government title to all supplies of American-owned monetary gold, with provision for the payment therefor in gold certificates. These gold certificates will be, as now, secured at all times dollar for dollar by gold in the treasury—gold for each dollar of such weight and fineness as may be established from time to time.

Such legislation places the right, title and ownership to our gold reserves in the government itself; it makes clear the government's ownership of any added dollar value of the country's stock of gold which would result from any decrease of gold content of the dollar which may be made in the public interest. It would also, of course, with equal justice, cast upon the government the loss of such dollar value if the public interest in the future should require an increase in the amount of gold designated as a dollar.

The title to all gold being in the government, the total stock will serve as a permanent and fixed metallic reserve which will change in amount only so far as necessary for the settlement of international balances or as may be required by a future agreement among the nations of the world for a redistribution of the world stock of monetary gold.

60-Cent Dollar

With the establishment of this permanent policy, placing all monetary gold in the ownership of the government as a bullion base for its currency, the time has come for a more certain determination of the gold value of the American dollar, Because of world uncertainties, I do not believe it desirable in the public interest that an exact value be now fixed. The President is authorized by present legislation to fix the lower limit of permissible revaluation at 50 per cent. Careful study leads me to believe that any revaluation at more than 60 per cent of the present statutory value would not be in the public interest.. I, therefore, recommend to the congress that it fix the upper limit of permissible revaluation at 60 per cent.

That we may be further prepared to bring some greater degree of stability to foreign exchange rates in the interests of our people, there should be added to the present power of the secretary of the treasury to buy and sell gold at home and abroad, express power to deal in foreign exchange as such. As a part of this power, I suggest that, out of the profits of any devaluation, there should be set up a fund of two billion dollars for such purchases and sales of gold, foreign exchange, and government securities as the regulation of the currency, the maintenance of the credit of the government and the general welfare of the United States may require.

Certain amendments of existing legislation relating to the purchase and sale of gold and to other monetary matters would add to the convenience of handling current problems in this field. The secretary of the treasury is prepared to submit information concerning such changes to the appropriate committees of the congress.

Important Issue

The foregoing recommendations relate chiefly to gold. The other principal previous metal—silver—has also been used from time immemorial as a metallic base for currencies as well as for actual currency itself. It is used as such by probably half the population of the world. It constitutes a very important part of our own monetary structure. It is such a crucial factor in much of the world's international trade that it cannot be neglected.

In December 21, 1933, I issued a proclamation providing for the coinage of our newly mined silver and for increasing our reserves of silver bullion, thereby putting us among the first nations to carry out the silver agreement entered into by sixty-six governments at the London conference. This agreement is distinctly a step in the right direction and we are proceeding to perform our part of it.

All of the sixty-six nations agreed to refrain from melting or debasing their silver coins, to replace paper currency of small denominations with silver coins and to refrain from legislation that would depreciate the value of silver in the world markets. Those nations producing large quantities of silver agreed to take specified amounts from their domestic production and those holding and using large quantities agreed to restrict the amount they would sell during the four years covered by the agreement.

Use of Silver

If all these undertakings are carried out by the governments concerned, there will be a marked increase in the use and value of silver.

Governments can well, as they have in the past, employ silver as a basis for currency, and I look for a greatly increased use. I am, however, withholding any recommendation to the congress looking to further extension of the monetary use of silver because I believe that we should gain more knowledge of the results of the London agreement and of our other monetary measures.

Permit me once more to stress two principles. Our national currency must be maintained as a sound currency which, insofar as possible, will have a fairly constant standard of purchasing power and be adequate for the purposes of daily use and the establishment of credit.

The other principle is the inherent right of government to issue currency and to be the sole custodian and owner of the base or reserve of precious metals underlying that currency. With this goes the prerogative of government to determine from time to time the extent and nature of the metallic reserve. I am confident that the nation will well realize the definite purpose of the government to maintain the credit of that government and, at the same time, to provide a sound medium of exchange which will serve the needs of our people.

This would make clear the government's right to the profit on all gold in event of devaluation—a profit which would amount to $4,000,000,000 if the present legal gold content of the dollar were reduced 50 per cent.

Turning to silver, the president said he looked for greatly increased use of silver as a monetary base. He added, however, that he was withholding recommendations to congress along this line "because I believe that we should gain more knowledge of the results of the London agreement and of our other monetary measures."

Right Step

He pointed out that in December, in accordance with the silver agreement reached at the London conference, he had provided for coinage of this country's newly-mined silver and for increasing reserves of monetary silver.

Mr. Roosevelt said the London agreement was "distinctly a step in the right direction."

In closing, the president stressed two principles:

1—"Our national currency must be maintained as a sound currency which, insofar as possible, will have a fairly constant standard of purchasing power and be adequate for the purposes of daily use and the establishment of credit."

2—"The inherent right of government to issue currency and to be the sole custodian and owner of the base or reserve of previous metals underlying that currency. With this goes the prerogative of government to determine from time to time the extent and nature of the metallic reserve."

HUNDREDS INSPECT BOAT AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT BEACH, Jan. 15.—Hundreds of people viewed the 55-foot Sea-Dog type cruiser, "Boat-Show-Boat," on exhibition here over the week end. The craft, owned by the Hans A. B. Sneve company, is a twin screw with 13-foot beam and 4-foot draft, and accommodates 14 people. She was built by a Stockton company and carries a 10-foot dinghy built by a local firm, the G. V. Johnson Boat works.

The boat was launched on July 27, making a cruise to Alaska as her maiden voyage. Since that time many stops have been made at points of interest all along the coast. The purpose ofthe cruise has been to stimulate interest in boating, fishermen's and boat builders' supplies of all kinds being a part of her exhibit. She will proceed on down the coast as far as San Diego, after which she will dock permanently at Los Angeles. Mr. Sneve is a brother of S. C. M. Sneve, of Costa Mesa.

MARINE DISASTER NARROWLY AVERTED

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 15.—(UP)—A major marine disaster was averted narrowly when the 2600-ton freighter Sagamore grounded on Corwin's Rock, lost her steel bottom plates, and then, sinking, was driven through a blinding blizzard and beached at Prout's Neck, where it was being pounded to pieces today.

Seven hours later coast guards took off the entire crew of 26 sailors. Even the ship's mascot, a collie named Bozo, was saved.

WOMEN PLEDGE SUPPORT TO NRA PROGRAM

Co-operation of the women of Santa Ana and Orange county in securing the success of the National Recovery Administration program was pledged Saturday in a telegram sent to President Roosevelt following a dinner of the Santa Ana women's division.

The telegram was unanimously approved following brief talks by Deputy District Attorney James Davis, County Superintendent of Schools Ray Adkinson and William J. McNicholls of Los Angeles and an address by J. F. Burke who was principal speaker. The addresses were delivered at a dinner of the Santa Ana women's division held at James' cafe.

As principal speaker Burke discussed the National Industrial Recovery act. He first outlined the situation which confronted the National administration in March of last year, when, he said, credit was gone, the banks were closed, 12 to 15 million were unemployed. The methods which had been adopted formerly were putting money into the financial institutions and the railroads, but this money did not seem to reach the masses of the people, he said. Credit was not helped. Money was not more plentiful. Unemployment was increasing, distress had reached a crisis.

Double Task

There were two things before the president, the speaker said—one was to get business back as far as possible into normal conditions, the other was to keep it from slipping again into the distressing conditions then prevailing. The president had been endeavoring to do this through the various powers granted him by legislature enacted in the special session.

The NRA was designed, first, to stabilize industry. The laissez-faire program has ruined the country. He said cut-throat competition was putting little men out of business, increasing the holdings and strength of the big industrialists, and that industry, like the textile industry, was locating itself in places where it could get labor cheaper, and without industrial strife, whereas it was very apparent that the thing that was needed was an increasing ability to buy in the great army of the people.

The second objective, he said, was to increase employment under the NRA, and this has been accomplished to a degree, variously estimated from 1,500,000 up to 3,000,000, but that if 1,500,000 have been put on permanent employment through decreasing hours, and without decreasing the pay of those already employed, it has been a wonderful help.

A third objective, the speaker said, was to limit production, the conception in this being that there was an over-production. Production must be restrained to keep up prices, and that the aim was to distribute the production among those who needed to produce, and to limit it on the market, so as to not get the price below the cost of production.

Limit Hours

A fourth object of the NRA, he said, was to limt maximum hours, together with the maintenance of minimum wages. He said this was done under the provision that in decreasing the hours of labor, that the wages paid the workers should not be decreased in any case, and that those who should be employed to do the work that the decreased hours would leave undone, should have a minimum wage.

A fifth proposition was to maintain prices. He said that the opposition to this measure came from various sources, because the natural selfishness of people prompted them to "chisel," so a great many manufacturers realizing the possibility of the law being enacted, before it was passed, had produced a great deal at the low costs, in order to take advantage of the higher prices they might get.

Another objection, which has been raised, is by those people who do not believe in unions, because this recognized the necessity of collective bargaining. He said it was rather strange that those who were taking advantage of great aggregations of capital in manufacturing andin trade, realizing the efficiency and concentration of power in that direction, should insist upon dealing with the wage-earner individually, the most inefficient way. The administration noted, however, that for the protection of this increased wage, the men must handle their affairs through a representative. Incidentally, he said that unfair practices in trade and in manufacturing must cease, in order to accomplish the purpose, and one of these unfair practices was that of child labor, that had been very definitely done away with.

Objections

He said of course there was objection on the ground that this was a social reform measure, and the president should not have presented this end of it until they had rehabilitated industry and business. But the speaker said that the president realized it would slip back immediately, unless there was some national control over the ruinous competition, that comes from the low standards of some men who were willing to make money at any sacrifice.

He said he did not believe the CWA was going to solve the question from standpoint of labor, because the millions in non-productive work were a drain upon wealth, and in some manner they must be producing wealth, and that with the efficient machinery now in use, we could produce equal the amount produced in 1926 or 1927, with a permanent unemployed army of from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000. He quoted these figures from Stuart Chase, in a recent article in Current History.

He said this part of it must be worked out, and that the opposition to the president's program was driving the president more and more to the "left," and that the big men were the fellows who were responsible for this. He said the president needed the advice of the great men of experience in the practical working out of his program, and this he was not receiving because most of these great successful men were skeptical as to his plans, and the reason was partly due to the fact that these men, who were successful, were devoting so much attention and thought to their own business, that they did not see the program in all of its aspects.

ARMY ENGINEERS WORK AT HARBOR

Continuing work started the first of the year, a party of five engineers from the office of Col. V. L. Peterson, district Army engineer, returned today to Newport harbor to make surveys of the harbor entrance. Surveys of the jetty extension work were completed a week ago. The engineers are expected to be engaged in the work all this week.

Actual harbor operations are expected to get under way some time in March, with the exact date undecided, it was stated today by R. L. Patterson, city engineer of Newport Beach. Patterson was in Los Angeles today for a conference with Colonel Peterson.

All harbor work will be under the supervision of War department engineers.

2564 HOME LOANS REPORTED IN STATE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The Home Owners' Loan Corporation closed 2564 loans on California homes up to December 13, State Manager Monroe Butler reported today. The loans aggregated $7,814,625.

A record was established last week when 405 loans were closed, and more than $1,000,000 in bonds were issued.

"Even though we closed the largest number of loans and issued the largest amount of bonds last week in the history of the California agency, it is significant that the average loan completed was less than $3,000," Butler said. "This is proof that the corporation in California is carrying out the purpose of the act and the wishes of President Roosevelt

RESPONSIBILITY OF CWA HEADS IS SWITCHED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15. — A complete change in the county organization of the Civil Works Administration will be placed in effect at once.

That was the announcement today of Edward Macauley, U. S. Civil Works Administrator for California. The new setup is the direct result of statements attributed to the San Francisco CWA committee in which a threat to resign was made because of purported diminution of duties and functions.

Under the new setup all local CWA directors will be directly responsible to the California administrator.

Administrator Macauley made this statement following a long distance telephone conversation with Federal Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in Washington.

Captain Macauley quoted Mr. Hopkins in announcing these changes:

All local CWA committees will be dissociated from local CWA directors, making local directors entirely and wholly responsible to the California administrator. Hereafter the California administrator will be in entire authority over local directors with no interference from outside sources.

This will clear the way, it was pointed out, for Administrator Macauley to iron out difficulties which have arisen in several localities by maintaining direct control over local administrators.

The necessity for complete coordination of the civil works program throughout the state was another factor responsible for this ruling from Federal Administrator Hopkins.

However, in announcing this change, Captain Macauley asserted that he desires to have local committees continue to function in an advisory capacity.

TWO INJURED IN FREAK ACCIDENTS

Victims of two freak accidents were treated yesterday at the Orange County hospital.

Milford McIntosh, 39, 1600 Lincoln avenue, Pasadena, fell from a motor boat in Newport Bay yesterday afternoon and in some manner, got his foot entangled in the propellor. His foot and leg were bady lacerated and he was rushed to the hospital for treatment.

R. W. Langeston, Compton, suffered a lacerated knee yesterday when he was bitten by a police dog on Garfield street while riding a motorcycle. Langeston and Tipp Hall, also of Compton, were on the motorcycle when the dog rushed out, jumped at Langeston and tore his pants leg. He was given first aid treatment at the hospital.

TAX NOT PAID ON LIQUOR IN CAR; ARRESTED

Three men were booked at the county jail Saturday and Sunday nights on three different types of liquor violations.

Dave Lilly, 28, Irvine, was arrested at 7:45 p. m. Saturday by Officers Ed Lentz and George Boyd when he failed to heed a traffic signal. When it was discovered that he had six and one-half gallons of liquor in his car on which no tax had been paid, he was booked at the county jail for violation of the state liquor control act, on the advice of J. Fred Sidebottom, liquor inspector for the state board of equalization.

R. A. McCutchon, 25, Huntington Beach oilworker, was booked at the jail for drunken driving at 11:25 p. m. Saturday by California Highway Patrolmen Vernon Barnhill and Joe Clever. McCutchon posted a $250 bond and secured his release.

WOMEN PLEDGE SUPPORT TO NRA PROGRAM

Co-operation of the women of Santa Ana and Orange county in securing the success of the National Recovery Administration program was pledged Saturday in a telegram sent to President Roosevelt following a dinner of the Santa Ana women's division.

The telegram was unanimously approved following brief talks by Deputy District Attorney James Davis, County Superintendent of Schools Ray Adkinson and William J. McNicholls of Los Angeles and an address by J. F. Burke who was principal speaker. The addresses were delivered at a dinner of the Santa Ana women's division held at James' cafe.

As principal speaker Burke discussed the National Industrial Recovery act. He first outlined the situation which confronted the National administration in March of last year, when, he said, credit was gone, the banks were closed, 12 to 15 million were unemployed. The methods which had been adopted formerly were putting money into the financial institutions and the railroads, but this money did not seem to reach the masses of the people, he said. Credit was not helped. Money was not more plentiful. Unemployment was increasing, distress had reached a crisis.

Double Task

There were two things before the president, the speaker said—one was to get business back as far as possible into normal conditions, the other was to keep it from slipping again into the distressing conditions then prevailing. The president had been endeavoring to do this through the various powers granted him by legislature enacted in the special session.

The NRA was designed, first, to stabilize industry. The laissez-faire program has ruined the country. He said cut-throat competition was putting little men out of business, increasing the holdings and strength of the big industrialists, and that industry, like the textile industry, was locating itself in places where it could get labor cheaper, and without industrial strife, whereas it was very apparent that the thing that was needed was an increasing ability to buy in the great army of the people.

The second objective, he said, was to increase employment under the NRA, and this has been accomplished to a degree, variously estimated from 1,500,000 up to 3,000,000, but that if 1,500,000 have been put on permanent employment through decreasing hours, and without decreasing the pay of those already employed, it has been a wonderful help.

A third objective, the speaker said, was to limit production, the conception in this being that there was an over-production. Production must be restrained to keep up prices, and that the aim was to distribute the production among those who needed to produce, and to limit it on the market, so as to not get the price below the cost of production.

Limit Hours

A fourth object of the NRA, he said, was to limt maximum hours, together with the maintenance of minimum wages. He said this was done under the provision that in decreasing the hours of labor, that the wages paid the workers should not be decreased in any case, and that those who should be employed to do the work that the decreased hours would leave undone, should have a minimum wage.

He said it was rather strange that those who were taking advantage of great aggregations of capital in manufacturing andin trade, realizing the efficiency and concentration of power in that direction, should insist upon dealing with the wage-earner individually, the most inefficient way. The administration noted, however, that for the protection of this increased wage, the men must handle their affairs through a representative. Incidentally, he said that unfair practices in trade and in manufacturing must cease, in order to accomplish the purpose, and one of these unfair practices was that of child labor, that had been very definitely done away with.

NRA REVIVES PITTSBURGH STEEL MILLS

LABOR MAKES GREAT GAINS IN COAL AREA

This is the tenth of 11 articles on "America Under the Blue Eagle," a series written exclusively for The Register and other NEA Service newspapers, after a 5000-mile journey of survey to the nation's principal centers of population, after six months' operation of the recovery program.

BY WILLIS THORNTON
Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 15. — Many times, during the last four depression years, I have made the trip through the steel district which swings along the Ohio valley from here in an arc toward Lake Erie.

And the sight of the silent steel mills, gaunt and stark and cold, gave me the shivers.

They do not look so today. The old pall of smoke hangs over the river valley; and the glow of coke ovens brighten the night sky. More than 415,000 men are making steel in America today.

That is within a few-odd thousands of the 1929 total, when production was nearly 70 per cent of capacity against today's 38 per cent.

Real Benefits Here

You can't take it away from the NRA that the shortening of hours and similar provisions have made it possible to employ almost as many men as worked at the trade in 1929, even though production is far lower.

In fact, steel authorities here report an actual shortage of certain types of highly skilled labor.

Nobody who pushed through the crowds that thronged the downtown canyons of this city could doubt that Pittsburgh has benefited by the NRA and the recovery program.

Not only were Christmas sales above last year's, but the University of Pittsburgh's careful figures show a gain of 7 per cent over 1932, even in November, before Christmas buying began.

Pittsburgh, another open shop stronghold, has yielded to labor organization much more gracefully than has Detroit. One of the outstanding results of NRA in the Pittsburgh area is the widespread progress in unionization in fields formerly closed to organization.

Labor Makes Gains

You read much of coal strikes, and disputes at the Weirton steel works, but the fact remains that the sweeping victories of the United Mine Workers in the coal fields elections match the widespread progress of the American Federation of Labor's Amalgamated Union in the steel industry.

Both these organizations have reached peaks never before attained in this area. In addition, there has been a speeding up of the formation of shop unions. Even the state of Pennsylvania employes are organizing a union at Harrisburg.

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, headed by the venerable Mike Tighe, works on contracts which have sliding scales varying according to production, and many plants have welcomed it as an alternative to allowing radicals to get a toehold.

Refuse Union Recognition

But many steel leaders have faced the union problem in this way: They will not recognize the union as such. If their own plant workers choose a union leader as their representative under NRA, the industrialists will deal with him, as required by NRA.

But they deal with him only as the chosen representative of their own men, not as the head of an international organization, which they refuse to recognize as such.

And the other side of it is put by a prominent business executive in these words: "Various Communistic or Socialistic labor organizations are springing up, the necessity for which is lacking, and which very definitely have stamped on such moves the appearance of a racket.

Must Oust Racketeers

"Many employes misunderstand the collective bargaining section of NRA, and that misunderstanding is increased deliberately by the untruthful and unwarranted statements of labor racketeers. The labor unions must clean house and do away with racketeering agents."

It is no trouble to find people around Pittsburgh who will cuss the Mellons heartily and freely, but there is one thing about them that isn't criticized. Their banks stayed open.

Nobody came knocking at the door of a Mellon bank without getting his money. The same thing is true of most of Pittsburg's large banks. The one big one which folded up (in 1931) already has paid off 70 per cent, and may pay 100.

Only small banks closed after the March crisis, and most of these have paid from 60 to 70 per cent. In the western part of the state 23 banks reopened just before the holiday season. That is one reason why Pittsburgh is making progress.

It's Sound Money Town

Pittsburgh is essentially, you see by this, a "sound money" town. And here again you hear business men crying for some kind of stabilization of money.

A traveling man for an advertising line put it this way: "There is business to be had, but much of it is holding back because the government won't say what it is going to do.

"I believe there is an enormous amount of business waiting for the green light if the government will tell where it is going, especially on the money question."

Yet even in conservative Pittsburgh, where the Mellon tradition sets the banking tone, I was able to find one president of a highly succesful bank who said this: "The flow of capital into new investments is very sluggish, and it is because bankers are scared. They claim they are scared about sound money, but what is sound money?

Bankers Branded Narrow

"Your wife may have thought she looked very grand 10 years ago in a new outfit of clothes. But you wouldn't like it if she wore them today. What was sound money yesetrday is not necessarily sound money today, or tomorrow.

"Bankers are narrow. They move in a narrow circle, and do not have contacts with the mass of the people. I am still perfectly willing to leave the money matter to the president, who hears all sides. He is in a better position than the average banker to know what is sound money today."

"Many industries are 'up in the air' about the effects of codes," said George T. Ladd, president of the United Engineering and Foundry Co., "but they are willing to try anything that promises to lead us out of the dire condition of the last three years.

"Iron and steel, coal and oil, have in a measure secured stabilization of prices and aid in elimination of unfair competition and chiseling."

The easing up of a very heavy relief burden tells the same story of progress in this area. On May 15 last, there were 74,244 Allegheny county families on the relief rolls. On Nov. 15, just before the CWA work went into effect, there were 63,045.

Inasmuch as 7300 have been given CWA work in the Pittsburgh district, this burden must have fallen appreciably since.

CWA work here is of a more profitable character than in some cities. For instance, 1200 men are to go to work in western Pennsylvania sealing up the mouths of abandoned mines, which should improve the water for drinking, washing and fishing over a large part of the state.

May Complete Tower

The Tower of Learning of the University of Pittsburgh, which has stood, uncompleted, a gaunt steel skeleton, for many months, may be finished partly, using materials already on the ground, and CWA labor.

NRA complaince, generally speaking, has been good, according to Frank Harper, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

"There have been altogether some 1400 complaints under the blanket code," Harper says. "Many of these were merely trivial or obviously due to misunderstanding.

"One thing that impressed us was the shabby appearance of many smal lemployers who obviously wanted to comply, but who looked as though they themselves ought to be on the breadline. Yet only about 100 asked for relief or special dispensations under the blanket code.

"We have not yet found a single case that we believed justified removal of the Blue Eagle."

The cleaning and dyeing industry, which was in danger of falling into the hands of racketeers here, is reported by Harper as much improved. The labor board, which did not begin to function until late last year, helped avert a dozen strikes.

Trouble in Restaurants

One of the sorest spots here, as elsewhere, is the restaurant business. There are supposed to be 6000 restaurants in Allegheny county, far too many, and there is no doubt that many of them continue to chisel, especially the small ones.

But R. L. Gammon, president of the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association, insists that "anyone can make money under NRA wages if he will raise his prices enough to cover increased costs. Many small restaurant proprietors did not realize they would have to do this, or could not do it."

The "show me" attitude is best reflected by E. T. Weir, president of National Steel, who in his annual report to stockholders, points out that "precedent has disappeared almost enitery from present-day calculations. Change is in the air.

'Industry definitely and voluntairly has assumed new responsibilities. A new plane of industrial relations is more than a reasonable expectancy. . . . . It is yet to be proved that prosperity can be arrived at via legislation."

NEXT: Conclusions.

FAMOUS STEEL CENTER OF NATION

REV. C. M. AKER GIVES REVIVAL OPENING TALK

Rev. C. M. Aker, pastor of the Spurgeon Memorial church, preached the opening sermon of the two weeks revival campaign which begins at that church tonight. His topic was "The Greatest Work in the World." He used as a text the incident of the personal dealing of Philip with the eunuch as given in the eighth chapter of Acts.

He said in part:

"One of America's greatest preachers, Henry Ward Beecher, said 'the longer I live the more confidence I have in those sermons preached where one man is the minister and one man is the congregation.' His father, also, one of the great preachers, when asked how it was that he had so many converts in his ministry said, 'it is not I that do it; it is my Church. I preach on Sunday as hard as I can, and then I have 400 members who go out and preach every day in the week. That is the way with God's blessing, we get along so well.'

"I am sure that it is just that sort of thing that is very much needed in this day. I know we have got to have a good quality of preaching on Sunday, but unless we can follow it up with personal dealing with individuals about their particular doubts and problems as we meet each other along the way during the week we shall never get very far toward evangelizing the world.

"We acknowledge this fact theoretically, but to get people to practice it, is very difficult. There seems to be an aversion on the part of many preachers and people to undertake this sort of work. We can do public preaching so much easier than we can talk with people about their personal sins and their personal problems in Christian living.

"We can open our mouths when it comes to gossiping about our neighbors, or criticising the preacher, or talking about the problems of politics and economics, but when it comes to speaking to people personally about that most fundamental and needful thing, their religious problems, many Christian people are silent as the grave. One of the most prevalent and deadly diseases among church people these days is spiritual lockjaw.

"This aversion to speaking to people, personally, about their religious problems is astonishing in the face of the example of Jesus Christ, who left on record a very few public discourses but at least 20 cases of personal dealing with people in regard to their salvation. The gospel records are full of personal interviews with people like Nicodemus, the scholar; the woman at the well, the adultress; Zacheus, the business man; Matthew, the tax collector.

"This also was the method that his first disciples followed. While it is true we have the one great sermon publicly preached by Peter and a few discourses by Paul and others, yet even these would have been largely lost if they had not followed up with personal dealings.

"A very illuminating illustration of this is recorded in the incident of Philip and his personal dealings with the eunuch from Ethiopia, as give nin the eighth chapter of Acts. He was obedient to the guidance of the Holy Spirit and tactful in his approach, and faithful to the deepest needs of this great seeker after salvation.

"The joyful result of this interview to this official himself and to the spread of the gospel throughout his country, eternity alone will reveal. How pathetic and tragic would have been the result if Philip had not dealt personally that day with this seeker after God. How tragic the failure of many of our most influential followers of Christ today who fail to follow the example of this great layman in the early church."

The Public Forum

Editor Register:

When a dozen Republicans in Orange county get jobs with the Federal Land Bank as appraisers, etc., that isn't news.

But when two Democrats secure jobs in the CWA, THAT'S NEWS, and the local weekly, owned by a prominent Republican of Anaheim, recently ran a front-page yarn about the subject and also hinted about a possible rift in Democratic ranks locally.

The funny part about it is that Ramsey was appointed CWA administrator by a non-partisan committee of seven, of whom six are Republicans, and Berry received his original appointment in the CWA from the Republican head of county relief work.

So it seems the Republicans are still enough in control in Orange county, despite the public's overwhelming support for President Roosevelt's administration, to largely dictate political appointments. Perhaps it's about time, as the local weekly says, that the "Democrats have decided to take over every thing they can get their hands on politically."

Unless the President's friends are in charge of his recovery program—and that means Democrats—we can't expect the same unanimously loyal effort the country needs at this time.

Instead of attempting to create a split in Democratic ranks by mentioning "younger" and "older" Democrats, the Loudon-Stanton-Schumacher Republicans might better be trying to patch up the rift in the G. O. P. ranks and prevent the wholesale desertions from the ranks which have appeared in recent months.

Yes, give us more Democrats in all public offices. The old bunch led us into the mess we're in, and should not have the opportunity to get us in any deeper. From here on, the people must put the government and the recovery measures particularly, in the hands of friends.

The present CWA mess, waste, and inefficiency in Los Angeles county (not to mention others) shows what will happen when you intrust the New Deal to the Old Dealers.

DANCE SUCCESSFUL

COSTA MESA, Jan. 15.—The dance sponsored by the Altar society of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel on Saturday night at the Woman's clubhouse was very successful, according to those in charge. The Alexander orchestra from Santa Ana furnished the music. Mrs. W. F. Strain is president of the society.

BUENA PARK, Jan. 15.—Organization of a cub troop of Scouts took place at the Scout troop meeting Friday evening. Members of the troop are Lawrence Rayburn, Gordon Stewart, J. F. Overstreet, Robert Rodabaugh, Stanley Brown, Bill and John Caplinger, John and Don Larsen, Robert Dukes, Cleo Hunter, Jack Smith, Henry Moromota, Fred McKenzie, Richard Brown and Carl Gibson. Knot tying contests and volley ball were enjoyed by the Scout members during the evening. The new Scout committee of the Kiwanis club consists of Ralph M. Cummings, Ed. Marxen, Fred R. Dukes, W. D. Cannon and R. N. Nelson.

AUXILIARY MEETS

They claim they are scared about sound money, but what is sound money?

Bankers Branded Narrow

"Your wife may have thought she looked very grand 10 years ago in a new outfit of clothes. But you wouldn't like it if she wore them today. What was sound money yesetrday is not necessarily sound money today, or tomorrow.

"Bankers are narrow. They move in a narrow circle, and do not have contacts with the mass of the people. I am still perfectly willing to leave the money matter to the president, who hears all sides. He is in a better position than the average banker to know what is sound money today."

"Many industries are 'up in the air' about the effects of codes," said George T. Ladd, president of the United Engineering and Foundry Co., "but they are willing to try anything that promises to lead us out of the dire condition of the last three years.

"Iron and steel, coal and oil, have in a measure secured stabilization of prices and aid in elimination of unfair competition and chiseling."

The easing up of a very heavy relief burden tells the same story of progress in this area. On May 15 last, there were 74,244 Allegheny county families on the relief rolls. On Nov. 15, just before the CWA work went into effect, there were 63,045.

Inasmuch as 7300 have been given CWA work in the Pittsburgh district, this burden must have fallen appreciably since.

CWA work here is of a more profitable character than in some cities. For instance, 1200 men are to go to work in western Pennsylvania sealing up the mouths of abandoned mines, which should improve the water for drinking, washing and fishing over a large part of the state.

May Complete Tower

The Tower of Learning of the University of Pittsburgh, which has stood, uncompleted, a gaunt steel skeleton, for many months, may be finished partly, using materials already on the ground, and CWA labor.

NRA complaince, generally speaking, has been good, according to Frank Harper, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

"There have been altogether some 1400 complaints under the blanket code," Harper says. "Many of these were merely trivial or obviously due to misunderstanding.

"One thing that impressed us was the shabby appearance of many smal lemployers who obviously wanted to comply, but who looked as though they themselves ought to be on the breadline. Yet only about 100 asked for relief or special dispensations under the blanket code.

"We have not yet found a single case that we believed justified removal of the Blue Eagle."

The cleaning and dyeing industry, which was in danger of falling into the hands of racketeers here, is reported by Harper as much improved. The labor board, which did not begin to function until late last year, helped avert a dozen strikes.

Trouble in Restaurants

One of the sorest spots here, as elsewhere, is the restaurant business. There are supposed to be 6000 restaurants in Allegheny county, far too many, and there is no doubt that many of them continue to chisel, especially the small ones.

But R. L. Gammon, president of the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association, insists that "anyone can make money under NRA wages if he will raise his prices enough to cover increased costs. Many small restaurant proprietors did not realize they would have to do this, or could not do it."

The "show me" attitude is best reflected by E. T. Weir, president of National Steel, who in his annual report to stockholders, points out that "precedent has disappeared almost entirely from present-day calculations. Change is in the air.

'Industry definitely and voluntarily has assumed new responsibilities. A new plane of industrial relations is more than a reasonable expectancy. . . . . It is yet to be proved that prosperity can be arrived at via legislation."

NEXT: Conclusions.

REV. C. M. AKER GIVES REVIVAL OPENING TALK

Rev. C. M. Aker, pastor of the Spurgeon Memorial church, preached the opening sermon of the two weeks revival campaign which begins at that church tonight. His topic was "The Greatest Work in the World." He used as a text the incident of the personal dealing of Philip with the eunuch as given in the eighth chapter of Acts.

He said in part:

"One of America's greatest preachers, Henry Ward Beecher, said 'the longer I live the more confidence I have in those sermons preached where one man is the minister and one man is the congregation.' His father, also, one of the great preachers, when asked how it was that he had so many converts in his ministry said, 'it is not I that do it; it is my Church. I preach on Sunday as hard as I can, and then I have 400 members who go out and preach every day in the week. That is the way with God's blessing, we get along so well.'

"I am sure that it is just that sort of thing that is very much needed in this day. I know we have got to have a good quality of preaching on Sunday, but unless we can follow it up with personal dealing with individuals about their particular doubts and problems as we meet each other along the way during the week we shall never get very far toward evangelizing the world.

"We acknowledge this fact theoretically, but to get people to practice it, is very difficult. There seems to be an aversion on the part of many preachers and people to undertake this sort of work. We can do public preaching so much easier than we can talk with people about their personal sins and their personal problems in Christian living.

"We can open our mouths when it comes to gossiping about our neighbors, or criticising the preacher, or talking about the problems of politics and economics, but when it comes to speaking to people personally about that most fundamental and needful thing, their religious problems, many Christian people are silent as the grave. One of the most prevalent and deadly diseases among church people these days is spiritual lockjaw.

"This aversion to speaking to people, personally, about their religious problems is astonishing in the face of the example of Jesus Christ, who left on record a very few public discourses but at least 20 cases of personal dealing with people in regard to their salvation. The gospel records are full of personal interviews with people like Nicodemus, the scholar; the woman at the well, the adultress; Zacheus, the business man; Matthew, the tax collector.

"This also was the method that his first disciples followed. While it is true we have the one great sermon publicly preached by Peter and a few discourses by Paul and others, yet even these would have been largely lost if they had not followed up with personal dealings.

"A very illuminating illustration of this is recorded in the incident of Philip and his personal dealings with the eunuch from Ethiopia, as give nin the eighth chapter of Acts. He was obedient to the guidance of the Holy Spirit and tactful in his approach, and faithful to the deepest needs of this great seeker after salvation.

"The joyful result of this interview to this official himself and to the spread of the gospel throughout his country, eternity alone will reveal. How pathetic and tragic would have been the result if Philip had not dealt personally that day with this seeker after God. How tragic the failure of many of our most influential followers of Christ today who fail to follow the example of this great layman in the early church."

Editor Register:

When a dozen Republicans in Orange county get jobs with the Federal Land Bank as appraisers, etc., that isn't news.

But when two Democrats secure jobs in the CWA, THAT'S NEWS, and the local weekly, owned by a prominent Republican of Anaheim, recently ran a front-page yarn about the subject and also hinted about a possible rift in Democratic ranks locally.

The funny part about it is that Ramsey was appointed CWA administrator by a non-partisan committee of seven, of whom six are Republicans, and Berry received his original appointment in the CWA from the Republican head of county relief work.

So it seems the Republicans are still enough in control in Orange county, despite the public's overwhelming support for President Roosevelt's administration, to largely dictate political appointments. Perhaps it's about time, as the local weekly says, that the "Democrats have decided to take over every thing they can get their hands on politically."

Unless the President's friends are in charge of his recovery program—and that means Democrats—we can't expect the same unanimously loyal effort the country needs at this time.

Instead of attempting to create a split in Democratic ranks by mentioning "younger" and "older" Democrats, the Loudon-Stanton-Schumacher Republicans might better be trying to patch up the rift in the G. O. P. ranks and prevent the wholesale desertions from the ranks which have appeared in recent months.

Yes, give us more Democrats in all public offices. The old bunch led us into the mess we're in, and should not have the opportunity to get us in any deeper. From here on, the people must put the government and the recovery measures particularly, in the hands of friends.

The present CWA mess, waste, and inefficiency in Los Angeles county (not to mention others) shows what will happen when you intrust the New Deal to the Old Dealers.

14 PROJECTS OF CWA OPERATING HERE BY FRIDAY

With the addition of a project in painting at the city garage and another of installing additional manholes in the municipal sewer system, the city of Santa Ana will have 14 CWA projects operating by Friday, it was announced today by City Engineer J. L. McBride.

Only two Santa Ana projects have not been approved by CWA officials, the plan of moving the bandstand and restrooms in Birch Park to a new building in the western end of the park, and the plan proposed by the police department to start civil fingerprinting of citizens. It is possible that the Birch Park proposal can be resubmitted with altered plans and be approved. A third project, that of installing additional fire alarm boxes on the outskirts of the city, has been approved but work may not start until after Friday.

The project of building The Barn for the Community Players on city property at Twentieth and Main streets has been approved but nothing definite will be done at present because the project could not be finished by February 15.

McBride sent in orders today for men to work on the sewer and painting project. The manhole project calls for an expenditure of $850 in labor and $660 in materials, of which the city furnishes $400 and the CWA $220. The painting job and work of installing drainage facilities at the city garage will employ three carpenters and three laborers until about February 15. Labor will cost $1000 and the CWA will appropriate $450 for materials.

The new project of building sheds for two fire stations and a fire drill tower is well started and the workshop at the Cypress street station is about two-thirds finished, McBride said. The workmen will move to the West Third street station about Thursday and then build the fire tower on West Walnut sreet when that shop is completed.

The crews constructing curb returns on Fairview are expected to finish their work on the 27 corners today and will move to some other street where the cement curbings are too sharp. Trouble is still being experienced with children who persist in marking up the fresh cement, McBride said, and the co-operation of neighbors and parents is asked to stop this practice. Special police officers will be detailed to guard the jobs if necessary.

The city school project of painting and reconstructing is progressing steadily in the six schools and board of education administration building. This calls for an appropriation of $3400 for labor, $750 from the CWA for materials and $260 from the city for materials.

The list of Santa Ana projects which will be carried on by Friday include the building of sewer manholes, painting of city yards, building the fire workshops and drill tower, erection of the horseshoe club, grubbing stumps in the city dump, cleaning of weeds and gutters, surveying of bench marks, installing curb returns, building of foundations at Olive street bowl, improving city parks, tree trimming, traffic census, rodent control, and work in city schools.

COLDS GO THROUGH 3 STAGES!

And They are Far Easier Stopped in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete — it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.—Adv.

SEVEN INJURED IN SERIES OF AUTO WRECKS

Heavy fogs in all parts of Orange county over the week end was responsible for most of the six accidents reported to authorities, in which seven persons were hurt.

Three Escondido motorists, Hattie De Soto, 40, Fred De Soto, 31, and Ancito Lumaumoa, 24, received lacerations and serious injuries about 3 a. m. today when their car ran off the road near San Clemente in the fog. They were brought to the Orange County hospital for treatment and are confined there.

Cecil Zimmerman, 31, and his sister, Maude Zimmerman, 35, both of El Monte, were involved in a spectacular wreck about 7:30 this morning when their car skidded on wet pavement and crashed into a service station at Huntington Beach boulevard and Seventeenth street. Zimmerman failed to see the intersection in the fog and applied his brakes suddenly to slow down. The car skidded across the highway and broke off a large gasoline pump. The car door came open and he was thrown directly over the spurting gasoline and was completely drenched. His sister received a cut over the eye but did not require hospital treatment.

Harry Prichard, 51, 1105 Poinsettia street, Santa Ana traffic officer had a narrow escape from serious injury at 12:05 a. m. Sunday when his car overturned at Tenth and Main streets. Prichard was turning to the right from Main street and a car driven by F. A. Burkett, 2311 Santiago street, is said to have started to pass on the right when Burkett failed to see Prichard's signal. The impact turned the Prichard sedan over on its top but the officer received only injuries to his elbow.

Howard Youngberg, 25, 511 South Broadway, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital Saturday afternoon after he received a fractured leg in an automobile wreck in Huntington Beach. Youngberg was cranking his car on Main street when the other car struck him.

A dense patch of fog caused a wreck at 7:45 a. m. today when cars driven by H. B. Henderson, 32, 1009 Oak street, collided with a car driven by A. Nelson, 27, Los Angeles, on Dyer road near Main street. Henderson reported that he was passing a truck when a car loomed up in the fog. Unable to turn to the right because of the truck, he swerved to the left and was struck by the other car. Henderson received slight injuries.

No one was hurt Saturday at 7:30 p. m. when cars driven by Melvin E. De Loge, 821 North Garnsey street and H. C. Parsons, 311 South Howard street, Fullerton at Ross and Eighth street.

SIXTH HOME IS RANSACKED BY BURGLARS

Striking at the sixth Santa Ana home in four days, thieves entered the home of R. G. McFadden, 934 Fairview street, Saturday evening and stole clothing, bedding, rugs, linen and other household articles, valued at more than $125.

Police believe that the same persons robbed the McFadden home as the house of Fred C. Wahl, 1330 South Broadway, which was entered last Tuesday and robbed of bedding, dishes, linens, furniture and other articles, valued at more than $100. Neighbors saw a woman at the Wahl home and a car parked in front of the house but no one was noticed near the McFadden residence.

A screen on a rear window was cut so that an unlocked window could be opened at the McFadden home, sometime between 5:45 and 8:40 p. m. Included in the loot was tablecloths, radio and dresser scarves, Oriental rug, vase, velvet pillow, lamp, perfume and atomizer, two blankets, four dresses, men's dresing gown, and four shirts.

14 PROJECTS OF CWA OPERATING HERE BY FRIDAY

With the addition of a project in painting at the city garage and another of installing additional manholes in the municipal sewer system, the city of Santa Ana will have 14 CWA projects operating by Friday, it was announced today by City Engineer J. L. McBride.

Only two Santa Ana projects have not been approved by CWA officials, the plan of moving the bandstand and restrooms in Birch Park to a new building in the western end of the park, and the plan proposed by the police department to start civil fingerprinting of citizens. It is possible that the Birch Park proposal can be resubmitted with altered plans and be approved. A third project, that of installing additional fire alarm boxes on the outskirts of the city, has been approved but work may not start until after Friday.

The project of building The Barn for the Community Players on city property at Twentieth and Main streets has been approved but nothing definite will be done at present because the project could not be finished by February 15.

McBride sent in orders today for men to work on the sewer and painting project. The manhole project calls for an expenditure of $850 in labor and $660 in materials, of which the city furnishes $400 and the CWA $220. The painting job and work of installing drainage facilities at the city garage will employ three carpenters and three laborers until about February 15. Labor will cost $1000 and the CWA will appropriate $450 for materials.

The new project of building sheds for two fire stations and a fire drill tower is well started and the workshop at the Cypress street station is about two-thirds finished, McBride said. The workmen will move to the West Third street station about Thursday and then build the fire tower on West Walnut sreet when that shop is completed.

The crews constructing curb returns on Fairview are expected to finish their work on the 27 corners today and will move to some other street where the cement curbings are too sharp. Trouble is still being experienced with children who persist in marking up the fresh cement, McBride said, and the co-operation of neighbors and parents is asked to stop this practice. Special police officers will be detailed to guard the jobs if necessary.

The city school project of painting and reconstructing is progressing steadily in the six schools and board of education administration building. This calls for an appropriation of $3400 for labor, $750 from the CWA for materials and $260 from the city for materials.

The list of Santa Ana projects which will be carried on by Friday include the building of sewer manholes, painting of city yards, building the fire workshops and drill tower, erection of the horseshoe club, grubbing stumps in the city dump, cleaning of weeds and gutters, surveying of bench marks, installing curb returns, building of foundations at Olive street bowl, improving city parks, tree trimming, traffic census, rodent control, and work in city schools.

HEADS NOBLES

SEVEN INJURED IN SERIES OF AUTO WRECKS

Heavy fogs in all parts of Orange county over the week end was responsible for most of the six accidents reported to authorities, in which seven persons were hurt.

Three Escondido motorists, Hattie De Soto, 40, Fred De Soto, 31, and Ancito Lumaumoa, 24, received lacerations and serious injuries about 3 a. m. today when their car ran off the road near San Clemente in the fog. They were brought to the Orange County hospital for treatment and are confined there.

Cecil Zimmerman, 31, and his sister, Maude Zimmerman, 35, both of El Monte, were involved in a spectacular wreck about 7:30 this morning when their car skidded on wet pavement and crashed into a service station at Huntington Beach boulevard and Seventeenth street. Zimmerman failed to see the intersection in the fog and applied his brakes suddenly to slow down. The car skidded across the highway and broke off a large gasoline pump. The car door came open and he was thrown directly over the spurting gasoline and was completely drenched. His sister received a cut over the eye but did not require hospital treatment.

Harry Prichard, 51, 1105 Poinsettia street, Santa Ana traffic officer had a narrow escape from serious injury at 12:05 a. m. Sunday when his car overturned at Tenth and Main streets. Prichard was turning to the right from Main street and a car driven by F. A. Burkett, 2311 Santiago street, is said to have started to pass on the right when Burkett failed to see Prichard's signal. The impact turned the Prichard sedan over on its top but the officer received only injuries to his elbow.

Howard Youngberg, 25, 511 South Broadway, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital Saturday afternoon after he received a fractured leg in an automobile wreck in Huntington Beach. Youngberg was cranking his car on Main street when the other car struck him.

A dense patch of fog caused a wreck at 7:45 a. m. today when cars driven by H. B. Henderson, 32, 1009 Oak street, collided with a car driven by A. Nelson, 27, Los Angeles, on Dyer road near Main street. Henderson reported that he was passing a truck when a car loomed up in the fog. Unable to turn to the right because of the truck, he swerved to the left and was struck by the other car. Henderson received slight injuries.

No one was hurt Saturday at 7:30 p. m. when cars driven by Melvin E. De Loge, 821 North Garnsey street and H. C. Parsons, 311 South Howard street, Fullerton at Ross and Eighth street.

COLDS GO THROUGH 3 STAGES!

And They are Far Easier Stopped in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete — it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.—Adv.

SIXTH HOME IS RANSACKED BY BURGLARS

Striking at the sixth Santa Ana home in four days, thieves entered the home of R. G. McFadden, 934 Fairview street, Saturday evening and stole clothing, bedding, rugs, linen and other household articles, valued at more than $125.

Police believe that the same persons robbed the McFadden home as the house of Fred C. Wahl, 1330 South Broadway, which was entered last Tuesday and robbed of bedding, dishes, linens, furniture and other articles, valued at more than $100. Neighbors saw a woman at the Wahl home and a car parked in front of the house but no one was noticed near the McFadden residence.

A screen on a rear window was cut so that an unlocked window could be opened at the McFadden home, sometime between 5:45 and 8:40 p. m. Included in the loot was tablecloths, radio and dresser scarves, Oriental rug, vase, velvet pillow, lamp, perfume and atomizer, two blankets, four dresses, men's dresing gown, and four shirts.

AN IDEA ON HORSES

Before the closing of nominations for the Kentucky Derby, Tom Kearney, St. Louis future bookmaker, offered 40 to 1 against such nice gallopers as Red Wagon, Black Buddy, Bonanza, Sergt. Byrne, Wise Daughter, and Collateral...and 30 to 1 against High Quest, First Minstrel, Discovery, Jabot, Soon Over, Hadagal, and Roustabout . . . Mata Hari was his winter book favorite, the Fisher filly being offered at 15 to 1. . . . Your correspondent is making a 5-cent mind bet on First Minstrel.

AN IDEA OF AGE

There seems to be some doubt about the age of H. Chandler Egan, who is one of the members of our Walker Cup team this year . . . one record book states he was born in Chicago in 1884 . . . his years have been given as all the way from 50 to 55 . . . but it seems that I remember his name included among a group of Sunday golfers arrested in Albany, N. Y., according to the New Netherland Register of May, 1811 . . . which would make him nearly as old as Jack Quinn, the venerable pitcher who wintered with Washington at Valley Forge.

This H. Chandler Egan, however, is the same man who rudely shoved Open Champion Johnny Goodman out of the National Amateur tournament at Cincinnati last year.

PARKER'S IDEA OF TENNIS

Frankie Parker, hailed as a coming champion on the courts, has very definite views . . . after he finishes at Lawrenceville he will go to Princeton, where he will continue to play tennis . . . after he is through with Princeton he will go into business . . . young Mr. Parker does not think much of tennis as a racket.

TILDEN'S IDEA OF MONEY

Bill Tilden, who did not think much of amateur tennis as a racket after he had played it 50 or so, says the Davis Cup is worth from $60,000 to $100,000 to the possessor nation. . . . Bill offers in substantiation the figure $500,000 as the gross intake on the Wimbledon tournament, pointing out that a few years ago, the sum of $300,000 was refunded to ticket applicants who could not be accommodated.

IDEA OF DANGER

Football is the most dangerous of the games, with horse polo next and wrestling after that, says Floyd R. Eastwood, instructor in New York university who has counted bashed noses and broken limbs during the last three years . . . for every million students in colleges and high schools in the United States, five are killed on the gridiron . . . the casualty rate for horse polo is about half that, according to Eastwood . . . only two college football players were killed last year, neither during an actual game.

Here's the infield of Connie Mack's "wrecked" ball club. . . . Foxx, left, is hitting . . . Williams, center above, will play second. . . . DEMPSEY SPLIT WITH HOFFMAN TO FREE BAER?

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—There seemed some reason to believe today that Jack Dempsey is preparing to sell his share of Max Baer, the young man who will be the heavyweight challenger in a few months, provided they can find him.

If the deal is made, Madison Square Garden will be the buyer and the price will be "at the market," meaning that Dempsey will get no more than the Garden is willing to give.

The sum of $25,000 was mentioned in my hearing, but the point is whether it also was mentioned in Dempsey's. After all, I'm not selling the fighter.

If Dempsey bows out, it will mean that Baer and Primo Carnera will be matched immediately for the heavyweight championship at the Garden Bowl the last week in June. It probably also will mean that stories about an estrangement between Dempsey and Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, have the verity of fact.

It was Hoffman who arranged the recent conference between Dempsey and President Kilpatrick of the Garden, his idea being to discharge an obligation to Dempsey and, at the same time, do himself no lasting harm. Hoffman has been hovering in the background, picking up the debris, while Baer was edifying the drama and other things but there isn't much in that—for Mr. Hoffman—and, the Baer-Carnera fight ought to do at least $300,000.

Moreover, the manager is understood to have resented Dempsey's attempt last week to persuade the fighter that there are two kinds of dressing rooms and that he was in the other one, with the result, they say, that Dempsey probably will welcome a chance to get out.

And, if you don't think he'd welcome that money, you're crazy.

SURVEYING CURRENT SPORTS IN COMPANY WITH M'LEMORE

BY HENRY M'LEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Putting the sports shot here and there:

Ted McGrew, National league umpire, has asked for his unconditional release so that he may devote all his time to running a tavern in Indianapolis. A former army chief, Ted is making plenty of money with beer and his specialty, spareribs. . . . . Two successful Ohio college basketball coaches are no older than some of their players. . . . . Tay Brown, former All-American tackle at U. S. C., who coaches at Cincinnati U. is 21, and Lou Tschudi of the University of Dayton is still an undergraduate. . . . . Joseph Dougherty, midshipman from the Philadelphia, is one of the few men in the history of the naval academy to be captain to two varsity teams. He is captain of the 125-pound wrestling team and has just been elected soccer leader for the next year. . . . .

When the handicap committee of U. S. Polo association placed Elmer Boeseke of California and Cecil Smith of Texas in Tommy Hitchcock's class, it marked the first time in history of the sport in this country that polo has ten-goal players. . . . . Football, polo and wrestling, in the order named, are the most dangerous of sports, according to F. R. Eastwood, New York university injury specialist. . . . . "Cotton" Warburton, U. S. C.'s All-America quarterback, acts as water boy for the Trojan basketball team. . . . . This puts the Trojan five in a class with Marquette's football team, which has Ralph Metcalfe as water bearer. . . . .

Percy Beard of the New York Athletic club, one of the greatest hurdlers of all time, has announced his retirement. . . . . George Dunlap, U. S. National amateur golf champion, took up the game at the age of three. . . . . On the other hand, Walter Travers didn't become interested in the game until he was 35. . . . All of which proves something, I'm sure. . . . . Babe Ruth hasn't much right to complain over that $35,000 salary he'll draw next year. The Babe is almost through as a ball player, yet he still will be the highest paid performer under the bix tent. . . . . And remember, too, that Christy Mathewson never got more than $10,000 for a season, nor did Hans Wagner. . . . .

The California state racing commission has accepted the application of Hal Roach, motion picture producer, and R. Charles Strub, 'Frisco sportsman, to build a track on an old ranch at Arcadia. . . . . The Indianapolis speedway corporation will again offer $100,000 in prize money this year. It was cut 10 per cent last year. . . . . Glenn Curtis, coach of the Martinsville high school basketball team, Indiana state champs in 1933, attributes his success to the fact that he and his associates traveled 15,000 miles last season to scout the opposition. . . . .

If you are preparing to shed tears for Connie Mack because he "wrecked" his ball club by selling "Lefty" Grove and a few other bits of baseball baggage, save them. All is not lost.

The wrecking exercise conducted by Mack recently was not so disastrous as appeared at first. Looking carefully over the men he sold and those he kept, it begins to appear that he parted with only two very useful men, Grove and Cochrane.

Earnshaw, Walberg and Bishop contributed very little to the success of the A's last year.

* * *

Depending almost entirely on a young team he had thrown together last spring, Mack moved into the closing month of the campaign with the best club in the league in point of all around performance. The first of September found the A's in fourth place, five games behind the Indians. The club gained nine full games on Cleveland, finishing third.

An example of the Mack managerial acumen is furnished by statistics which show that the A's made 25 more runs all season than Washington, the pennant winner, while making 67 fewer hits. Jimmy Foxx's 48 home runs also must be figured in that reckoning.

But the outlook for 1934 is not so bleak as it was in 1914 when Mack really did toss his team to the winds. With an infield and outfield such as he has, Mack needs only one first class pitcher to make trouble all year in the first division.

* * *

There's Foxx at first, the greatest hitter in the game. Frank Higgins, kid third baseman, hit 314 in his first year of big league competition and is figured to be on the way to becoming the best third baseman in the league. McNair at short has established himself as a star, and if Williams can return to his 1931 form at second base, there simply won't be any infield problem for the A's.

The outfield is settled. Roger Cramer in centerfield has come through as one of the best in the league. Bob Johnson, in left, besides being a ball hawk of the Charley Jamieson order, is one of the league's most dangerous and timely hitters. Right field will be divided between Big Ed Coleman, "Bing" Miller and Lou Finney.

The A's need a first class pitcher. One of a number of young men who toiled promisingly during the last month of the 1933 season may arise to fill this need. The backbone of the staff may be regarded as Mahaffey, a veteran; Big Bob Kline, obtained from Boston, and Merritt Cain, who won 13 and lost 12 for the A's last year. Kline, who won seven while losing eight for the seventh place Red Sox last year, should win between 15 and 20 games for a club like the A's.

* * *

Claset, McKeithan, young Ray Cooms, Dietrich and Marcum showed at intervals last year that they knew what it was all about. Mack is pretty certain to concentrate on these and other young pitchers when training begins at Fort Myers, Fla., the first of March.

No less astute an authority than Babe Ruth believes that despite the sale of Grove and Cochrane, the A's will be the team to beat for the pennant this year. Ruth likes the young pitchers introduced by Mack in the last few weeks of the 1933 drive.

The catching corps, consisting of Berry, Madjeski and Hayes, is not so hot, but there are several signal departments in the league no better.

Inter-Nation Golf Series Scheme Told

DEL MONTE, Jan. 15. (UP)—Plans for an international golfing tournament for a trophy similar in purpose to the Davis Cup in the world of tennis were announced today by the "International Team Championship Tournament Committee."

Jack Neville, secretary, said that other members of the committee were Grantland Rice and Robert Edgren, nationally known sports writers; W. W. Campbell; Dr. Paul M. Hunter; and H. Chandler Egan, winner of the National amateur title 20 years ago.

Egan, Medford, Ore., and Del Monte sportsman, donated the trophy for which four-man amateur teams from various nations would compete.

The first international tournament for the Egan trophy would be held at Pebble Beach March 1 to 4 this year.

BEARS IN EASY WIN OVER S. C. PRO TEAM, 26-7

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—A Los Angeles football citizenry which perennially claims American gridiron supremacy for the Pacific slopes surrendered that title today to "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears.

Grange and his professional cohorts tore through Ernie Pinckert's Southern California All-stars for a 26-7 victory. The contest generally was conceded about the finest exhibition of football ever seen here.

Grange threw off the wraps. He carried the ball only three times in the opening period but two times he scored on sensational plays. He scored the first touchdown on a 67-yard run that was well under way before Pinckert's squad knew who had the ball. Hardly had the All-stars recovered from their surprise than the redhead again was away for a score, this time on a pass from Brambaugh. Not a hand touched him as he ran 50 yards to the goal line.

The All-stars penetrated Chicago's defense for a score in the second quarter. Russ Saunders, perhaps the best quarterback ever developed at Southern California, led the drive almost single-handed, passing and plunging 70 yards to a score.

Battles, substituting at half for Grange, accounted for the third Chicago score in the third when he broke through the line for a 40-yard gallop. Ronzani added the final counter by snagging a pass and speeding 35 yards to the goal.

PURDUE TAKES LEAD IN BIG TEN CHASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(INS)—Emerging from the week end round of battles in sole possession of first place in the Western conference championship race, the Purdue basketball team goes after its fourth Big Ten victory tonight at Madison, Wis., against the Wisconsin five.

Three other conference games are on the evening's program with Illinois playing Iowa at the latter's stronghold, Indiana playing at Ohio State and Michigan facing Northwestern at Evanston.

Indiana, Purdue and Iowa went into Saturday night's games undefeated, but Purdue defeated the Hoosiers at Bloomington, 47 to 13, and Iowa further simplified the leadership by falling an unexpected prey to Minnesota by a one-point margin, 39 to 38.

Illinois whipped Chicago, 32 to 26; Northwestern strengthened its position with a 32 to 25 victory over its co-champions of last year, Ohio State, and Wisconsin gave Michigan its second defeat, 34 to 23.

NOTRE DAME HEROES OF PAST ASSEMBLE

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 15. —(INS)—Ten of the eleven members of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen" football team of a decade ago were gathered today for a testimonial dinner tonight in honor of the 1933 football team.

The original horsemen backfield of Knute Rockne's selection remained intact with Fullback Elmer Layden, new head football coach at Notre Dame; Halfbacks Jimmy Crowley and Don Miller, and Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback.

Crowley, now head football coach at Fordham, will act as toastmaster.

Santa Ana Hi's surprising basketball team returned home from San Diego today to find itself right in the thick of a wide open scramble for the Coast Preparatory league championship.

Defeating San Diego, 24-22, in the second of a two game series ending Saturday, the Saints maintained their .500 rating which is as good as any school in the conference can boast except Glendale—Santa Ana's next opponent.

The Santa Anans go to Glendale Friday night, and play the Dynamiters on the Saint floor again Saturday night. Glendale went into first place last weekend by hammering out a pair of decisive victories over Pasadena, which split two tussles with Santa Ana.

Santa Ana's 24-22 win at San Diego came after one of the roughest struggles played in the border city gymnasium for several years. The officials called 25 personal fouls. The Hillers lost both their regular guards on four personals, and Santa Ana had to get along without Walt Hendrie, one of its premier forwards.

Except for the first few minutes of play, Santa Ana had a slender point edge throughout. Coach Reese Greene's men played a better defensive game than the night before when they were outscored 30-22, and held flashy "Pudgy" Gentles, San Diego's best shooter, to two points. The Saints led at the first quarter, 6-4, at half-time 12-8, and were still in front, 17-14, at the end of three quarters. The Hillers could pick up only one point in a spirited final stanza.

"Feet" Wiemer, Saint center, was high point man of the contest, and also played the best all-around game.

The line-up:

Santa Ana (24)		(22) San Diego
Levens (6)	F	(11) Britt
Hendrie (7)	F	(2) Gentles
Wiemer (8)	C	(3) Hendry

San Diego—Sexton for Britt, Mendez for Gentles, Johnson for Hendry, Petruzelli for Day, Hendry for Chase.

WOOLEN MILLS FIVE BEATS BRUIN FROSH

In a preliminary to the U. C. L. A.-Stanford basketball game Saturday night, Santa Ana Woolen Mills team of the Y. M. C. A. Commercial league defeated the U. C. L. A. freshmen, 18-12. The Westwood team employed mostly reserves but an experienced lineup that made Santa Ana's victory an impressive one. Johnson of the Santa Anans took high scoring honors with 11 points. The lineups:

Woolen Mills (18)	(12) U.C.L.A. Frosh
Stephens	F (2) Gonzales
White (3)	F (2) Olson
Johnson (11)	C (2) Tunney
Matzen	G (2) Harris
Fixel (2)	G (3) Emory

Substitutions
Woolen Mills—Dean (2), Chesney.
U. C. L. A.—Robinson (3).

SIX CONSIDERED AS DARTMOUTH COACH

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—(INS)—Five western coaches, and one representing the East, were mentioned today as the group from which the Dartmouth college athletic council, meeting here secretly, would eventually announce as the new football mentor for the 1934 Indians to succeed Jackson Cannell, resigned.

The group has reliably reported to include J. J. Vandergraf, formerly head coach of Colorado; Gus Dorais, Detroit; Bernie Bierman, Minnesota; Ike Armstrong, Utah; Dr. Clarence Spears, Wisconsin, and Dick Harlow of Western Maryland.

BAKER, GRIFFITH S. A. GOLF VICTORS

George Baker and T. R. Griffith jr. won best-ball sweepstakes at the Santa Ana Country club by one stroke yesterday. They scored 73-7-66.

W. S. Wallace and F. E. Farnsworth, 77-10-67, and R. A. Emison and R. O. Winkler, 78-9-67, tied for second place.

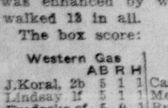
San Bernardino 30, Fullerton 29.
Santa Ana, bye.

This Week's Games
Pomona at Santa Ana; Fullerton at Riverside; Citrus at San Bernardino; Chaffey, bye.

If scores of the first round are any criterion, the Eastern division of the Southern California jaysee association will experience its closest basketball race this season.

While Santa Ana's Dons were enjoying a much-needed bye Saturday evening, Riverside was scared but won from Pomona, 44-42, San Bernardino edged out Fullerton's defending champions, 30-29, and Chaffey swamped Citrus, 51-20.



Six colleges, including Santa Ana, loom as title contenders, with Coach Al Clayes and his Azusa Owls the only team apparently out of the '34 scramble.

On account of the Santa Ana-Glendale high school game here next Saturday, Coach Bill Cook's Dons probably will open their season with Pomona in Andrews gymnasium Friday night. Cook has conferred with I. H. Van Cleave, Pomona coach, and the conflict was expected to be smoothed out today.

Odds are against Santa Ana starting off with a victory, since Pomona displayed unexpected strength in holding Riverside's tall aggregation to a 44-42 win. Their scoring star, Troy Porterfield, registered 14 points against the Bengals, and undoubtedly will bother the Santa Anans, who have yet to show the form that would entitle them to consideration as title contenders.

The downfall of Fullerton was one of the surprises of the opening round, although San Bernardino was known to possess a strong team.

MAY COME BACK

The new Yale coach may be T. A. D. "Tad" Jones, above. Jones, brother of Howard Jones, Southern California character builder, is a Yale man and former coach of the Bulldog.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15.—(INS)—With the alumni holding indignation meetings over his possible selection as head coach of Yale football, and Acting Director Malcolm Farmer apparently refusing to consider anybody else, Tad Jones was approached today about his views on the delicate situation and he said—nothing.

He declined to discuss the matter in any way, being almost brusque in his refusal. But his friends were not so reticent.

They intimated rather broadly that the Yale Club of New York and other alumni bodies were agitating themselves to no particular purpose; that Jones, if approached with a proposition, might refuse to take up the duties he laid down some years ago to turn his attention to business.

Jones, they said, was president of a million-dollar coal corporation here and would not have sufficient time to give to the job, especially since it is expected that Yale will ask its new coach to accept the assignment on a full-time basis.

RICHFIELD OILERS ROUT S. A. HURLERS

Richfield Oil gave Western Gas its unhappiest Sunday of the Winter league baseball season at Compton yesterday, pounding three Santa Ana pitchers for a 21-2 victory.

Cliff Miller, Gordon Mallett and "Bomo" Koral, the three Western Gas throwers, were assaulted vigorously, and their ineffectiveness was enhanced by wildness. They walked 13 in all.

Dutra's Trophy Case Looted By Fairway Thief

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Olin Dutra, noted golf professional, had little to show today for his many successful expeditions on the world's fairways.

A thief broke into his home last night while Dutra and his wife were visiting in Los Angeles and stole several valuable gold cups and trophies the golfer won at home and abroad. The missing trophies included a Ryder Cup team award he won last year and a diamond-studded cup awarded him when he won the P. G. A. championship in Chicago in 1932.

City Basket Title Stake At 'Y' Tues.

Contesting for the basketball championship of the Santa Ana Commercial league, Joe's Grocery and Weber's Bakery teams clash on the Y. M. C. A. floor tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. They are respective winners of the first and second halves of the '34 schedule.

The teams will decide before game-time whether they desire a two-out-of-three game series, according to Secretary Ralph Smedley. Otherwise tomorrow's contest will determine the title. Montgomery Ward and the Woolen Mills teams will engage in an exhibition game. A nominal admission charge will be made to pay for a pennant to be awarded the Commercial league champion.

THOMSON, CREAVY IN MATCH PLAY FINALS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15. —(UP)—Shooting some of the most sensational golf ever seen on this rolling course, young Tom Creavy was five up on Jimmy Thomson, long-hitting Long Beach star, when they reached the first turn of the $4000 National match play finals today.

Creavy sank four birdies in a row to leave the robust Thomson trailing badly. The finals are over the 36-hole route.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—A handsome blond giant from Long Beach, and a bashful little veteran from Albany, N. Y., meet over this historic course today in the finals of the $4000 National match play open golf championship.

The Long Beach youngster who plays the role of the giant in this David and Goliath battle, is Jimmy Thomson, rated by many critics as the hardest driver in the golfing world.

His co-finalist, the steady, cool Tom Cleavy, 1932 P. G. A. champion, takes the part of David.

To the winner of the 36-hole final today, goes the title of National match play champion, and one of the richest purses of the California winter "gold trail."

Both waded through all opposition in the early rounds of the tournament, and came through with smashing victories in the semi-final rounds Sunday.

The Long Beach pro took the measure of Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, N. Y., 4 and 3.

Creavy, playing a steady, consistent game, sent Johnny Rogers, Denver, Colo., tournament medalist, to the galley, 3 and 2.

25 TROJANS TO GET GRIDIRON NUMERALS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—Twenty-five University of Southern California football men have been awarded "S. C." monograms for their playing during the 1933 season. Presentation of sweaters will be made at the annual football banquet to be held within the next few weeks.

Nine seniors were voted gold footballs and life passes to all S. C. athletic events for having won letters during all three of their varsity seasons. The life-pass men were Captain Ford Palmer, Hollywood; Larry Stevens, Piedmont; Aaron Rosenberg, Los Angeles; Curt Youel, Santa Ana; Bob McNeish, Van Nuys; Homer Griffith, Los Angeles; Gordon Clark, South Pasadena; John Dye, Los Angeles, and Bob Erskine, Ottumwa, Iowa. By a special vote, McNeish was awarded a monogram for his sophomore year to make him elegible for a life pass.

The other 16 letter-winners were Julius Bescos, Huntington Park; Cal Clemens, Los Angeles; Huesston Harper, Gardena; Kenneth Bright, Ventura; Haskell Wotkyns, Alhambra; Irvine Warburton, San Diego; Cliff Propst, San Bernardino; Art Dittberner, Covina; Alvie Coughlin, Los Angeles; Herb Tatsch, Gardena; Bill Howard, Los Angeles; Francis McGinley, Orcutt; John Seixas, Alhambra; Ward Browning, Sioux City, Iowa; Frank Williamson, Pittsburg, Cal, and Kenneth Shannon, Ventura.

SAN BERNARDINO IN WIN AT FULLERTON

FULLERTON, Jan. 15.—Fullerton district junior college basketball team lost its first conference game, 30-29, to San Bernardino Saturday night at the Fullerton college gymnasium.

Arthur Nunn, Fullerton coach, used Douglas Wheeler and Louis Blose at forwards, Ralph Zwolsman at center, and Russ Chambers and Charles Durland as guards. Coach Hank Beiden used Larry Ek and Davis for forwards, Krenkler, center, and Frame, Hugh and Krum at guards.

Beiden's Indian quintet is one of the strongest threats for championship in the Eastern conference. The Yellowjackets lost most of their 1933 championship quintet through graduation.

Fullerton will play its next league game at Riverside Saturday night.

RIVERSIDE AWARDED JAYSEE RELAY MEET

Riverside junior college has been awarded the fourth annual Southern California relays, to be held on the Bengal field February 24. Fourteen jaysees and eight southern college conference schools have been invited.

There will be five divisions of competition, including junior college, southern college conference, conference freshmen, novice junior college, and open. Open events will be the 100-yard dash, four-man mile relay, broad jump, shot put, high jump, discus, pole vault and javelin.

Four types of relays in each division will be held, as well as a special 100-yard dash in the junior college novice, according to Bill Neufeld, Riverside coach in charge of arrangements. His committee, which will meet in Riverside February 1 to complete plans, consists of Bob Strehle of Pomona, Cecil Cushman of Redlands, Joe Pipal of Occidental, Layden of Cal-Tech and Ernie Payne of Chaffey.

FOUR COAST TEAMS TIED IN HOOP RACE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The four teams in the Southern division of the Coast college conference basketball series stood on an equal basis today as a result of the first series of the season.

U. S. C., after being nosed out by California in their first meeting, came back to administer a 42-19 drubbing to the Golden Bears in the second game. The Trojans held the Bears to one point in the first half.

Meantime, at Los Angeles, the U. C. L. A. team scored a one-point win over Stanford which had defeated the Bruins in their previous meeting. The score was 32-31. Johns' basket in the last 40 seconds of play decided the encounter.

WETHERELL EXTENDS L. A. NET CHAMPION

Lewis Wetherell's rapid advance toward the top flight division of Southern California tennisdom was indicated anew Sunday when the Santa Ana high school player extended to the utmost Elbert Lewis, defending champion, in a first round match of the twentieth annual Metropolitan tournament at Griffith park, Los Angeles.

Lewis, former U. C. L. A. captain and ranking player in Southern California, defeated the 17-year-old Wetherell only after two long hard sets, 6-4, 11-9.

Later, Wetherell and his doubles partner, Walt Blair of Corona, scored an easy victory over Jones and Spears.

SUTTER DOUBLES VICTOR

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 15.—(UP) — Cliff Sutter of New Orleans and Dr. Eugene MacCauliffee of New York today held the Miami-Biltmore doubles tennis title by virtue of their 2-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-0 victory yesterday over Francis Shields of New York and Ricardo Morales of Cuba in the final.

GLENDALE NEXT FOR HI CAGERS

Hooks and Slides

by Bill Braucher

AN IDEA ON HORSES

Before the closing of nominations for the Kentucky Derby, Tom Kearney, St. Louis future bookmaker, offered 40 to 1 against such nice gallopers as Red Wagon, Black Buddy, Bonanza, Sergt. Byrne, Wise Daughter, and Collateral...and 30 to 1 against High Quest, First Minstrel, Discovery, Jabot, Soon Over, Hadagal, and Roustabout . . . Mata Hari was his winter book favorite, the Fisher filly being offered at 15 to 1. . . . Your correspondent is making a 5-cent mind bet on First Minstrel.

* * *

AN IDEA OF AGE

There seems to be some doubt about the age of H. Chandler Egan, who is one of the members of our Walker Cup team this year . . . one record book states he was born in Chicago in 1884 . . . his years have been given as all the way from 50 to 55 . . . but it seems that I remember his name included among a group of Sunday golfers arrested in Albany, N. Y., according to the New Netherland Register of May, 1811 . . . which would make him nearly as old as Jack Quinn, the venerable pitcher who wintered with Washington at Valley Forge.

This H. Chandler Egan, however, is the same man who rudely shoved Open Champion Johnny Goodman out of the National Amateur tournament at Cincinnati last year.

PARKER'S IDEA OF TENNIS

Frankie Parker, hailed as a coming champion on the courts, has very definite views . . . after he finishes at Lawrenceville he will go to Princeton, where he will continue to play tennis . . . after he is through with Princeton he will go into business . . . young Mr. Parker does not think much of tennis as a racket.

TILDEN'S IDEA OF MONEY

Bill Tilden, who did not think much of amateur tennis as a racket after he had played it 50 years or so, says the Davis Cup is worth from $60,000 to $100,000 to the possessor nation. . . . Bill offers in substantiation the figure $500,000 as the gross intake on the Wimbledon tournament, pointing out that a few years ago, the sum of $300,000 was refunded to ticket applicants who could not be accommodated.

IDEA OF DANGER

Football is the most dangerous of the games, with horse polo next and wrestling after that, says Floyd R. Eastwood, instructor in New York university who has counted bashed noses and broken limbs during the last three years . . . for every million students in colleges and high schools in the United States, five are killed on the gridiron . . . the casualty rate for horse polo is about half that, according to Eastwood . . . only two college football players were killed last year, neither during an actual game.

DEMPSEY SPLIT WITH HOFFMAN TO FREE BAER?

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—There seemed some reason to believe today that Jack Dempsey is preparing to sell his share of Max Baer, the young man who will be the heavyweight challenger in a few months, provided they can find him.

If the deal is made, Madison Square Garden will be the buyer and the price will be "at the market," meaning that Dempsey will get no more than the Garden is willing to give.

The sum of $25,000 was mentioned in my hearing, but the point is whether it also was mentioned in Dempsey's. After all, I'm not selling the fighter.

If Dempsey bows out, it will mean that Baer and Primo Carnera will be matched immediately for the heavyweight championship at the Garden Bowl the last week in June. It probably also will mean that stories about an estrangement between Dempsey and Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, have the verity of fact.

It was Hoffman who arranged the recent conference between Dempsey and President Kilpatrick of the Garden, his idea being to discharge an obligation to Dempsey and, at the same time, do himself no lasting harm. Hoffman has been hovering in the background, picking up the debris, while Baer was edifying the drama and other things but there isn't much in that—for Mr. Hoffman—and, the Baer-Carnera fight ought to do at least $300,000.

Moreover, the manager is understood to have resented Dempsey's attempt last week to persuade the fighter that there are two kinds of dressing rooms and that he was in the other one, with the result, they say, that Dempsey probably will welcome a chance to get out.

And, if you don't think he'd welcome that money, you're crazy.

WHO SAID MACK WRECKED HIS BALL CLUB?

SURVEYING CURRENT SPORTS IN COMPANY WITH M'LEMORE

BY HENRY M'LEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Putting the sports shot here and there:

Ted McGrew, National league umpire, has asked for his unconditional release so that he may devote all his time to running a tavern in Indianapolis. A former army chief, Ted is making plenty of money with beer and his specialty, spareribs. . . . Two successful Ohio college basketball coaches are no older than some of their players. . . . Tay Brown, former All-American tackle at U. S. C., who coaches at Cincinnati U. is 21, and Lou Tschudi of the University of Dayton is still an undergraduate. . . . Joseph Dougherty, midshipman from the Philadelphia, is one of the few men in the history of the naval academy to be captain to two varsity teams. He is captain of the 125-pound wrestling team and has just been elected soccer leader for the next year. . . .

When the handicap committee of U. S. Polo association placed Elmer Boeseke of California and Cecil Smith of Texas in Tommy Hitchcock's class, it marked the first time in history of the sport in this country that polo has ten-goal players. . . . Football, polo and wrestling, in the order named, are the most dangerous of sports, according to F. R. Eastwood, New York university injury specialist. . . . "Cotton" Warburton, U. S. C.'s All-America quarterback, acts as water boy for the Trojan basketball team. . . . This puts the Trojan five in a class with Marquette's football team, which has Ralph Metcalfe as water bearer. . . .

Percy Beard of the New York Athletic club, one of the greatest hurdlers of all time, has announced his retirement. . . . George Dunlap, U. S. National amateur golf champion, took up the game at the age of three. . . . On the other hand, Walter Travers didn't become interested in the game until he was 35. . . . All of which proves something, I'm sure. . . . Babe Ruth hasn't much right to complain over that $35,000 salary he'll draw next year. The Babe is almost through as a ball player, yet he still will be the highest paid performer under the bix tent. . . . And remember, too, that Christy Mathewson never got more than $10,000 for a season, nor did Hans Wagner. . . .

The California state racing commission has accepted the application of Hal Roach, motion picture producer, and R. Charles Strub, 'Frisco sportsman, to build a track on an old ranch at Arcadia. . . . The Indianapolis speedway corporation will again offer $100,000 in prize money this year. It was cut 10 per cent last year. . . . Glenn Curtis, coach of the Martinsville high school basketball team, Indiana state champs in 1933, attributes his success to the fact that he and his associates traveled 15,000 miles last season to scout the opposition. . . .

If you are preparing to shed tears for Connie Mack because he "wrecked" his ball club by selling "Lefty" Grove and a few other bits of baseball baggage, save them. All is not lost.

The wrecking exercise conducted by Mack recently was not so disastrous as appeared at first. Looking carefully over the men he sold and those he kept, it begins to appear that he parted with only two very useful men, Grove and Cochrane.

Earnshaw, Walberg and Bishop contributed very little to the success of the A's last year.

* * *

Depending almost entirely on a young team he had thrown together last spring, Mack moved into the closing month of the campaign with the best club in the league in point of all around performance. The first of September found the A's in fourth place, five games behind the Indians. The club gained nine full games on Cleveland, finishing third.

An example of the Mack managerial acumen is furnished by statistics which show that the A's made 25 more runs all season than Washington, the pennant winner, while making 67 fewer hits. Jimmy Foxx's 48 home runs also must be figured in that reckoning.

But the outlook for 1934 is not so bleak as it was in 1914 when Mack really did toss his team to the winds. With an infield and outfield such as he has, Mack needs only one first class pitcher to make trouble all year in the first division.

* * *

There's Foxx at first, the greatest hitter in the game. Frank Higgins, kid third baseman, hit 314 in his first year of big league competition and is figured to be on the way to becoming the best third baseman in the league. McNair at short has established himself as a star, and if Williams can return to his 1931 form at second base, there simply won't be any infield problem for the A's.

The outfield is settled. Roger Cramer in centerfield has come through as one of the best in the league. Bob Johnson, in left, besides being a ball hawk of the Charley Jamieson order, is one of the league's most dangerous and timely hitters. Right field will be divided between Big Ed Coleman, "Bing" Miller and Lou Finney.

The A's need a first class pitcher. One of a number of young men who toiled promisingly during the last month of the 1933 season may arise to fill this need. The backbone of the staff may be regarded as Mahaffey, a veteran; Big Bob Kline, obtained from Boston, and Merritt Cain, who won 13 and lost 12 for the A's last year. Kline, who won seven while losing eight for the seventh place Red Sox last year, should win between 15 and 20 games for a club like the A's.

* * *

Claset, McKeithan, young Ray Cooms, Dietrich and Marcum showed at intervals last year that they knew what it was all about. Mack is pretty certain to concentrate on these and other young pitchers when training begins at Fort Myers, Fla., the first of March.

No less astute an authority than Babe Ruth believes that despite the sale of Grove and Cochrane, the A's will be the team to beat for the pennant this year. Ruth likes the young pitchers introduced by Mack in the last few weeks of the 1933 drive.

The catching corps, consisting of Berry, Madjeski and Hayes, is not so hot, but there are several signal departments in the league no better.

Inter-Nation Golf Series Scheme Told

DEL MONTE, Jan. 15. (UP)—Plans for an international golfing tournament for a trophy similar in purpose to the Davis Cup in the world of tennis were announced today by the "International Team Championship Tournament Committee."

Jack Neville, secretary, said that other members of the committee were Grantland Rice and Robert Edgren, nationally known sports writers; W. W. Campbell; Dr. Paul M. Hunter; and H. Chandler Egan, winner of the National amateur title 20 years ago.

Egan, Medford, Ore., and Del Monte sportsman, donated the trophy for which four-man amateur teams from various nations would compete.

The first international tournament for the Egan trophy would be held at Pebble Beach March 1 to 4 this year.

BEARS IN EASY WIN OVER S. C. PRO TEAM, 26-7

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP)—A Los Angeles football citizenry which perennially claims American gridiron supremacy for the Pacific slopes surrendered that title today to "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears.

Grange and his professional cohorts tore through Ernie Pinckert's Southern California All-stars for a 26-7 victory. The contest generally was conceded about the finest exhibition of football ever seen here.

Grange threw off the wraps. He carried the ball only three times in the opening period but two times he scored on sensational plays. He scored the first touchdown on a 67-yard run that was well under way before Pinckert's squad knew who had the ball. Hardly had the All-stars recovered from their surprise than the redhead again was away for a score, this time on a pass from Brambaugh. Not a hand touched him as he ran 50 yards to the goal line.

The All-stars penetrated Chicago's defense for a score in the second quarter. Russ Saunders, perhaps the best quarterback ever developed at Southern California, led the drive almost single-handed, passing and plunging 70 yards to a score.

Battles, substituting at half for Grange, accounted for the third Chicago score in the third when he broke through the line for a 40-yard gallop. Ronzani added the final counter by snagging a pass and speeding 35 yards to the goal.

PURDUE TAKES LEAD IN BIG TEN CHASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(INS)—Emerging from the week end round of battles in sole possession of first place in the Western conference championship race, the Purdue basketball team goes after its fourth Big Ten victory tonight at Madison, Wis., against the Wisconsin five.

Three other conference games are on the evening's program with Illinois playing Iowa at the latter's stronghold, Indiana playing at Ohio State and Michigan facing Northwestern at Evanston.

Indiana, Purdue and Iowa went into Saturday night's games undefeated, but Purdue defeated the Hoosiers at Bloomington, 47 to 13, and Iowa further simplified the leadership by falling an unexpected prey to Minnesota by a one-point margin, 39 to 38.

Illinois whipped Chicago, 32 to 26; Northwestern strengthened its position with a 32 to 25 victory over its co-champions of last year, Ohio State, and Wisconsin gave Michigan its second defeat, 34 to 23.

NOTRE DAME HEROES OF PAST ASSEMBLE

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 15.—(INS)—Ten of the eleven members of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen" football team of a decade ago were gathered today for a testimonial dinner tonight in honor of the 1933 football team.

The original horsemen backfield of Knute Rockne's selection remained intact with Fullback Elmer Layden, new head football coach at Notre Dame; Halfbacks Jimmy Crowley and Don Miller, and Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback.

Crowley, now head football coach at Fordham, will act as toastmaster.

Friday's Games

Santa Ana at Glendale; San Diego at Long Beach; Pasadena at Alhambra.

Santa Ana Hi's surprising basketball team returned home from San Diego today to find itself right in the thick of a wide open scramble for the Coast Preparatory league championship.

Defeating San Diego, 24-22, in the second of a two game series ending Saturday, the Saints maintained their .500 rating which is as good as any school in the conference can boast except Glendale—Santa Ana's next opponent.

The Santa Anans go to Glendale Friday night, and play the Dynamiters on the Saint floor again Saturday night. Glendale went into first place last week-end by hammering out a pair of decisive victories over Pasadena, which split two tussles with Santa Ana.

Santa Ana's 24-22 win at San Diego came after one of the roughest struggles played in the border city gymnasium for several years. The officials called 25 personal fouls. The Hillers lost both their regular guards on four personals, and Santa Ana had to get along without Walt Hendrie, one of its premier forwards.

Except for the first few minutes of play, Santa Ana had a slender point edge throughout. Coach Reese Greene's men played a better defensive game than the night before when they were outscored 30-22, and held flashy "Pudgy" Gentles, San Diego's best shooter, to two points. The Saints led at the first quarter, 6-4, at half-time 12-8, and were still in front, 17-14, at the end of three quarters. The Hillers could pick up only one point in a spirited final stanza.

"Feet" Wiemer, Saint center, was high point man of the contest, and also played the best all-around game.

The line-up:

Santa Ana (24)		(22) San Diego
Levens (6)	F	(11) Britt
Hendrie (7)	F	(2) Gentles
Wiemer (8)	C	(5) Hendry

SIX CONSIDERED AS DARTMOUTH COACH

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—(INS)—Five western coaches, and one representing the East, were mentioned today as the group from which the Dartmouth college athletic council, meeting here secretly, would eventually announce as the new football mentor for the 1934 Indians to succeed Jackson Cannell, resigned.

The group has reliably reported to include J. J. Vandergraf, formerly head coach of Colorado; Gus Dorais, Detroit; Bernie Bierman, Minnesota; Ike Armstrong, Utah; Dr. Clarence Spears, Wisconsin, and Dick Harlow of Western Maryland.

BAKER, GRIFFITH S. A. GOLF VICTORS

W. S. Wallace and F. E. Farnsworth, 77-10-67, and R. A. Emison and R. O. Winkler, 76-9-67, tied for second place.

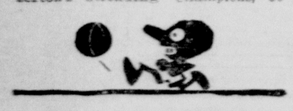
This Week's Games

Pomona at Santa Ana; Fullerton at Riverside; Citrus at San Bernardino; Chaffey, bye.

If scores of the first round are any criterion, the Eastern division of the Southern California jaysee association will experience its closest basketball race this season.

While Santa Ana's Dons were enjoying a much-needed bye Saturday evening, Riverside was scared but won from Pomona, 44-42, San Bernardino edged out Fullerton's defending champions, 30-



29, and Chaffey swamped Citrus, 51-20.

Six colleges, including Santa Ana, loom as title contenders, with Coach Al Clayes and his Azusa Owls the only team apparently out of the '34 scramble.

On account of the Santa Ana-Glendale high school game here next Saturday, Coach Bill Cook's Dons probably will open their season with Pomona in Andrews gymnasium Friday night. Cook has conferred with I. H. Van Cleave, Pomona coach, and the conflict was expected to be smoothed out today.

Odds are against Santa Ana starting off with a victory, since Pomona displayed unexpected strength in holding Riverside's tall aggregation to a 44-42 win. Their scoring star, Troy Porterfield, registered 14 points against the Bengals, and undoubtedly will bother the Santa Anans, who have yet to show the form that would entitle them to consideration as title contenders.

The downfall of Fullerton was one of the surprises of the opening round, although San Bernardino was known to possess a strong team.

MAY COME BACK

The new Yale coach may be T. A. D. "Tad" Jones, above. Jones, brother of Howard Jones, Southern California character builder, is a Yale man and former coach of the Bulldog.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15.—(INS)—With the alumni holding indignation meetings over his possible selection as head coach of Yale football, and Acting Director Malcolm Farmer apparently refusing to consider anybody else, Tad Jones was approached today about his views on the delicate situation and he said—nothing.

He declined to discuss the matter in any way, being almost brusque in his refusal. But his friends were not so reticent.

They intimated rather broadly that the Yale Club of New York and other alumni bodies were agitating themselves to no particular purpose; that Jones, if approached with a proposition, might refuse to take up the duties he laid down some years ago to turn his attention to business.

Jones, they said, was president of a million-dollar coal corporation here and would not have sufficient time to give to the job, especially since it is expected that Yale will ask its new coach to accept the assignment on a full-time basis.

THOMSON, CREAVY IN MATCH PLAY FINALS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Shooting some of the most sensational golf ever seen on this rolling course, young Tom Creavy was five up on Jimmy Thomson, long-hitting Long Beach star, when they reached the first turn of the $4000 National match play finals today.

Creavy sank four birdies in a row to leave the robust Thomson trailing badly. The finals are over the 36-hole route.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—A handsome blond giant from Long Beach, and a bashful little veteran from Albany, N. Y., meet over this historic course today in the finals of the $4000 National match play open golf championship.

The Long Beach youngster who plays the role of the giant in this David and Goliath battle, is Jimmy Thomson, rated by many critics as the hardest driver in the golfing world.

His co-finalist, the steady, cool Tom Cleavy, 1932 P. G. A. champion, takes the part of David.

To the winner of the 36-hole final today, goes the title of National match play champion, and one of the richest purses of the California winter "gold trail."

Both waded through all opposition in the early rounds of the tournament, and came through with smashing victories in the semi-final rounds Sunday.

The Long Beach pro took the measure of Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, N. Y., 4 and 3.

Creavy, playing a steady, consistent game, sent Johnny Rogers, Denver, Colo., tournament medalist, to the galley, 4 and 2.

RICHFIELD OILERS ROUT S. A. HURLERS

Richfield Oil gave Western Gas its unhappiest Sunday of the Winter league baseball season at Compton yesterday, pounding three Santa Ana pitchers for a 21-2 victory.

Cliff Miller, Gordon Mallett and "Bomo" Koral, the three Western Gas throwers, were assaulted vigorously, and their ineffectiveness was enhanced by wildness. They walked 13 in all.

The teams will decide before game-time whether they desire a two-out-of-three game series, according to Secretary Ralph Smedley. Otherwise tomorrow's contest will determine the title. Montgomery Ward and the Woolen Mills teams will engage in an exhibition game. A nominal admission charge will be made to pay for a pennant to be awarded the Commercial league champion.

Dutra's Trophy Case Looted By Fairway Thief

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Olin Dutra, noted golf professional, had little to show today for his many successful expeditions on the world's fairways.

A thief broke into his home last night while Dutra and his wife were visiting in Los Angeles and stole several valuable gold cups and trophies the golfer won at home and abroad. The missing trophies included a Ryder Cup team award he won last year and a diamond-studded cup awarded him when he won the P. G. A. championship in Chicago in 1932.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—Twenty-five University of Southern California football men have been awarded "S. C." monograms for their playing during the 1933 season. Presentation of sweaters will be made at the annual football banquet to be held within the next few weeks.

By a special vote, McNeish was awarded a monogram for his sophomore year to make him elegible for a life pass.

The other 16 letter-winners were Julius Bescos, Huntington Park; Cal Clemens, Los Angeles; Hueston Harper, Gardena; Kenneth Bright, Ventura; Haskell Wotkyns, Alhambra; Irvine Warburton, San Diego; Cliff Propst, San Bernardino; Art Dittberner, Covina; Alvie Coughlin, Los Angeles; Herb Tatsch, Gardena; Bill Howard, Los Angeles; Francis McGinley, Orcutt; John Seixas, Alhambra; Ward Browning, Sioux City, Iowa; Frank Williamson, Pittsburg, Cal., and Kenneth Shannon, Ventura.

SAN BERNARDINO IN WIN AT FULLERTON

Arthur Nunn, Fullerton coach, used Douglas Wheeler and Louis Blose at forwards, Ralph Zwoisman at center, and Russ Chambers and Charles Durland as guards. Coach Hank Beiden used Larry Ek and Davis for forwards, Krenkler, center, and Frame Hugh and Krum at guards.

Beiden's Indian quintet is one of the strongest threats for championship in the Eastern conference. The Yellowjackets lost most of their 1933 championship quintet through graduation.

Fullerton will play its next league game at Riverside Saturday night.

FOUR COAST TEAMS TIED IN HOOP RACE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The four teams in the Southern division of the Coast college conference basketball series stood on an equal basis today as a result of the first series of the season.

U. S. C., after being nosed out by California in their first meeting, came back to administer a 42-19 drubbing to the Golden Bears in the second game. The Trojans held the Bears to one point in the first half.

Meantime, at Los Angeles, the U. C. L. A. team scored a one-point win over Stanford which had defeated the Bruins in their previous meeting. The score was 32-31. Johns' basket in the last 40 seconds of play decided the encounter.

RIVERSIDE AWARDED JAYSEE RELAY MEET

Riverside junior college has been awarded the fourth annual Southern California relays, to be held on the Bengal field February 24. Fourteen jaysees and eight southern college conference schools have been invited.

There will be five divisions of competition, including junior college, southern college conference, conference freshmen, novice junior college, and open. Open events will be the 100-yard dash, four-man mile relay, broad jump, shot put, high jump, discus, pole vault and javelin.

Four types of relays in each division will be held, as well as a special 100-yard dash in the junior college novice, according to Bill Neufeld, Riverside coach in charge of arrangements. His committee, which will meet in Riverside February 1 to complete plans, consists of Bob Strehle of Pomona, Cecil Cushman of Redlands, Joe Pipal of Occidental, Layden of Cal-Tech and Ernie Payne of Chaffey.

WETHERELL EXTENDS L. A. NET CHAMPION

Lewis Wetherell's rapid advance toward the top flight division of Southern California tennisdom was indicated anew Sunday when the Santa Ana high school player extended to the utmost Elbert Lewis, defending champion, in a first round match of the twentieth annual Metropolitan tournament at Griffith park, Los Angeles.

Lewis, former U. C. L. A. captain and ranking player in Southern California, defeated the 17-year-old Wetherell only after two long hard sets, 6-4, 11-9.

Later, Wetherell and his doubles partner, Walt Blair of Corona, scored an easy victory over Jones and Spears.

SUTTER DOUBLES VICTOR

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 15.—(UP)—Cliff Sutter of New Orleans and Dr. Eugene MacCauliffee of New York today held the Miami-Biltmore doubles tennis title by virtue of their 2-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-0 victory yesterday over Francis Shields of New York and Ricardo Morales of Cuba in the final.

ANTIDOTE FOR WAR TALK MORE MISSIONARIES

Highlights in the missionary work of the Christian church, both in America and abroad, were given by Dr. Royal J. Dye, noted missionary to Africa, who spoke at the morning service of the Orange Avenue Christian church yesterday. Dr. Dye gave many interesting incidents of his own work at Bolenge on the Congo river in Africa, where he instituted the Christian program in that district just 35 years ago today. He recalled that for the first four years there were no converts, but that there are now more than 41,000 who have become Christians in that district since he and his wife started the work.

"Saved to save others," was the text of his talk in which he pointed out many incidents to show that after the work is started in foreign countries and certain districts in America, those who become members of the church finance the work and spread it.

In commenting on the recent war talk involving Japan Dr. Dye said: "What Japan needs is more missionaries. They will halt this talk of war. It is more important to send missionaries there than to build battleships. Christian influence is the only thing that can stop war."

Concerning the work in Africa Dr. Dye said in part: "In Africa 85 per cent of all schools are mission schools. The natives are being taught the Bible and basic principles of morals. We had to evolve a written language as they had none, then had to teach them to read and write. Our church now has 777 village schools in Africa developing leadership. Bolenge parish has eight district schools, or high schools, and Congo Christian institute at Bolenge offers a three year course for the best of the district school graduates. They spend six hours a day in the classroom, and earn their own way. They pay tuition and learn trades, sanitation and hygiene, then go back to their districts to be leaders. They are building leadership for a great church."

Concerning work in America Dr. Dye referred to the orphans home and old peoples home supported by the church, to the missions from which churches have developed in the Bohemian center of Cleveland, the coke oven districts of Pennsylvania, and the Japanese work in Los Angeles.

MAKE ARRESTS IN CAR LOOTING CASE

Suspected in the theft of lap robes and auto accessories at a recent dance at the Irvine beanhouse, three men were questioned last week and booked at the county jail on investigation of grand theft Saturday.

The suspects are Osie Starnes, 22, Dyer road, Harold C. Johnson, 22, 1010 West Bishop street and also living in San Diego, and Virgil Starnes, 19, R. D. 4, Box 295, Santa Ana. Some of the loot was recovered by officers and it is expected that they will be arraigned tomorrow in the Tustin justice court.

Chief John Stanton and Councilman Charles Logan of Tustin and Deputy Sheriffs Ives Brown and Walter Dungan made the arrests. Previous jail records of the trio led to their arrest, officers declared.

MEET DIFFICULTY IN MITCHELL CASE

Complications arose today in the effort to return Howard D. Mitchell, wanted in Orange county since August, 1932, after he jumped $3000 bail here, when Sheriff Logan Jackson learned on reliable authority that Attorney General Landis of Florida was responsible for Mitchell being able to post $1000 bail last week and escape from Deputy Sheriff Merle Dean, enroute to St. Petersburg with extradition papers for Mitchell.

COUNTY MILK STRIKE SITUATION QUIET

Belief that Orange county's milk strike war had broken out anew was held yesterday afternoon but an investigation by sheriff's officers revealed that the three young men who broke into the milk house on the Phinney ranch on West Fifth street near the Santa Ana river were not strikers and were merely getting into mischief.

No one was at home when the three youths started breaking milk bottles and pouring out milk, it was said. When a car drove into the yard, they ran for the river and disappeared.

No disturbances were reported anywhere in the county over the week end, although deputy sheriffs stationed at the Thompson-Main dairy in Los Alamitos said that three cars, believed to be scout cars of the strikers, drove slowly around the ranch several times.

RACHEL ANN DEAVER CALLED BY DEATH

Ritner of Tustin; six sons, Frank Deaver of Santa Ana, Barrett Deaver of Los Angeles, Charles Deaver of Los Angeles, Virgil, Elmer and Victor Deaver, all of Escondido.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Harrell and Brown funeral home, 116 West Seventeenth street, with the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, minister of the First Baptist church, officiating.

MARTIN INSULL IS DENIED HIS MOTION

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 15.—(UP)—Justice Charles Garrow of the Ontario supreme court today denied a motion filed by attorneys for Martin J. Insull, asking that the order granting the extradition of the former Chicago utility magnate to the United States be set aside.

Insull's attorneys announced they would file an appeal to the appellate division of the supreme court.

Should the appellate division uphold the extradition order returned by Justice A. C. Kingstone last December, it would ruin Insull's last hope of escaping return to Chicago to face prosecution on charges of grand larceny, embezzlement and theft by bailee which grew out of the collapse of the huge Insull utility empire.

ACCIDENT CAUSES TRIP TO BASTILE

William Marvin Griffith, 24, 925 French street, is having his troubles as the result of an untimely automobile accident on North Broadway Thursday night.

Griffith was lodged in the county jail Saturday on a complaint by Roy Justice of Anaheim, charging him with driving a car without the owner's consent. According to the story told by Justice, Griffith took the keys of the car from the Justice home and drove the car away while the owner was absent. Later in the evening, as Griffith was driving near Buffalo and Broadway in Santa Ana, a rear tire blew out and turned the car over on the curb, slightly injuring Griffith, Miss Betty Chancel of the same address, Arthur Porter, 105 Berkeley street and Oscar Kitto, 1815 Orange avenue.

Justice said that Griffith came to California several weeks ago and had become friendly. Officers said that the stolen car angle was not mentioned at the time of the wreck.

ANTIDOTE FOR WAR TALK MORE MISSIONARIES

Highlights in the missionary work of the Christian church, both in America and abroad, were given by Dr. Royal J. Dye, noted missionary to Africa, who spoke at the morning service of the Orange Avenue Christian church yesterday. Dr. Dye gave many interesting incidents of his own work at Bolenge on the Congo river in Africa, where he instituted the Christian program in that district just 35 years ago today. He recalled that for the first four years there were no converts, but that there are now more than 41,000 who have become Christians in that district since he and his wife started the work.

"Saved to save others," was the text of his talk in which he pointed out many incidents to show that after the work is started in foreign countries and certain districts in America, those who become members of the church finance the work and spread it.

In commenting on the recent war talk involving Japan Dr. Dye said: "What Japan needs is more missionaries. They will halt this talk of war. It is more important to send missionaries there than to build battleships. Christian influence is the only thing that can stop war."

Concerning the work in Africa Dr. Dye said in part: "In Africa 85 per cent of all schools are mission schools. The natives are being taught the Bible and basic principles of morals. We had to evolve a written language as they had none, then had to teach them to read and write. Our church now has 777 village schools in Africa developing leadership. Bolenge parish has eight district schools, or high schools, and Congo Christian institute at Bolenge offers a three year course for the best of the district school graduates. They spend six hours a day in the classroom, and earn their own way. They pay tuition and learn trades, sanitation and hygiene, then go back to their districts to be leaders. They are building leadership for a great church."

Concerning work in America Dr. Dye referred to the orphans home and old peoples home supported by the church, to the missions from which churches have developed in the Bohemian center of Cleveland, the coke oven districts of Pennsylvania, and the Japanese work in Los Angeles.

L. A. Man Speaks At Club Session

FULLERTON, Jan. 15.—Dr. Ernest Bashor, of Los Angeles, addressed the Kiwanis club this noon at their university meeting held in McFarland's cafe. Dr. Bashor spoke to the Kiwanis presidents' conference at San Luis Obispo last January and at the International convention in Los Angeles in June.

Honor Students Of Junior Highs Are Program Guests

Honor society students of the Santa Ana high school gathered in the school cafeteria Friday evening to honor the 10 first semester students from each of the junior high schools who had the highest scholastic ranking in their graduating class.

Entertainment was provided for the group by Frances Was, Clyde Files, and William Curnutt in a skit entitled "And She Cried." Games and refreshments were also enjoyed. The welcoming talk was made by Mary Lou McFarland, president of the society.

Students graduated from the Julia Lathrop Junior High school who were honored included: Betty Bradley, Ralph Bradley, Carolyn Davis, Dortea Dixon, Virginia Pritchard, Harriet Skinner, Marie Stewart, Maxine Struck, Anne Wetherell, and Vera Flora.

Students from the Frances E. Willard school were: Marayanne Newcomer, La Vonne Frandson, Ruth Frandson, Ralph Fuller, Audrey Granas, Ruth Greenwold, Mary Henderson, Agnes McDougall, Roberta McKnight and Jean Munro.

MAKE ARRESTS IN CAR LOOTING CASE

Suspected in the theft of lap robes and auto accessories at a recent dance at the Irvine beanhouse, three men were questioned last week and booked at the county jail on investigation of grand theft Saturday.

The suspects are Osie Starnes, 22, Dyer road, Harold C. Johnson, 22, 1010 West Bishop street and also living in San Diego, and Virgil Starnes, 19, R. D. 4, Box 295, Santa Ana. Some of the loot was recovered by officers and it is expected that they will be arraigned tomorrow in the Tustin justice court.

Chief John Stanton and Councilman Charles Logan of Tustin and Deputy Sheriffs Ives Brown and Walter Dungan made the arrests. Previous jail records of the trio led to their arrest, officers declared.

MEET DIFFICULTY IN MITCHELL CASE

Complications arose today in the effort to return Howard D. Mitchell, wanted in Orange county since August, 1932, after he jumped $3000 bail here, when Sheriff Logan Jackson learned on reliable authority that Attorney General Landis of Florida was responsible for Mitchell being able to post $1000 bail last week and escape from Deputy Sheriff Merle Dean, enroute to St. Petersburg with extradition papers for Mitchell.

COUNTY MILK STRIKE SITUATION QUIET

Belief that Orange county's milk strike war had broken out anew was held yesterday afternoon but an investigation by sheriff's officers revealed that the three young men who broke into the milk house on the Phinney ranch on West Fifth street near the Santa Ana river were not strikers and were merely getting into mischief.

No one was at home when the three youths started breaking milk bottles and pouring out milk, it was said. When a car drove into the yard, they ran for the river and disappeared.

No disturbances were reported anywhere in the county over the week end, although deputy sheriffs stationed at the Thompson-Main dairy in Los Alamitos said that three cars, believed to be scout cars of the strikers, drove slowly around the ranch several times.

RACHEL ANN DEAVER CALLED BY DEATH

Rachel Ann Deaver, 75, resident of Tustin for the past 25 years, died at her home yesterday.

She is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Laura Heidelberger of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Ada Phelps of Long Beach, Mrs. Letha Hawkins of San Francisco, Mrs. J. H. Wearne of Hollywood, and Mrs. H. A. Ritner of Tustin; six sons, Frank Deaver of Santa Ana, Barrett Deaver of Los Angeles, Charles Deaver of Los Angeles, Virgil, Elmer and Victor Deaver, all of Escondido.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Harrell and Brown funeral home, 116 West Seventeenth street, with the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, minister of the First Baptist church, officiating.

MARTIN INSULL IS DENIED HIS MOTION

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 15.—(UP)—Justice Charles Garrow of the Ontario supreme court today denied a motion filed by attorneys for Martin J. Insull, asking that the order granting the extradition of the former Chicago utility magnate to the United States be set aside.

Insull's attorneys announced they would file an appeal to the appellate division of the supreme court.

Should the appellate division uphold the extradition order returned by Justice A. C. Kingstone last December, it would ruin Insull's last hope of escaping return to Chicago to face prosecution on charges of grand larceny, embezzlement and theft by bailee which grew out of the collapse of the huge Insull utility empire.

ACCIDENT CAUSES TRIP TO BASTILE

William Marvin Griffith, 24, 925 French street, is having his troubles as the result of an untimely automobile accident on North Broadway Thursday night.

Griffith was lodged in the county jail Saturday on a complaint by Roy Justice of Anaheim, charging him with driving a car without the owner's consent. According to the story told by Justice, Griffith took the keys of the car from the Justice home and drove the car away while the owner was absent. Later in the evening, as Griffith was driving near Buffalo and Broadway in Santa Ana, a rear tire blew out and turned the car over on the curb, slightly injuring Griffith, Miss Betty Chancel of the same address, Arthur Porter, 105 Berkeley street and Oscar Kitto, 1815 Orange avenue.

Justice said that Griffith came to California several weeks ago and had become friendly. Officers said that the stolen car angle was not mentioned at the time of the wreck.

SHORT COUNT JURY ACCEPTED IN TRIAL TODAY

On stipulation of Attorneys Nick Meyers and Morris Cain for the defense and Deputy District Attorney Leo Friis for the prosecution, 11 jurors are hearing evidence against Beatrice Otero, Tustin, accused of resisting and obstructing police officers in their duty. She is being tried before Presiding Judge H. G. Ames in department one superior court.

The short jury was stipulated after Mrs. Abe Johnson had been accepted as the twelfth juror. She was excused when it was learned that her husband is chief of police at Laguna Beach and the short jury was stipulated.

The Otero girl is charged with attempting to obstruct officers in connection with a raid at the home of her mother, Mrs. Selma Otero conducted by deputy sheriffs and Chief of Police John Stanton on the night of October 28, last. Her grandfather Teofilo Manriques is awaiting trial on the same offense.

Jurors chosen to hear evidence in the case are: Frances MacMullen, G. G. Beckman, Mrs. Anna Chapline, Sadie E. Dooley, Cora I. Dugdale, Etta Howard, C. K. Lee, C. W. Hedges, Mrs. Ida Spaulding, Ida E. Dempsey, and Clyde Day.

REVIVAL SERVICES OPEN HERE TONIGHT

Revival services conducted by the Rev. Don H. Householder and Horace M. Hay will start at 7:30 tonight at the Spurgeon Memorial Methodist church, according to the Rev. C. M. Aker, pastor. The Rev. Mr. Householder is said to be a very successful pastor and a forceful preacher who ministers to a large congregation of University students at the Arizona State University. The Rev. Mr. Hay is a leader of young people's conventions and evangelistic meetings. He is pastor of the Hollywood M. E. church, South, located at the corner of Lexington and Vine streets in Hollywood.

Fugitive Is Held For Higher Court

Charles Brophy, prisoner, who escaped from the Orange county hospital laundry last August and was recaptured by Portland police, was bound over to the superior court this morning by Judge Kenneth Morrison on charge of escape.

Bail was set at $2500 by Judge Morrison. Deputy Sheriff Leland Mitchell, in charge of the prisoners at the hospital, was the only witness called by Deputy District Attorney James Davis.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

-- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

SNORES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Garner dynasty in congress is NOT dead, nor is it sleeping.

The snores you hear from the Vice President and his undercover boys are merely stage snores.

Down underneath, he and his associates are doing a strong but quiet job of leadership for the administration. Through their close friendship with Senator Pat Harrison and others, their influence in the senate is noticeable.

But they actually run the house.

* * *

PALS

Their part is largely to devise the political strategy of how to get bills through and how to keep down insurrections. They have a big hand in writing important legislation and the biggest hand in getting it through.

The best key positions of committee chairmen are held by their crowd. Actully there are six chairmen of house committees from Texas—Jones, agriculture; Buchanan, appropriations; Rayburn, interstate commerce; Sumners, judiciary; Lanham, public buildings; Mansfield, Rivers and harbors. House members refer to it as the Texas dynasty, which, of course means Garner still is king.

The best tacticians in the house are Garner's pals—McDuffie of Alabama, Rayburn of Texas and Tuck Milligan of Missouri. You never read much about them in the newspapers, but they virtually run the show. Others make the speeches. They do the phenagling.

Speaker Rainey plays ball with them more than the average house member suspects.

* * *

PAY CUT

The other day on the pay cuts it appeared on the surface that the Garner brain trust had a close call. Headlines proclaimed the fact that they squeezed their drastic administration through by only six votes.

Actually they were not in serious danger.

What happened could only happen in the house.

The big vote came on a motion to adopt the previous question.

That shut off all debate and all chance of amending the strong gag rule. That was the place for the revolters to have made their big showing, if they really wanted to block the Administration pay cut program.

But that motion was adopted by a safe majority of 37 votes.

* * *

STRATEGY

That vote showed that the administration program was going to go through. So on the next vote some of the Democrats took the opportunity of protecting themselves politically back home and switched.

In that way they could register opposition to the pay cut theory and make a little hay for themselves with the government employes, and yet NOT block the President. It was just a political game.

They were more frightened than the leaders when they noted there were so many jumpers that the vote was too close for comfort.

* * *

SAFETY

It would be unfair to say all the jumpers switched for this naive political reason.

Some are newcomers. They might, with justification, plead ignorance. They might say they did not know that the previous question motion was the one they should have sought to block. That would be true of a half dozen or more of the jumpers.

..t any rate it indicates the rebellious boys are only for rebellion up to a safe point. They have no intention of really trying to stop Roosevelt.

At least that is the deduction privately made by the leaders.

* * *

WHITNEY

A small disgruntled element inside and outside the stock exchange is planting stories around that Richard Whitney will be fired as president. They are trying to get some of the Washington Liberals interested in the movement.

The truth is that Whitney has already been re-nominated for another term and will be re-elected, probably unanimously.

There was a rather serious effort made against Whitney a few months ago. Since then he has received confidential approval from the better class within the exchange. This crowd wants reform of the exchange from within and they approve Whitney's efforts in that respect.

In the light of this situation, the disgruntlers will probably not dare to oppose Whitney when the time for voting comes.

At least that is the way the most trustworthy insiders of the exchange figure the situation out.

There is no indication that the administration is going to take a hand in the affair one way or another. In fact there is some evidence indicating the administration approves Whitney's efforts to clean up.

* * *

NOTES

The White House recently wanted to get in touch with the Democratic whip of the House, but could not recall who he was. Inquiries were made in unofficial quarters, the name of the gentleman was obtained and he was then invited to see the president.

Congressman Milligan is supposed to have once made a confidential poll on prohibition repeal for Garner which was wrong by only one vote. He failed to count a man who was ill and not expected to appear. That is as near as anyone ever came to knowing in advance how 435 members of the house were going to vote.

* * *

The A. F. L. and Postal Employes lobbies are two of the strongest in Washington. The Postal people particularly worked hard against Mr. Roosevelt's plan to restore only 5 per cent of the 15 per cent pay cut.

* * *

The big fellows in business and finance still feel optimistic about the general improvement. The way one expresses it is: "Roosevelt is the luckiest man alive because nothing can stop business improvement and when it comes nothing can stop him from getting all the credit for it." The administration experts are slightly less optimistic about the immediate extent of the improvement, but more positive that Roosevelt deserves the credit.

TESTS

The Supreme Court decision in favor of the Minnesota suspension of mortgage payments was a bombshell to Wall street. Local conservatives insist that the Constitution specifically forbids abrogation of contracts and had every hope that the Supreme Court would sustain their viewpoint—at least with its present personnel. Even the bitterest opponents of the Roosevelt program now admit that the tracks seem clear for the entire New Deal Special.

It is significant that the Texas oil decision (referred to recently in this column as the key to NRA legality) has not yet been rendered although the judges have all the evidence in hand. The dope here is that the decision would have been adverse and the judges were waiting for some new law or precedent which would give them a loophole. Now they have it. If their decision is still adverse a Supreme Court reversal is expected. Conservatives don't know which way to turn now that the courts have failed them.

OIL

Local oil experts maintain that the administration of the oil code is keeping inefficient producers in business at the consumer's expense. Meanwhile efficient producers are in a position to make hay by the wagonload. Prices are higher than they need to be.

A vigorous protest is expected from the Consumers' Advisory Board if it gets at the inside figures. New York friends of Paul Douglas—recently appointed member of the Consumers' Board from the University of Chicago—say that he is likely to raise the roof once he gets the dope on this and other situations. He is locally rated unusually able and conscientious.

* * *

LAWYERS

When Winthrop Aldrich took over command of the Chase Bank, the Chase's law firm merged with another in order to be big enough to handle the bank's business. This arrangement worked well until recently when an epidemic of threatened suits against banks and mortgage companies—including the Chase—has caused some agitation in banking and legal circles.

As a result the Chase's lawyers have got together with three other important legal firms representing banking and mortgage interests and this array of legal talent has mapped lines of defense to be used by any of their various clients which might be attacked in court.

Law firms representing attacking parties are by no means so unified of purpose. Consequently there is a certain amount of buck-passing to see which one shall be first to crash the staunch defensive bulwarks. Nobody wants to go off half-cocked and be the goat.

FEES

The proposed banking code has several of the smaller New York City banks worried. After the storm of protest against the scheduled charges they fear that the final code will eliminate most of these service fees. That would make little difference to the big banks but some of the little fellows have derived 100 per cent of their earnings during the last three years from precisely those charges now likely to be outlawed.

* * *

LIQUOR

In spite of disclosures in the press the retail liquor situation in New York City is getting worse. A high percentage of Manhattan stores are in the hands of bootleggers and other not suitable licensees either by experience or reputation. Since Christmas the number of fake brands sold in stores has almost doubled. One retail establishment on Park Avenue displays Rhine wines with German labels on which every second word is misspelled.

* * *

Wheat circles are buzzing over the revival of old methods in shipping. Sailing vessels are replacing modern boats in the Australian wheat market.

There is some tricky strategy involved. It begins with the premium on forward wheat and ends with the fact that a sailing vessel loaded with wheat bought at the price for early shipment can serve as a floating warehouse for a leisurely three or four months and find a higher price waiting for delivery at journey's end.

For once an age of speed is the last thing wanted.

TRADE

The struggle for South American trade goes on between the United States and Great Britain. Although our engineers have been prospecting South American sites for two railway viaducts for more than a year Britain has just landed the contracts for the steel superstructure — dampening our hopes in that direction plenty.

* * *

STEEL

The effect of codes on employment is shown clearly in the steel industry. There were 416,000 men employed in 1933—nearly twice the numbe rworking in 1932—with operations at 32 per cent of capacity. The figure is practically the same as it was in 1929 with production at 85 per cent of capacity.

It is estimated that 125,000 new men will be needed if operations under the code should rise to 70 per cent.

* * *

SIDELIGHTS

The Corn Exchange Bank once more stole a march on competitors by publishing its investment list in full . . . Some other bankers think they will be compelled by law to follow suit when the government catches on . . . Liquidation of Chase Harris Forbes is expected to be complete by the end of March . . . Quite a few well-known speculators are in Florida but they aren't speculating . . . This is a bitter pill to brokerage houses with branches there.

HOW TO SERVE JEHOVAH TOLD CONGREGATION

James H. Sewell spoke to the Broadway and Walnut Church of Christ congregation yesterday morning, using the text found in Micah 6:6-9. His subject was: "How Serve Jehovah?" He said:

"The question, 'What shall I do to serve Jehovah?' has confronted the religions of the world for ages. In the days of the prophet Micah the question propounded by him was one which the children of Israel needed to answer. It is still a question of moment today. Micah's first question was "Shall I come before Him with burnt offerings, with calves a year old?" Secondly, 'Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands rivers of oil?' Third, "Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?' In short, would sacrifices, or the offerings of wealth, justify one in God's sight? Micah gave the answer then that can well be considered today: '. . . what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?'

"Today there is too much stress on outward forms of obedience, and not enough emphasis on the required condition of man's heart to insure his being well-pleasing to God. It is necessary to be doctrinally right—we must obey the simple commands given in God's word—but we should also sense the need for the right proportion of justice, kindness and humility. These things, says Micah, are required of man.

"Paul says in Galations 5 that if we have the spirit of Christ we will bear the fruits of Christianity, love, joy, peace, long suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control. In the recipe for good Christians I am convinced the proper proportion would be nine-tenths practice and one-tenth doctrine."

Christian Science

"Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in the Communion services which were held yesterday at the Santa Ana First Church of Christ, Scientist.

These words of Paul to the Corinthians were among the Bible citations: "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ . . . For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed took bread: and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in rememberance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. . . . But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup."

Among the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, was the statement about Jesus: "Obeying his precious precepts,—following his demonstration so far as we apprehend it,—we drink of his cup, partake of his bread, are baptized with his purity; and at last we shall rest, sit down with him, in a full understanding of the divine principle which triumphs over death."

TECHNIQUE OF PRAYER FORMS SERMON TOPIC

Following the services of the Week of Prayer Rev. Harry Evan Owings of the First Baptist church preached yesterday morning on the subject "A Technique of Prayer." There were four basis suggestions that he offered as he emphasized Jesus' word about entering into one's inner chamber and praying to the Father in secret.

First: Relax in body and in mind. It is good psychology and also good religion to be at ease and repose in body and in mind, to "be still and know" that God is God. It is well to take that position and posture that will allow this perfect relaxation.

Second: After coming to this quiet of relaxation we must train ourselves to open mind and heart to a fine awareness of the Divine Spirit. This has been called the practice of the presence of God. Try to think of God as the great Power that is making for the advancement of goodness in all places in the world. Let your mind try to conceive the vast sweep of that goodness, its immeasurable possibilities, the vast resources for the good that are at our back and available for us. The value of this suggestion may be brought in the prayer Jesus taught with the opening word "Father" and the first request "Thy will be done."

Third: The third step is bringing ourselves and each question or problem into the light of this great eternal push toward goodness. How shall I fit my own life and all of my decisions and actions into this vast onward push of God and thus make everything of mine in harmony with his scheme of things? It is here that prayer becomes a battleground, the personal will so frequently entering into conflict with the divine will. Victory comes to us in attaining the heights of "Thy will, not mine, be done."

Fourth: As we leave the place of prayer we leave it resolved and prepared to take definite and specific steps to be true to that heavenly vision no matter what it costs. Daniel steps to the lions' den, Jesus heads toward Calvary, Paul commences his mission to the Gentiles. So will and intention are translated into definite action.

Gustav Riedlin, of Los Angeles, assistant vice president, international banking department, Bank of America, will be the speaker Tuesday at the weekly meeting of Santa Ana Rotary club, according to an announcement today. His subject will be "Inflation."

SNORES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Garner dynasty in congress is NOT dead, nor is it sleeping.

The snores you hear from the Vice President and his undercover boys are merely stage snores.

Down underneath, he and his associates are doing a strong but quiet job of leadership for the administration. Through their close friendship with Senator Pat Harrison and others, their influence in the senate is noticeable.

But they actually run the house.

* * *

PALS

Their part is largely to devise the political strategy of how to get bills through and how to keep down insurrections. They have a big hand in writing important legislation and the biggest hand in getting it through.

The best key positions of committee chairmen are held by their crowd. Actully there are six chairmen of house committees from Texas—Jones, agriculture; Buchanan, appropriations; Rayburn, interstate commerce; Sumners, judiciary; Lanham, public buildings; Mansfield, Rivers and harbors. House members refer to it as the Texas dynasty, which, of course means Garner still is king.

The best tacticians in the house are Garner's pals—McDuffie of Alabama, Rayburn of Texas and Tuck Milligan of Missouri. You never read much about them in the newspapers, but they virtually run the show. Others make the speeches. They do the phenagling.

Speaker Rainey plays ball with them more than the average house member suspects.

* * *

PAY CUT

The other day on the pay cuts it appeared on the surface that the Garner brain trust had a close call. Headlines proclaimed the fact that they squeezed their drastic administration through by only six votes.

Actually they were not in serious danger.

What happened could only happen in the house.

The big vote came on a motion to adopt the previous question.

That shut off all debate and all chance of amending the strong gag rule. That was the place for the revolters to have made their big showing, if they really wanted to block the Administration pay cut program.

But that motion was adopted by a safe majority of 37 votes.

* * *

STRATEGY

That vote showed that the administration program was going to go through. So on the next vote some of the Democrats took the opportunity of protecting themselves politically back home and switched.

In that way they could register opposition to the pay cut theory and make a little hay for themselves with the government employes, and yet NOT block the President. It was just a political game.

They were more frightened than the leaders when they noted there were so many jumpers that the vote was too close for comfort.

* * *

SAFETY

It would be unfair to say all the jumpers switched for this naive political reason.

Some are newcomers. They might, with justification, plead ignorance. They might say they did not know that the previous question motion was the one they should have sought to block. That would be true of a half dozen or more of the jumpers.

At any rate it indicates the rebellious boys are only for rebellion up to a safe point. They have no intention of really trying to stop Roosevelt.

At least that is the deduction privately made by the leaders.

* * *

WHITNEY

A small disgruntled element inside and outside the stock exchange is planting stories around that Richard Whitney will be fired as president. They are trying to get some of the Washington Liberals interested in the movement.

The truth is that Whitney has already been re-nominated for another term and will be re-elected, probably unanimously.

There was a rather serious effort made against Whitney a few months ago. Since then he has received confidential approval from the better class within the exchange. This crowd wants reform of the exchange from within and they approve Whitney's efforts in that respect.

In the light of this situation, the disgruntlers will probably not dare to oppose Whitney when the time for voting comes.

At least that is the way the most trustworthy insiders of the exchange figure the situation out.

There is no indication that the administration is going to take a hand in the affair one way or another. In fact there is some evidence indicating the administration approves Whitney's efforts to clean up.

* * *

NOTES

The White House recently wanted to get in touch with the Democratic whip of the House, but could not recall who he was. Inquiries were made in unofficial quarters, the name of the gentleman was obtained and he was then invited to see the president.

Congressman Milligan is supposed to have once made a confidential poll on prohibition repeal for Garner which was wrong by only one vote. He failed to count a man who was ill and not expected to appear. That is as near as anyone ever came to knowing in advance how 435 members of the house were going to vote.

* * *

The A. F. L. and Postal Employes lobbies are two of the strongest in Washington. The Postal people particularly worked hard against Mr. Roosevelt's plan to restore only 5 per cent of the 15 per cent pay cut.

* * *

The big fellows in business and finance still feel optimistic about the general improvement. The way one expresses it is: "Roosevelt is the luckiest man alive because nothing can stop business improvement and when it comes nothing can stop him from getting all the credit for it." The administration experts are slightly less optimistic about the immediate extent of the improvement, but more positive that Roosevelt deserves the credit.

TESTS

The Supreme Court decision in favor of the Minnesota suspension of mortgage payments was a bombshell to Wall street. Local conservatives insist that the Constitution specifically forbids abrogation of contracts and had every hope that the Supreme Court would sustain their viewpoint—at least with its present personnel. Even the bitterest opponents of the Roosevelt program now admit that the tracks seem clear for the entire New Deal Special.

It is significant that the Texas oil decision (referred to recently in this column as the key to NRA legality) has not yet been rendered although the judges have all the evidence in hand. The dope here is that the decision would have been adverse and the judges were waiting for some new law or precedent which would give them a loophole. Now they have it. If their decision is still adverse a Supreme Court reversal is expected. Conservatives don't know which way to turn now that the courts have failed them.

OIL

Local oil experts maintain that the administration of the oil code is keeping inefficient producers in business at the consumer's expense. Meanwhile efficient producers are in a position to make hay by the wagonload. Prices are higher than they need to be.

A vigorous protest is expected from the Consumers' Advisory Board if it gets at the inside figures. New York friends of Paul Douglas—recently appointed member of the Consumers' Board from the University of Chicago—say that he is likely to raise the roof once he gets the dope on this and other situations. He is locally rated unusually able and conscientious.

* * *

LAWYERS

When Winthrop Aldrich took over command of the Chase Bank, the Chase's law firm merged with another in order to be big enough to handle the bank's business. This arrangement worked well until recently when an epidemic of threatened suits against banks and mortgage companies—including the Chase—has caused some agitation in banking and legal circles.

As a result the Chase's lawyers have got together with three other important legal firms representing banking and mortgage interests and this array of legal talent has mapped lines of defense to be used by any of their various clients which might be attacked in court.

Law firms representing attacking parties are by no means so unified of purpose. Consequently there is a certain amount of buck-passing to see which one shall be first to crash the staunch defensive bulwarks. Nobody wants to go off half-cocked and be the goat.

* * *

FEES

The proposed banking code has several of the smaller New York City banks worried. After the storm of protest against the scheduled charges they fear that the final code will eliminate most of these service fees. That would make little difference to the big banks but some of the little fellows have derived 100 per cent of their earnings during the last three years from precisely those charges now likely to be outlawed.

* * *

LIQUOR

In spite of disclosures in the press the retail liquor situation in New York City is getting worse. A high percentage of Manhattan stores are in the hands of bootleggers and other not suitable licensees either by experience or reputation. Since Christmas the number of fake brands sold in stores has almost doubled. One retail establishment on Park Avenue displays Rhine wines with German labels on which every second word is misspelled.

* * *

Wheat circles are buzzing over the revival of old methods in shipping. Sailing vessels are replacing modern boats in the Australian wheat market.

There is some tricky strategy involved. It begins with the premium on forward wheat and ends with the fact that a sailing vessel loaded with wheat bought at the price for early shipment can serve as a floating warehouse for a leisurely three or four months and find a higher price waiting for delivery at journey's end.

For once an age of speed is the last thing wanted.

TRADE

The struggle for South American trade goes on between the United States and Great Britain. Although our engineers have been prospecting South American sites for two railway viaducts for more than a year Britain has just landed the contracts for the steel superstructure — dampening our hopes in that direction plenty.

* * *

STEEL

The effect of codes on employment is shown clearly in the steel industry. There were 416,000 men employed in 1933—nearly twice the numbe rworking in 1932—with operations at 32 per cent of capacity. The figure is practically the same as it was in 1929 with production at 85 per cent of capacity.

It is estimated that 125,000 new men will be needed if operations under the code should rise to 70 per cent.

* * *

SIDELIGHTS

The Corn Exchange Bank once more stole a march on competitors by publishing its investment list in full . . . Some other bankers think they will be compelled by law to follow suit when the government catches on . . . Liquidation of Chase Harris Forbes is expected to be complete by the end of March . . . Quite a few well-known speculators are in Florida but they aren't speculating . . . This is a bitter pill to brokerage houses with branches there.

HOW TO SERVE JEHOVAH TOLD CONGREGATION

James H. Sewell spoke to the Broadway and Walnut Church of Christ congregation yesterday morning, using the text found in Micah 6:6-9. His subject was: "How Serve Jehovah?" He said: "The question, 'What shall I do to serve Jehovah?' has confronted the religions of the world for ages. In the days of the prophet Micah the question propounded by him was one which the children of Israel needed to answer. It is still a question of moment today. Micah's first question was "Shall I come before Him with burnt offerings, with calves a year old?" Secondly, 'Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands rivers of oil?' Third, "Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?" In short, would sacrifices, or the offerings of wealth, justify one in God's sight? Micah gave the answer then that can well be considered today: '. . . what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?'

"Today there is too much stress on outward forms of obedience, and not enough emphasis on the required condition of man's heart to insure his being well-pleasing to God. It is necessary to be doctrinally right—we must obey the simple commands given in God's word—but we should also sense the need for the right proportion of justice, kindness and humility. These things, says Micah, are required of man.

"Paul says in Galations 5 that if we have the spirit of Christ we will bear the fruits of Christianity, love, joy, peace, long suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control. In the recipe for good Christians I am convinced the proper proportion would be nine-tenths practice and one-tenth doctrine."

SELF-WILL, INDULGENCE AND COMPLACENCY OF PEOPLE HELD CAUSE OF WORLD CONDITIONS

Present world conditions are due to three things, self will of the people, their self indulgence, and self complacency, according to Dr. John McDowell, moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, who spoke here yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church auditorium.

Dr. McDowell spoke in Riverside at the morning service of the Presbyterian church there and left immediately after the meeting here to speak in San Diego last night. The church auditorium was crowded with members of the church and others who came to hear the national church leader.

"There is no hope for the world apart from the Kingdom of God, which is a kingdom of righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost," he said and continued in part:

"There is no social, economic, scientific or educational system apart from the Kingdom of God which can save the nation or the world from the three deadly sins which are threatening today.

"These are:

"One: Self will, the desire to be outside the law of obedience both divine and human. The present tragic conditions are due primarily to violation of human and divine laws. It is still true that whatsoever a man soweth or a nation soweth it must reap. The man or the nation that soweth to the flesh must reap a fleshy harvest. Those to the spirit a spiritual harvest. There is no possibility of overruling this law.

"Two: There is no hope of the Kingdom of God coming into the life of the nation or the world apart from men and women who not only believe in the ideals of the Kingdom of God but who are dominated by those ideals in all of their relationships. It is now evident that it never will be possible to secure the Kingdom of God without God. This is the weakness of our Communistic and materialistic socialists of today. They are seeking the Kingdom of God without God. You might as well try to get light without the sun.

"Three: There is no hope of producing men and women who believe in the Kingdom of God apart from a Christian leadership that possesses these qualities: Vision, knowledge, conviction, cooperation, faith and character."

ITALIAN LYRIC SOPRANO SINGS AT FULLERTON

An operatic concert will be given next Wednesday evening at the Fullerton High school auditorium by Fiorl di Parma, celebrated Italian lyric soprano, who has been termed "La Voce d'Italia" by Milan music critics.

Wednesday's concert is di Parma's edbut before the American public and will be her only appearance in this country this season. She is under contract to several of the famous opera houses of the world for next season, promoters of the recital declared.

It is entirely through the influence of personal friends of di Parma and the sponsorship of the Humana Symphony, Fullerton Junior college a capella choir, that Orange county received this unusual musical treat.

Di Parma's concert wil be composed entirely of gems of the operas, it was announced.

The artiste has established a remarkable reputation throughout Europe with many splendid performances in operas abroad. As a child prodigy she was discovered to have an exceptional voice, and has been trained in the opera since that time.

Tickets will be on sale at the auditorium with all seats reserved. The price schedule has been set at a level to enable all music lovers to hear the program.

Highway Patrol To Check Filing For New Plates

The Department of Motor Vehicles today announced that officers of the California Highway Patrol would begin a check-up tomorrow of all motor vehicles displaying last year's licenses to determine if their owners have applied for new plates.

The California Vehicle Act makes it unlawful to operate a motor vehicle after January 15 with 1933 license plates unless an application has been filed for new registration and plates.

The departmental announcement indicated that in most cases the owners would be required to secure new plates at once and that arrests might follow in a few cases.

The act requires the department to levy a penalty equal to the amount of the fee on applications filed after the legal time limit has expired on January 31.

Officers making a check up will require tangible evidence that an application has been filed such as a check stub, or money order receipt.

New plates may be secured at any branch office of the motor vehicle department, by sending to Sacramento or at the Orange County Automobile club and the Automobile Club of Southern California.

URGE COAST IMPROVEMENTS AS CWA WORK

Plans for a high level reservoir, the grading of streets, laying of curbs and the planting of trees throughout the area covered by the South Coast Water district were unfolded Saturday night by C. E. C. Burnett, secretary, at the meeting of the South Coast Improvement association. A committee will take the matter up with the board of supervisors and asked that the work be done under CWA as a county project. The committee is composed of Elmer L. Crawford, Coast Royal; Augustus Thomas, Three Arches, and Dan O'Flaherty, Three Arch Bay.

Burnett pointed out that under the CWA only 25 per cent of the cost of a project may be spent for materials. The actual building of the reservoir would require an outlay for materials in excess of that percentage, but a long road will have to be built to it for which little material will be needed and by combining the two the work will come within the government specifications, he said.

The same committee appointed to look after the CWA projects will seek information looking toward the formation of a fire protection district. In reporting on that, Burnett said that a letter be sent to Supervisor George Jeffrey regarding the matter remained unanswered. He declared that fire insurance rates in the district were double those of Laguna Beach and that he had been informed by the board of underwriters that the establishment of the district would cut rate $1 per $1000 of insurance over a three-year period. The secretary estimated that the cost for fire protection would be eight cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

E. M. Scofield, president, urged all members to turn in their Mutual Water company stock to President E. L. Crawford of the water district, with the written request, or endorsement, that it be cancelled. He warned that a way had been found to free the stockholders of a debt of $50,000 against the stock, but if they failed to turn it in they still would be liable. If a sufficient quantity of the stock is cancelled, the pipe lines of the company will be turned over to the water district.

G. C. Grant, manager of the water district, reported to the post office department for the establishment of a fourth class office in the district, which opened Thursday of last week. Jack Lasley rented the first box and Frank Barr received the first letter. The post office is located in the Powers grocery store, Three Arches, and Mrs. Grace Powers is the postmistress.

One of the nation's youngest mothers, Mrs. Ellen Marie Walsh shows by her smile how well she and her brand-new daughter are doing in a Syracuse, N. Y., hospital. Only 12 years old, the youthful parent is seven years younger than her husband, Theodore, 19. The baby tips the scales at seven pounds, nine ounces.

FORMER ORANGE COUNTY MAN, GRADUATE OF S. A. J. C. WINS FAME FOR ATOM EXPERIMENTS

Considerable fame has been won by Dr. Overton Luhr, Orange county man, who with Dr. Edward S. Lamar, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has developed a new "atom gun" which fires nine times as many proton bullets per given time as any other "smasher" hitherto available for science in the bombardment of the hearts of atoms.

Eastern newspapers carried long articles and pictures of the two scientists when the announcement was made of the development of the new scientific instrument.

Dr. Luhr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Luhr, 260 South Shaffer street, Orange. He is a graduate of Santa Ana junior college, where he was prominent in scholastic work, debate work and was editor of the junior college annual. He also is a lieutenant in the naval reserve.

The "gun" is an outgrowth of the discovery of a simple and convenient method of providing a prolific source of protons, the positively charged nuclei of hydrogen atoms, which are the most effective projectiles known to science for bombardment of the nuclei of other elements.

The new method was developed at the Eastman research laboratories by Dr. Luhr and Dr. Lamar of the department of physics. The source of the protons is an electric arc operating in hydrogen at a low pressure between an incadescent filament and a neighboring metal electrode.

This method is expected to advance greatly investigations of various chemical elements, of the possibility of their transmutation into different elements and of the enormous stores of energy locked in the atom.

SHOW NEED FOR DESTRUCTION OF OLD PLATES

"Destroy your old license plates!"

This often repeated warning was emphasized again over the week end, following a hit-and-run accident in Long Beach which involved a Santa Ana woman because a 1933 license plate found at the scene of the wreck was registered to her car.

Sheriff's officers were notified Saturday night to check the automobile of Mrs. N. E. McClain, 116 North Sycamore street, since a license plate had been found at a wreck which was registered to her machine. It was soon discovered that the McClains had been in Santa Ana all the time but that the license plates had been changed on the car that afternoon at a service station.

Attendants at the station went to the trash pile where the plates had been thrown and found one missing. They recalled that a wedding party had searched the pile for cans and trash to tie on the car of the newlyweds and had taken along the license plate.

Police pointed out that thieves can take old license plates and put them on stolen cars to escape detection. This not only aids the criminal but involves the innocent motorist if the stolen plates are tracked back to tehir original owner.

Avocado Growers Ask Tariff On Cuban Imports

Looking toward the possibility of congress changing the old reciprocity treaty, which to date allows huge quantities of cheaply produced Cuban avocados to enter this country duty-free and greatly injure California and Florida growers, La Habra-Whittier district members of the Calavo Growers' Exchange are sending an appeal to congress. That body is asked to eliminate the present avocado clause which makes the present tariff inactive against Cuban fruit, when and if the treaty is revised. The resolution was drawn up at the district meeting held recently in La Habra.

PIGEON ACCOMPANIES BIG BUS DAILY ON TRIP BETWEEN THE ARCHES, HUNTINGTON BEACH

The famous "pilot shark" of Cook Strait that guided the ships into the port of Wellington, and against the killing of which a law was enacted, has a prototype in a pigeon that for the past week has accompanied a Greyhound Lines bus from Branningan's Crossing at The Arches to the northern city limit of Huntington Beach.

W. Ajax Wolf, retired mining engineer and director of the Laguna Beach Chamber of Commerce is authority for the story. Wolf first noticed the bird flying to the left of the bus and keeping about on a level with the open window next to the driver's seat. The bus was doing 45 miles an hour. When this speed was increased a little the bird would lag behind but when the vehicle slowed down the bird would catch up and resume its flying position. The driver of the bus is A. J. Rous.

"Evidently 45 miles an hour is its top speed," said the engineer. "When the bus, for some reason, like in passing another car, increased its speed, the bird labored but could not quite make it. At one time it was a considerable distance behind, but kept coming. When we slowed down for a crossing it caught up again. The driver said he first noticed the bird about a week ago. At first he thought the pigeon had gotten into the stride of the bus by accident, but when it held its place mile after mile, he began to take notice.

"The following morning he thought of the pigeon when he reached Newport and was not surprised when the bird appeared suddenly and took up its flying position of the previous day. One trait of the bird is that it keeps a straight course with the road, following the central lane. When he passes another car the bird just zooms up over the road and flys above the bus until the driver steers back to the right hand lane.

"The driver told me that he made inquiries of other bus drivers but could not learn that the bird followed any other bus in either direction."

CALAVO GROWERS GET MORE RETURNS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—A marked increase in returns to calavo growers this fall against the same period a year ago was announced today by the Calavo Growers' Exchange, in revealing the second marketing pool's payout for this new season. Growers are received 40 per cent more for best-sized calavo Pueblas in this new season's November pool than they did in the same pool of a year ago. Calavo Fuertes will return 16 per cent more this November than the best-sized returned a year ago. Fino Fuertes this November are returning 30 per cent more, or over three cents per pound, than they did a year ago.

Calavo Fuertes are returning 14.5 cents epr pound or $1.89 per flat to growers; best Fino Fuertes, 14.5 cents per pound or $1.89 per flat and best Calavo Pueblas $1.58 per flat or 12.1 cents per pound in this season's November marketing pool, it is revealed, despite lower general market prices existing this fall than a year ago. The higher pool returns are directly due to the reduced cost of operation and lower retain, association officials said.

Warmth Determines
. . . and Denotes . . .
Happiness in the Home

Warmth — both physical and spiritual — is found in HAPPY homes. Often, the second depends upon the first.

It isn't easy to be happy if you are suffering from physical cold in a house or a room that is unheated or only partly warm.

Happy families radiate good cheer — toward each other and toward the world in general. They go through life setting a fine example in tolerance and understanding and good will.

Members of unhappy families shun each other — and others shun them.

This is not an editorial on happiness. Too many things enter into the habit of being happy for a limited discussion in an advertisement.

But we would like to remind you that it is much easier to be happy in your home — or elsewhere — if the place is comfortably warm.

Natural gas heat — whether you use it in a furnace of any modern make, or a radiator or a radiantfire — is too inexpensive to do without.

We have ahead of us, in Southern California, several months yet of the present winter season—months when you will need warmth in every room for at least part of the day.

As you make your selection of the needed equipment — from your dealer or gas company — insist upon the Blue Star Seal of the Testing Laboratory of the American Gas Association on any appliance that you buy.

Easy terms are available so that you may begin — NOW — to enjoy the comfort of adequate heating, paying only small amounts as you go along.

SELF-WILL, INDULGENCE AND COMPLACENCY OF PEOPLE HELD CAUSE OF WORLD CONDITIONS

Present world conditions are due to three things, self will of the people, their self indulgence, and self complacency, according to Dr. John McDowell, moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, who spoke here yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church auditorium.

Dr. McDowell spoke in Riverside at the morning service of the Presbyterian church there and left immediately after the meeting here to speak in San Diego last night. The church auditorium was crowded with members of the church and others who came to hear the national church leader.

December Marriage of Faculty Member Made Known

Carrol Nisewanger's associates on the teaching faculty at Julia Lathrop Junior High school were interested the past week in the announcement made of his marriage to Miss Alethea McCullough of La Habra on December 21, 1933, in Los Vegas, Nevada.

For the pre-Christmas ceremony, the bride wore a beige traveling suit with a pink satin blouse, brown accessories and a corsage bouquet of gardenias. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. McCullough of Orosi, Calif. For several years she has taught at Wilson school, La Habra.

The couple took a honeymoon trip to Boulder Dam. Mr. Nisewanger, son of Mr. and Mrs J. F. Nisewanger of Fresno, is an instructor in the Industrial arts department at Julia Lathrop school.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Breakfast

1-2 grapefruit, no sugar
Milk toast:
2 thin slices bran bread
1 cup hot skim milk
1 tsp. brown sugar for toast
1 cup coffee with
1-4 cup hot skim milk, no sugar
Calory total, 410.

* * *

Bread and milk are truly "the staff of life," combining growth and health elements in the finest way. In this instance the fats have been left out deliberately. We are planning a meal for one who has fat to give away, so we omit carrying coals to Newcastle for that reason.

Bread has almost as much protein as beef steak, milk also has this element in profusion. And the two have lime, plus, to balance important body functions. These food elements, minus fats, are necessary in all reducing diets.

Although it is months until next Christmas I am giving you this clever idea while it is still fresh in my mind: I know a family, badly hit by the depression, who still carry on their great Christmas tradition in this fashion:

The name of each member of the family, beloved in-laws included, is written on a slip, the slips put in a bowl and drawn forth in turn by each member of the clan. The name drawn becomes that person's sole responsibility in regard to Christmas gifts. In other words gifts are exchanged between two members of the family, only, and by such concentration lovelier gifts are possible.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Orange Trifle

1 small stale sponge cake,
6 oranges
3 cups thin boiled custard
3 Tbsps. orange marmalade or apricot preserve

When I was a small girl this was a favorite Sunday dessert in summer. It was made late Saturday night and chilled in a cool cellar cupboard. The recipe is taken from memory but I think you will find it exact.

* * *

Line a shallow serving dish with thin sections of sponge cake, over the cake slice a layer of orange, another layer of cake and oranges, then a thin layer of cake, spread with marmalade or preserve before it is cut and placed in the bowl. Pour the chilled custard over the cake and chill for several hours.

Serve "as is," for whipped cream would be a desecration.

* * *

For the custard, heat in a double boiler 2 1-2 cups rich milk until well scalded. Whip the yolks of 3 eggs and 2 whites with 2-3 cup of sugar. Stir into the hot milk and keep stirring until the custard coats the spoon like a cream, take off the fire, add the beaten white and whip the custard until it is foamy. Chill before pouring over the cake and oranges. Flavor with a little lemon and a few drops of almond.

* * *

There are eight servings in this recipe with a calory value of 275 each. This dessert may be indulged in, temperately, by the Pleasingly Plumps.

Tuesday: Plain Orange Cake, a contributed recipe, which the contributor says is swellish food when eaten hot from the oven.

County High School Honor Societies Entertained

Interesting up to the minute discussions, a banquet and entertainment, were the things offered to members of the Honor society and Honor roll of Santa Ana High school and other high schools of the county on Thursday afternoon of last week. The group gathered at Huntington Beach High school at 4:30 o'clock.

The program was opened with a discussion of two amendments to the Scholarship society constitution. After conclusion of the lively arguments the representatives separated into groups to plan skits to be given at the evening meal.

Dinner was served in the beautiful cafeteria of the school and members were offered an opportunity to become acquainted with each other and to compare notes on scholarship affairs. Dinner was followed by a short program in which was included a sorano solo by Miss Jean Baldwin, who also lead the group in some lively songs. The skits were then presented and proved the source of a great deal of amusement to the audience.

Concluding the program was a one-act play, "The Rosary," by the drama class of Huntington Beach High school. The performance was light and humorous, and every one enjoyed it immensely.

Daughter Born to Los Angeles Couple

Mrs. Kenneth Keefe and her little daughter, Ann Brydon Keefe, have returned to their home, 2875 Scarf street, Los Angeles, from Queen of the Angels hospital where the baby was born on January 5. Mr. and Mrs. Keefe are receiving congratulations on the new arrival from many friends in the community.

Mrs. Keefe, the former Miss Patricia Kelly, made her home in Laguna Beach and then in Santa Ana before her marriage. She is the daughter of Mrs. Rose V. Kelly of this city.

Since Mr. Keefe is the holder of an air transport license, and is a member of the "Quiet Birdmen," Los Angeles aviation club, clever announcements sent out at the baby's birth bore sketches showing the little daughter arriving by plane at the Keefe hangar.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Breakfast

1-2 grapefruit, no sugar
Milk toast:
2 thin slices bran bread
1 cup hot skim milk
1 tsp. brown sugar for toast
1 cup coffee with
1-4 cup hot skim milk, no sugar
Calory total, 410.

* * *

Bread and milk are truly "the staff of life," combining growth and health elements in the finest way. In this instance the fats have been left out deliberately. We are planning a meal for one who has fat to give away, so we omit carrying coals to Newcastle for that reason.

Bread has almost as much protein as beef steak, milk also has this element in profusion. And the two have lime, plus, to balance important body functions. These food elements, minus fats, are necessary in all reducing diets.

Although it is months until next Christmas I am giving you this clever idea while it is still fresh in my mind: I know a family, badly hit by the depression, who still carry on their great Christmas tradition in this fashion:

The name of each member of the family, beloved in-laws included, is written on a slip, the slips put in a bowl and drawn forth in turn by each member of the clan. The name drawn becomes that person's sole responsibility in regard to Christmas gifts. In other words gifts are exchanged between two members of the family, only, and by such concentration lovelier gifts are possible.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Orange Trifle

1 small stale sponge cake,
6 oranges
3 cups thin boiled custard
3 Tbsps. orange marmalade or apricot preserve

When I was a small girl this was a favorite Sunday dessert in summer. It was made late Saturday night and chilled in a cool cellar cupboard. The recipe is taken from memory but I think you will find it exact.

* * *

Line a shallow serving dish with thin sections of sponge cake, over the cake slice a layer of orange, another layer of cake and oranges, then a thin layer of cake, spread with marmalade or preserve before it is cut and placed in the bowl. Pour the chilled custard over the cake and chill for several hours.

Serve "as is," for whipped cream would be a desecration.

* * *

For the custard, heat in a double boiler 21-2 cups rich milk until well scalded. Whip the yolks of 3 eggs and 2 whites with 2-3 cup of sugar. Stir into the hot milk and keep stirring until the custard coats the spoon like a cream, take off the fire, add the beaten white and whip the custard until it is foamy. Chill before pouring over the cake and oranges. Flavor with a little lemon and a few drops of almond.

* * *

There are eight servings in this recipe with a calory value of 275 each. This dessert may be indulged in, temperately, by the Pleasingly Plumps.

Tuesday: Plain Orange Cake, a contributed recipe, which the contributor says is swellish food when eaten hot from the oven.

County High School Honor Societies Entertained

Interesting up to the minute discussions, a banquet and entertainment, were the things offered to members of the Honor society and Honor roll of Santa Ana High school and other high schools of the county on Thursday afternoon of last week. The group gathered at Huntington Beach High school at 4:30 o'clock.

The program was opened with a discussion of two amendments to the Scholarship society constitution. After conclusion of the lively arguments the representatives separated into groups to plan skits to be given at the evening meal.

Dinner was served in the beautiful cafeteria of the school and members were offered an opportunity to become acquainted with each other and to compare notes on scholarship affairs. Dinner was followed by a short program in which was included a sorano solo by Miss Jean Baldwin, who also lead the group in some lively songs. The skits were then presented and proved the source of a great deal of amusement to the audience.

Concluding the program was a one-act play, "The Rosary," by the drama class of Huntington Beach High school. The performance was light and humorous, and every one enjoyed it imensely.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

The seals performed for quite a while and then wee Duncy, with a smile, said, "Aw, in circuses I've seen smart seals do stunts like that.

"Why, one time, several formed a band. The music that they played was grand. The seal that played the drum could also juggle with a hat."

"Well, take your dunce cap from your head, the Eskimo boy quickly said. "My seals can do the hat trick. Watch real closely and you'll see."

He then tossed Duncy's cap in air and to one seal exclaimed, "Take care! Gee, if you miss the hat, you'll make a fibber out of me."

* * *

The seal seemed very confident. Into the air its small nose went. Then next thing that the Tinies knew, the hat was resting there.

"Good boy," yelled Scouty. "That was fine! Now, catch another. Here comes mine." Once more the little seal reached up and picked it from the air.

"Well, I'll admit the seal is good," said Duncy, "and I think you should give him some fish to show him that he's done the trick all right." "You bet," replied the Eskimo. "Into my little home I'll go and bring the fish out." When he did, the bunch saw quite a sight.

* * *

Both seals seemed pleased as they could be. Wee Goldy shouted, "Mercy me! You'd think that they were starved, the way they gobble up the fish."

Just then the whole bunch whirled around to see what made a funny sound. A walrus crawled up on the ice and gave its tail a swish.

"Don't worry," said the Eskimo. "That fellow's smart enough to know that I have brought some fish out. He is coming for his share.

"Now, don't run off. He won't hurt you. He'll do just what I tell him to." "Oh, my, he looks so cross," said Dotty, "I got quite a scare."

(The Eskimo does some fancy fishing in the next story.)

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

The seals performed for quite a while and then wee Duncy, with a smile, said, "Aw, in circuses I've seen smart seals do stunts like that.

"Why, one time, several formed a band. The music that they played was grand. The seal that played the drum could also juggle with a hat."

"Well, take your dunce cap from your head, the Eskimo boy quickly said. "My seals can do the hat trick. Watch real closely and you'll see."

He then tossed Duncy's cap in air and to one seal exclaimed, "Take care! Gee, if you miss the hat, you'll make a fibber out of me."

* * *

The seal seemed very confident. Into the air its small nose went. Then next thing that the Tinies knew, the hat was resting there.

"Good boy," yelled Scouty. "That was fine! Now, catch another. Here comes mine." Once more the little seal reached up and picked it from the air.

"Well, I'll admit the seal is good," said Duncy, "and I think you should give him some fish to show him that he's done the trick all right." "You bet," replied the Eskimo. "Into my little home I'll go and bring the fish out." When he did, the bunch saw quite a sight.

* * *

Both seals seemed pleased as they could be. Wee Goldy shouted, "Mercy me! You'd think that they were starved, the way they gobble up the fish."

Just then the whole bunch whirled around to see what made a funny sound. A walrus crawled up on the ice and gave its tail a swish.

"Don't worry," said the Eskimo. "That fellow's smart enough to know that I have brought some fish out. He is coming for his share.

"Now, don't run off. He won't hurt you. He'll do just what I tell him to." "Oh, my, he looks so cross," said Dotty, "I got quite a scare."

NEW TEST FOR DEEP SAND AT H.B. PROPOSED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 15.—The W. E. McCaslin well has so far failed to make a flowing well, although the tubing has been inserted and the well, swabbed for 24 hours through the tubing. The tubing is to be installed and a packer placed on the end of it in an effort to shut off water which has been found to be coming into the well. It is believed the water is coming from about 5800 feet where the four inch casing was perforated a year or more ago in an effort to open a sand believed to be at that depth.

The sand opened proved to be a water sand and a "sleeve" was inserted to shut off the water. The S. R. Bowen company is making the packer for the tubing.

The smallness of the hole at the bottom, it being 3 1-2 inches, makes it almost impossible to clean out any debris that may have resulted from the heavy shot. Oil men may formulate plans for financing a deep test in the field to finish in the McCaslin sand with a six to eight inch hole, thus giving the sand a thorough test.

The well is showing enough oil to justify the belief of McCaslin and A. H. Trester that they may yet make a flowing well out of it, and that at any rate they have a profitable pumper of high gravity oil from a depth of 8300 feet. The McCaslin sand after being shot with 400 quarts of nitro glycerine, has demonstrated the deep sand in the Huntington Beach field, oil men declared.

Spanish Village Club To Purchase Site For Church

SAN CLEMENTE, Jan. 15.—Decision to purchase a site for a Community chudch building has been reached by members of the Solano club, it was announced today. The site consists of three adjacent lots on Granada avenue. The purchase is being made through Mrs. Eleanor Clark, local dealer in real estate.

The Community church has been organized for six years. The Rev. John C. Guenther, who has been pastor since the Rev. Ketcham was called to Ventura, was one of the first pastors. Services are held Sundays and Wednesday evenings in the school auditorium. The Solano club, women's auxiliary, will present the lot to the church.

Placentia Seeks CWA Sewer Funds

PLACENTIA, Jan. 15.—An additional CWA project is being submitted from Placentia with directors of the Sanitary district preparing to ask for money for sewer line work, including the raising of several manholes to the surface. On West Santa Fe avenue the manholes in places are five or more feet deep, owing to the filling in of the street several years ago.

SAYS PEOPLE NEED TO FACE STARK REALITY

BREA, Jan. 15.—"He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack; but he that hideth his eyes shall have many a curse." This was the text of the sermon preached Sunday morning in the Congregational church by the pastor, the Rev. Donald F. Gaylord.

Among other thing the Rev. Mr. Gaylord said: "One baby starving to death in our midst is looked upon with horror and in such an event all hearts would leap with sympathy and none but would come to the rescue in such an unhappy situation. And yet most Christian people accept with indifference the fact that 100,000 children die annually because of lack of proper nutrition or outright starvation."

"We insulate ourselves against such stark realities; we protect ourselves both physically and mentally from such unpleasantries. It is easy to neglect the suffering of humankind merely by avoiding knowledge of it and contact with it. It is a selfish habit, one of our greatest human failings, and it results in a moral callousness that dulls our sense of responsibility to our less fortunate neighbor."

"It is the Christian's obligation to know about poverty, sickness and grief. We may not like the idea that 10,000,000 of people are out of work but it is a fact and we should be morally sensitive to it. Jesus had no fear of knowing of human suffering; He became truly the Man of Sorrows."

"While it is possible to carry such seeking and such knowledge to morbidness, there is little danger of this being done. It would be a fine thing for Christianity if we found ourselves unable to sleep for thinking of the suffering of humanity. When this happens God's kingdom will be on the way."

BEACH SCHOOL PLANS SENT TO STATE OFFICE

NEWPORT BEACH, Jan. 15. — Following receipt of information that $110,000 of RFC money has been definitely set aside for use in rebuilding the earthquake damaged grammar school plant trustees of the Newport Beach schools are going ahead with the program of replacing the building and adding enough to it to take care of the natural increase in student population for the immediate future.

The R.F.C. money will take care of the replacement project, it was stated by members of the board, but some method of raising money enough to insure the expansion program will have to be employed. It is believed by the board that the balance of the cost can be arranged through other Federal funds that may be available and which will not have to be paid back by local taxpayers.

A unit designed to accommodate a maximum of 600 pupils is planned. It is hoped that the floor space of the building can be increased to the extent of 10,000 square feet. When the population has grown sufficiently to over-tax the proposed unit and make bus transportation impractical, other units will be gradually established on Balboa Island, Corona Del Mar, West Newport, or other such locations as the board thinks feasible. The school now has an enrollment of 400 pupils.

Tentative plans drawn by local architects, Kirby and Harvey, and now in the hands of the office of Andrew P. Hill, head of the state schoolhouse planning committee, call for 17 class rooms and an auditorium. The auditorium will be large enough to seat 500 persons. It will have a [illegible] but will be so arranged that it can be used for a cafeteria. The cafeteria kitchen will be used for the domestic science room. Seats in the auditorium will be movable. The building is to be placed at the front of the school property along Central avenue so that the playgrounds will be on the rear of the lot and adjacent to the beach. The caretaker's cottage and the tennis courts will remain intact.

The board has dismissed the idea of putting up temporary buildings, giving as the reason that it would be impossible to get a loan on such construction, and that it has been proven in other localities that high upkeep costs, low salvage values, and unsatisfactory service during use makes such buildings impractical.

The board has in mind now using reinforced concrete skeleton construction. Such construction, it is said, is designed to withstand earthquake shock, and can be made to comply with the rigid school building laws. In the interests of economy it is planned to use as much as possible of existing materials, such as boilers, plumbing fixtures, manual education machinery, and other materials now owned by the district.

Married Flirts

AIFA FICTION

© 1933 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy Morell and Tom Weaver are married the same day as Lila Hotaling and Derek Bliss. Lila expects to live in luxury, while Gypsy intends to go on with her job, teaching in a settlement house.

After returning from her honeymoon in Europe, Lila invites the Weavers to dinner. Among the guests is wealthy Marko Broughton, who once asked Gypsy to marry him. He showers her with attentions which she accepts because she is jealous of Tom's interest in Hilda Blanchard. After the party Tom and Gypsy quarrel, but peace is later restored.

They spend most of their weekends with Gypsy's parents in a New Jersey suburb.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X

The hall was full of the scent of wood fire as they came in, rosy and glowing from the out of doors. Gypsy's hand was linked in Tom's. It was one of those times to be looked back upon in life later with gratitude and wonderment, when two human hearts were perfectly in accord. But their moment was short lived. The hall was full of life and color and movement. Sue Canavan, her red curls crackling, her slim figure smartly set off by the blue wool frock she wore, came forward and greeted them gayly.

"We were just about to leave—we had given you two wanderers up for good."

The tall man looming at her side was someone Gypsy had not seen before. He had a lean, humorous face; craggy brows over slate gray eyes that seemed to see everything. Gypsy liked his handclasp. It was firm and cool and assured. His hair was begining to gray at the temples, making him look older than his years. Gypsy had heard Sue speak of Hunt Gibson before this. He had been described as a forty-leventh cousin." But they had not met before. Hunt, Sue was now explaining volubly, was just home from Singapore and points east.

"Engineer?" Tom inquired, with a shade of respect in his voice. Gypsy caught the note, remembering that it had been Tom's ambition to be a mining expert, before his father had died, leaving him to fend for himself, putting the possibility of further college years out of the question.

Hunt nodded, and as the girl slipped upstairs to change, she observed with satisfaction that the two men were deep in conversation.

But when Tom came upstairs a few moments later, to get into his Sunday gray and put his windbreaker and knickerbockers to dry, he seemed slightly grumpy.

"Ithought we were going along home early," he observed watching Gypsy running a comb through her wet curls. "Your mother says we're staying for supper."

"Ah, darling, I thought you'd understand that we couldn't run away like that," she began placatingly. "I haven't seen Sue for ages—we never seem to have time any more, right now, if you say so," she began. Perhaps she was too insistent upon family ties. Tom himself had no mother or father, and so she didn't know what it felt like to be submerged by one's in-laws. Rosina they seldom saw, as the claims of a large and growing family held her in her own particular groove.

Gypsy repeated this. "I'll tell Mums you have some work to finish—that's true, anyway, isn't it, darling?—and we'll barge along."

But his moment of ill-uhumor had passed. "Nonsense, dearest. We'll stay. Do you love your grouchy husband?"

"You're never that!" She was indignant. "I won't have you calling yourself names."

So they settled that particular question with the usual kisses, and Gypsy's eyes were starrier than usual when she rejoined the group downstairs.

"We've got to run," Sue announced, scandalized by the lateness of the hour and the girl twin's announcement that tea was imminent.

"Nonsense," protested Mrs. Morell, warmly. "Daddy and I are going over to the Williams for supper, but you must all stay—Bea will scramble eggs and someone will make coffee...."

* * *

So it was arranged. They all gathered in the big bright kitchen. The smel lof toasting bread and the pungent scent of fresh roasted coffee and frying bacon filled the air. Everybody carried plates into the shabby dining room, and the satin oval of Grandmother Morrell's mahogany table, one of the few good pieces left in the house, soon reflected candle light and half a dozen youthful faces.

"This is fun!" Hunt Gibson was at Gypsy's right. She smiled at him, liking the leaning ranginess of him. He was far from handsome, this engineer from the remote places of the earth, but there was something definitely attractive about him, Gypsy decided. He had a way of talking slangily out of the side of his mouth; and his stories were delightful.

"Bet you didn't have anything like this in Alfghanistan," Sue challenged, leaning across the table.

"You bet your life I didn't" he drawled, staring down at the girl beside him. Gypsy felt a queer little impulse of withdrawal; then, deciding she was imagining things, smiled warmly back at him. Just because you were married was scarcely good reason for refusing to be friends with another man. And there was no doubt about it—this young stranger was liking her tremendously. No matter what she said, no matter what she did, he applauded.

"She's cute," he told the assembled company, with his three-cornered grin. "Cute little girl, isn't she?"

It was half-past ten. It was eleven. Gypsy glanced at the clock and out at the drifts, piling high in the yard, making mounds of the small pines and the rhododendron bushes.

"We honestly must be getting back to town?"

The slate gray eyes regarded her, the drawling voice asked casually: "You don't live out here, then?"

The other four, Beatrice and Bertram, Tom and Sue, were playing parchesi. Gypsy and Gibson were in deep chairs opposite each other at the fire.

She raised her dark eyes to his, smilingly. "No, we live in the city. East Fifties."

"Rotten night to start out." His nod indicated the drifting snow against the windows.

"Isn't it? But it'll be better going now than starting out in the morning. And I have a job...."

"You!" He seemed vastly amused. "So you're one of those modern young women, too."

The tone nettled her, she could not have said why. "You've been away from civilization so long," she told him negligently, "that you've forgotten how these things are done...."

* * *

His great laugh rang out, and Tom Weaver, acros sthe room, moved one of his pink "men" five spaces and wondered what this chap could be talding about to Gypsy.

"No. I haven't forgotten." Hunt contrabuted, in the silence that followed. "I just don't think it goes together—the job and marriage."

Gypsy tossed her head. "Ah, but it does. I'm proving it."

"You are, eh?" He rubbed his chin, considering this. He rose, resting one foot on the fender, and lighted a cigaret with deft lean fingers. "Well, perhaps I'm wrong. Just an old-fashioned boy." He grinned at her, and her annoyance evaporated; but she was conscious, suddenly, of Tom's eyes upon her, and she crossed the room to stand at his side.

"How's it going?"

He smiled at her, drawing her down to the arm of his chair. "I'm We don't want to turn into hermits, do we?"

"No, but I want you to myself some time, you know that," he grumbled, laying his young cheek against her glowing round one.

She considered this. "I'll go along running them all ragged. Science does it."

She rumpled his hair, proprietarily, to show Mr. Hunt Gibson that one modern marriage, at least, withstood the acid test.

"Well, hurry up and bring this contest to a close, my love, because it grows late."

Tom shook a pair of sixes, moved his last man fourteen spaces, sent Sue's "blue baby" home and triumphantly finished the game.

"You brought me luck, darling."

"Fiend!" Sue muttered, pretending to be furious.

Gypsy went to gather her things together and Sue went with her.

"I like your cousin," Gypsy told the other girl, idly, perching her beret at a nimpossible angle and reddening her lips with expert fingers.

"Do you?" Sue's tone was casual, but she looked pleased. "I'm glad."

"We oughtn't to go before Mums and Dad get back," Gypsy went on. "Clytie isn't in, and I don't like to leave the twins alone."

Hunt drove them to the station in his sleek new car, a buff sedan of an expensive make. Tom eyed its bright fittings with respect they deserved.

"What d'you think of him, darling?" he asked, later as they rode sleepily along in a red plush seated coach, smelling of dust and stale cigars. "You seemed to be getting along like a house afire."

Gypsy patted away a yawn. "He's nice," she said. "But he's got stone age ideas. I couldn't have married a man like that."

NEW TEST FOR DEEP SAND AT H.B. PROPOSED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 15.—The W. E. McCaslin well has so far failed to make a flowing well, although the tubing has been inserted and the well, swabbed for 24 hours through the tubing. The tubing is to be installed and a packer placed on the end of it in an effort to shut off water which has been found to be coming into the well. It is believed the water is coming from about 5800 feet where the four inch casing was perforated a year or more ago in an effort to open a sand believed to be at that depth.

The sand opened proved to be a water sand and a "sleeve" was inserted to shut off the water. The S. R. Bowen company is making the packer for the tubing.

The smallness of the hole at the bottom, it being 3 1-2 inches, makes it almost impossible to clean out any debris that may have resulted from the heavy shot. Oil men may formulate plans for financing a deep test in the field to finish in the McCaslin sand with a six to eight inch hole, thus giving the sand a thorough test.

The well is showing enough oil to justify the belief of McCaslin and A. H. Trester that they may yet make a flowing well out of it, and that at any rate they have a profitable pumper of high gravity oil from a depth of 8300 feet. The McCaslin sand after being shot with 400 quarts of nitro glycerine, has demonstrated the deep sand in the Huntington Beach field, oil men declared.

Spanish Village Club To Purchase Site For Church

SAN CLEMENTE, Jan. 15.—Decision to purchase a site for a Community chudch building has been reached by members of the Solano club, it was announced today. The site consists of three adjacent lots on Granada avenue. The purchase is being made through Mrs. Eleanor Clark, local dealer in real estate.

The Community church has been organized for six years. The Rev. John C. Guenther, who has been pastor since the Rev. Ketcham was called to Ventura, was one of the first pastors. Services are held Sundays and Wednesday evenings in the school auditorium. The Solano club, women's auxiliary, will present the lot to the church.

Placentia Seeks CWA Sewer Funds

PLACENTIA, Jan. 15.—An additional CWA project is being submitted from Placentia with directors of the Sanitary district preparing to ask for money for sewer line work, including the raising of several manholes to the surface. On West Santa Fe avenue the manholes in places are five or more feet deep, owing to the filling in of the street several years ago.

SAYS PEOPLE NEED TO FACE STARK REALITY

BREA, Jan. 15.—"He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack; but he that hideth his eyes shall have many a curse." This was the text of the sermon preached Sunday morning in the Congregational church by the pastor, the Rev. Donald F. Gaylord.

Among other thing the Rev. Mr. Gaylord said: "One baby starving to death in our midst is looked upon with horror and in such an event all hearts would leap with sympathy and none but would come to the rescue in such an unhappy situation. And yet most Christian people accept with indifference the fact that 100,000 children die annually because of lack of proper nutrition or outright starvation."

"We insulate ourselves against such stark realities; we protect ourselves both physically and mentally from such unpleasantries. It is easy to neglect the suffering of humankind merely by avoiding knowledge of it and contact with it. It is a selfish habit, one of our greatest human failings, and it results in a moral callousness that dulls our sense of responsibility to our less fortunate neighbor."

"It is the Christian's obligation to know about poverty, sickness and grief. We may not like the idea that 10,000,000 of people are out of work but it is a fact and we should be morally sensitive to it. Jesus had no fear of knowing of human suffering; He became truly the Man of Sorrows."

"While it is possible to carry such seeking and such knowledge to morbidness, there is little danger of this being done. It would be a fine thing for Christianity if we found ourselves unable to sleep for thinking of the suffering of humanity. When this happens God's kingdom will be on the way."

BEACH SCHOOL PLANS SENT TO STATE OFFICE

NEWPORT BEACH, Jan. 15. — Following receipt of information that $110,000 of RFC money has been definitely set aside for use in rebuilding the earthquake damaged grammar school plant trustees of the Newport Beach schools are going ahead with the program of replacing the building and adding enough to it to take care of the natural increase in student population for the immediate future.

The R.F.C. money will take care of the replacement project, it was stated by members of the board, but some method of raising money enough to insure the expansion program will have to be employed. It is believed by the board that the balance of the cost can be arranged through other Federal funds that may be available and which will not have to be paid back by local taxpayers.

A unit designed to accommodate a maximum of 600 pupils is planned. It is hoped that the floor space of the building can be increased to the extent of 10,000 square feet. When the population has grown sufficiently to over-tax the proposed unit and make bus transportation impractical, other units will be gradually established on Balboa Island, Corona Del Mar, West Newport, or other such locations as the board thinks feasible. The school now has an enrollment of 400 pupils.

Tentative plans drawn by local architects, Kirby and Harvey, and now in the hands of the office of Andrew P. Hill, head of the state schoolhouse planning committee, call for 17 class rooms and an auditorium. The auditorium will be large enough to seat 500 persons. It will have a [illegible] but will be so arranged that it can be used for a cafeteria. The cafeteria kitchen will be used for the domestic science room. Seats in the auditorium will be movable. The building is to be placed at the front of the school property along Central avenue so that the playgrounds will be on the rear of the lot and adjacent to the beach. The caretaker's cottage and the tennis courts will remain intact.

The board has dismissed the idea of putting up temporary buildings, giving as the reason that it would be impossible to get a loan on such construction, and that it has been proven in other localities that high upkeep costs, low salvage values, and unsatisfactory service during use makes such buildings impractical.

The board has in mind now using reinforced concrete skeleton construction. Such construction, it is said, is designed to withstand earthquake shock, and can be made to comply with the rigid school building laws. In the interests of economy it is planned to use as much as possible of existing materials, such as boilers, plumbing fixtures, manual education machinery, and other materials now owned by the district.

Married Flirts

by MABEL McELLIOTT

NEA FICTION

© 1933 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy Morell and Tom Weaver are married the same day as Lila Hotaling and Derek Bliss. Lila expects to live in luxury, while Gypsy intends to go on with her job, teaching in a settlement house.

After returning from her honeymoon in Europe, Lila invites the Weavers to dinner. Among the guests is wealthy Marko Broughton, who once asked Gypsy to marry him. He showers her with attentions which she accepts because she is jealous of Tom's interest in Hilda Blanchard. After the party Tom and Gypsy quarrel, but peace is later restored.

They spend most of their weekends with Gypsy's parents in a New Jersey suburb.

CHAPTER X

The hall was full of the scent of wood fire as they came in, rosy and glowing from the out of doors. Gypsy's hand was linked in Tom's. It was one of those times to be looked back upon in life later with gratitude and wonderment, when two human hearts were perfectly in accord. But their moment was short lived. The hall was full of life and color and movement. Sue Canavan, her red curls crackling, her slim figure smartly set off by the blue wool frock she wore, came forward and greeted them gayly.

"We were just about to leave—we had given you two wanderers up for good."

The tall man looming at her side was someone Gypsy had not seen before. He had a lean, humorous face; craggy brows over slate gray eyes that seemed to see everything. Gypsy liked his handclasp. It was firm and cool and assured. His hair was begining to gray at the temples, making him look older than his years. Gypsy had heard Sue speak of Hunt Gibson before this. He had been described as a forty-leventh cousin." But they had not met before. Hunt, Sue was now explaining volubly, was just home from Singapore and points east.

"Engineer?" Tom inquired, with a shade of respect in his voice. Gypsy caught the note, remembering that it had been Tom's ambition to be a mining expert, before his father had died, leaving him to fend for himself, putting the possibility of further college years out of the question.

Hunt nodded, and as the girl slipped upstairs to change, she observed with satisfaction that the two men were deep in conversation.

But when Tom came upstairs a few moments later, to get into his Sunday gray and put his windbreaker and knickerbockers to dry, he seemed slightly grumpy.

"Ithought we were going along home early," he observed watching Gypsy running a comb through her wet curls. "Your mother says we're staying for supper."

"Ah, darling, I thought you'd understand that we couldn't run away like that," she began placatingly. "I haven't seen Sue for ages—we never seem to have time any more, right now, if you say so," she began. Perhaps she was too insistent upon family ties. Tom himself had no mother or father, and so she didn't know what it felt like to be submerged by one's in-laws, Rosina they seldom saw, as the claims of a large and growing family held her in her own particular groove.

Gypsy repeated this. "I'll tell Mums you have some work to finish—that's true, anyway, isn't it, darling?—and we'll barge along."

But his moment of ill-uhumor had passed. "Nonsense, dearest. We'll stay. Do you love your grouchy husband?"

"You're never that!" She was indignant. "I won't have you calling yourself names."

So they settled that particular question with the usual kisses, and Gypsy's eyes were starrier than usual when she rejoined the group downstairs.

"We've got to run," Sue announced, scandalized by the lateness of the hour and the girl twin's announcement that tea was imminent.

"Nonsense," protested Mrs. Morell, warmly. "Daddy and I are going over to the Williams for supper, but you must all stay—Bea will scramble eggs and someone will make coffee...."

* * *

So it was arranged. They all gathered in the big bright kitchen. The smel lof toasting bread and the pungent scent of fresh roasted coffee and frying bacon filled the air. Everybody carried plates into the shabby dining room, and the satin oval of Grandmother Morrell's mahogany table, one of the few good pieces left in the house, soon reflected candle light and half a dozen youthful faces.

"This is fun!" Hunt Gibson was at Gypsy's right. She smiled at him, liking the leaning ranginess of him. He was far from handsome, this engineer from the remote places of the earth, but there was something definitely attractive about him, Gypsy decided. He had a way of talking slangily out of the side of his mouth; and his stories were delightful.

"Bet you didn't have anything like this in Alfghanistan," Sue challenged, leaning across the table.

"You bet your life I didn't!" he drawled, staring down at the girl beside him. Gypsy felt a queer little impulse of withdrawal; then, deciding she was imagining things, smiled warmly back at him. Just because you were married was scarcely good reason for refusing to be friends with another man. And there was no doubt about it—this young stranger was liking her tremendously. No matter what she said, no matter what she did, he applauded.

"She's cute," he told the assembled company, with his three-cornered grin. "Cute little girl, isn't she?"

It was half-past ten. It was eleven. Gypsy glanced at the clock and out at the drifts, piling high in the yard, making mounds of the small pines and the rhododendron bushes.

"We honestly must be getting back to town?"

The slate gray eyes regarded her, the drawling voice asked casually: 'You don't live out here, then?"

The other four, Beatrice and Bertram, Tom and Sue, were playing parchesi. Gypsy and Gibson were in deep chairs opposite each other at the fire.

She raised her dark eyes to his, smilingly. "No, we live in the city. East Fifties."

"Rotten night to start out." His nod indicated the drifting snow against the windows.

"Isn't it? But it'll be better going now than starting out in the morning. And I have a job...."

"You!" He seemed vastly amused. "So you're one of those modern young women, too."

The tone nettled her, she could not have said why. "You've been away from civilization so long," she told him negligently, "that you've forgotten how these things are done...."

* * *

His great laugh rang out, and Tom Weaver, acros sthe room, moved one of his pink "men" five spaces and wondered what this chap could be talding about to Gypsy.

"No. I haven't forgotten." Hunt contrabuted, in the silence that followed. "I just don't think it goes together—the job and marriage."

Gypsy tossed her head. "Ah, but it does. I'm proving it."

"You are, eh?" He rubbed his chin, considering this. He rose, resting one foot on the fender, and lighted a cigaret with deft lean fingers. "Well, perhaps I'm wrong. Just an old-fashioned boy." He grinned at her, and her annoyance evaporated; but she was conscious, suddenly, of Tom's eyes upon her, and she crossed the room to stand at his side.

"How's it going?"

He smiled at her, drawing her down to the arm of his chair. "I'm We don't want to turn into hermits, do we?"

"No, but I want you to myself some time, you know that," he grumbled, laying his young cheek against her glowing round one.

She considered this. "I'll go along running them all ragged. Science does it."

She rumpled his hair, proprietarily, to show Mr. Hunt Gibson that one modern marriage, at least, withstood the acid test.

"Well, hurry up and bring this contest to a close, my love, because it grows late."

Tom shook a pair of sixes, moved his last man fourteen spaces, sent Sue's "blue baby" home and triumphantly finished the game.

"You brought me luck, darling."

"Fiend!" Sue muttered, pretending to be furious.

Gypsy went to gather her things together and Sue went with her.

"I like your cousin," Gypsy told the other girl, idly, perching her beret at a nimpossible angle and reddening her lips with expert fingers.

"Do you?" Sue's tone was casual, but she looked pleased. "I'm glad."

"We oughtn't to go before Mums and Dad get back," Gypsy went on. "Clytie isn't in, and I don't like to leave the twins alone."

But that problem was solved, as the Morells burst in, powdered with snow, at the moment.

Hunt drove them to the station in his sleek new car, a buff sedan of an expensive make. Tom eyed its bright fittings with respect they deserved.

"What d'you think of him, darling?" he asked, later as they rode sleepily along in a red plush seated coach, smelling of dust and stale cigars. "You seemed to be getting along like a house afire."

Gypsy patted away a yawn. 'He's nice," she said. "But he's got stone age ideas. I couldn't have married a man like that."

What SHE TOLD WORN-OUT HUSBAND

SHE could have reproached him for his fits of temper—his "all in" complaints. But wisely she saw in his frequent colds, his "fagged out," "on edge" condition the very trouble she herself had whipped. Constipation! LIFE OF QUEEN ELIZABETH TO BE PORTRAYED

"Elisabeth, the Queen," Maxwell Anderson's dramatic presentation of events in the life of England's famous queen, will serve as the vehicle for Virginia and Robert DeuPree as tonight's broadcast of the series, "Scenes From Famous Plays," from KREG. This will be heard at a new time and will start at 8:45.

The scene selected for presentation tonight is the meeting of the queen and her lover, the Earl of Essex, following his arrest on charges of high treason. The way the crafty earl traps the queen and the manner in which she tricks him places the scene among the foremost of dramatic situations. The play had an 11 months' run in New York City when produced by the Theater Guild, with the famous, romantic team of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine in the stellar roles.

Listeners are requested to indicate their approval or disapproval of these presentations by card, letter or telephone to the local station. program officials stated.

Dental Collection Good Bait

FREEPORT, Tex.—(UP)—When a bait bites the fish, that's news. Dr. Joe Simmons, Dallas dentist, went after kingfish off this port and used a collection of old molars, artificial gums, studded with hooks, the whole moulded together, to make several big catches.

Regular Schedule Television Over Coast Network

Extension and improvement of existing television facilities to the point where images may be received in any part of California was demonstrated in a series of experiments in Alameda recently when television images from the Don Lee television station W6XS at Los Angeles were shown to a group of San Francisco bay district university professors and radio authorities by the engineers of the Don Lee broadcasting system.

Not only were close-ups received, but outdoor scenes and boxing bouts from Paramount motion picture shorts and features were shown and identified.

The Don Lee stations W6XS, 2800 kilocycles (107 meters) and W6XAO, 44,500 kilocycles (6 2/4 meters), broadcast full length Paramount feature pictures, Paramount shorts and Pathe Newsreels each evening except Sunday, from 7 to 9 o'clock, and on Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 to 11 a. m.

In November, California, Oregon and Washington made 16 2-3 per cent of the requests from the entire United States. POPULAR GIRL PREPARES FOR PACIFIC TOUR

ANAHEIM, Jan. 15.—One of Anaheim's most popular daughters, Miss Dorothy Yungbluth, daughter of Councilman and Mrs. F. A. Yungbluth, was feted Saturday night with a bon voyage party when Miss Ellen Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Gibbs of 929 East Center street, entertained at her home.

Miss Yungbluth will sail on the Lurline on January 4 for a cruise of the Pacific ocean that will take her to the Hawaiian Islands, Philippine Islands, the Orient, the South Sea Islands and Australia. She will not return until the end of March.

The evening of games that were suited to the occasion was climaxed when the honoree was presented with a large sailing ship piled high with bon voyage gifts. The white sailing boat bore the name Lurline and was topped with an American flag and the Matson line flag. Each guest then wrote short letters to the honoree which were presented to her to be opened on certain designated dates during her trip.

Prizes for the various games enjoyed were claimed by Miss Martha Adams and Miss Marion Utter.

At the refreshment hour a buffet supper was served, Mrs. William Bushman (nee Marion Fotchman), being seated behind the coffee urn and Miss Josephine Cook behind the tea service. The long table was centered with a bowl of red and white sweetpeas and greenery while lighted tapers completed the table appointments. The individual ices were each centered with a large blue M for the Matson steamship lines.

Those present were the Misses Martha Adams, Marion Utter, Florence Backs, Helen Grafton, Carolyn Gibbs, Josephine Cook, Mary Beebe, Sarah Fay, the honoree, Dorothy Yungbluth and the hostess and the Mesdames William Bushman, George Sloop and Kenneth Walker.

FORMER RESIDENT OF ANAHEIM TO WED

ANAHEIM, Jan. 15.—Of much interest to her many friends in Orange county comes the news of the betrothal of Miss Phyliss Browne, formerly of Anaheim but now of Los Angeles, to George Candee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Candee of 137 East 47th street, Los Angeles, the marriage to take place at the Wee Kirk O' the Heather in Glendale on February 14.

The romantic announcement was revealed yesterday afternoon at a prettily appointed luncheon when the bride-elect entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Browne of 1415 South St. Andrews place.

Tiny parchment scrolls placed in the center of each red rosebud corsage that were found at the covers of each guest told the story. The table was centered with masses of sweetpeas while Valentine place cards completed the table appointments.

The bride-elect was assisting in receiving by her parents and sister, Miss Ruth Browne, the latter to be maid of honor at the marriage ceremony while a younger sister, petite Betty Browne, will be bridesmaid.

Covers were laid for the Misses Audrey Fraser of Ventura; Nelle Grafton of Anaheim; Marjorie Donker, Ruth Kimball and the hostess, of Los Angeles and Mrs. Charles Collins of Los Angeles.

Miss Browne attended the Anaheim Union High school, but graduated from the Los Angeles Polytechnic High school after which she attended Los Angeles Junior college.

ANAHEIM PERSONALS

ANAHEIM, Jan. 15.—The A. B. Paul Woman's Relief corps will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the I. O. O. F. hall, Mrs. Ida J. Hughes, recently elected president, will be in the chair for the first time.

ANAHEIM HOLDS CITY ELECTION ON APRIL NINE

ANAHEIM, Jan. 15.—With the Anaheim Municipal election not so far distant, April 9, and much to be done before ballots can be cast, thoughts are turning political and speculations are running riot as to who will attempt to fill the three councilmen chairs that will be empty and the two year unexpired term of city clerk.

The three councilmen whose terms are concluded this spring are Leo Sheridan, M. W. Martenet, jr., and F. A. Yungbluth, the latter appointed to fill the vacancy created by the death of Mayor Fred Koesel over a year ago.

In a statement to the press City Clerk John Price stated that he will run for the office of city clerk and thus it looks as if the political battle that has waged around Price and "Doc" E. E. Long for several elections, will be renewed. Rumor has it that "Doc" Long, runner up for councilman in the last election will run again but whether for council or city clerk is not known.

It is certain, however, that "Doc" Long and his co-horts are sharpening their knives for meetings on South Lemon street are being held regularly with another one scheduled for this week.

"I will have an announcement for the press within two weeks" he said as he indicated that the text of it will contain several surprises. He refused to commit himself on his candidacy.

The ball starts rolling on February 8, the date set for the notice of election and the signing of nomination papers. March 20 is the last filing date for nomination papers.

Radio News

LIFE OF QUEEN ELIZABETH TO BE PORTRAYED

"Elisabeth, the Queen," Maxwell Anderson's dramatic presentation of events in the life of England's famous queen, will serve as the vehicle for Virginia and Robert DeuPree as tonight's broadcast of the series, "Scenes From Famous Plays," from KREG. This will be heard at a new time and will start at 8:45.

The scene selected for presentation tonight is the meeting of the queen and her lover, the Earl of Essex, following his arrest on charges of high treason. The way the crafty earl traps the queen and the manner in which she tricks him places the scene among the foremost of dramatic situations. The play had an 11 months' run in New York City when produced by the Theater Guild, with the famous, romantic team of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine in the stellar roles.

Listeners are requested to indicate their approval or disapproval of these presentations by card, letter or telephone to the local station, program officials stated.

ANDREW JACKSON IS BROADCAST SUBJECT

Andrew Jackson dabbles in politics tonight at 8 o'clock on KREG when the California Broadcasting System will offer another episode in the life of the red-headed President-to-be.

Eddie Lynn's "Our American Presidents" series is in the process of analyzing the life and loves of America's duelling President. Ralph Forbes, who takes the leading role, promises another of his outstanding performances tonight.

This feature presentation is usually scheduled Fridays, at 8 p. m., but an unavoidable change in schedule brings it to listeners tonight, as it was omitted last Friday.

Dental Collection Good Bait

FREEPORT, Tex.—(UP) — When a bait bites the fish, that's news. Dr. Joe Simmons, Dallas dentist, went after kingfish off this port and used a collection of old molars, artificial gums, studded with hooks, the whole moulded together, to make several big catches.

Regular Schedule Television Over Coast Network

Extension and improvement of existing television facilities to the point where images may be received in any part of California was demonstrated in a series of experiments in Alameda recently when television images from the Don Lee television station W6XS at Los Angeles were shown to a group of San Francisco bay district university professors and radio authorities by the engineers of the Don Lee broadcasting system.

Not only were close-ups received, but outdoor scenes and boxing bouts from Paramount motion picture shorts and features were shown and identified.

The Don Lee stations W6XS, 2800 kilocycles (107 meters) and W6XAO, 44,500 kilocycles (6.2/4 meters), broadcast full length Paramount feature pictures, Paramount shorts and Pathe Newsreels each evening except Sunday, from 7 to 9 o'clock, and on Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 to 11 a. m.

Instructions for the construction of a television receiver can be secured by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the television department of the Don Lee broadcasting system, Los Angeles.

Program officials stated that each broadcast by Florence Martin is gaining for her more enthusiastic and appreciative listeners.

Coast States Like Contented Hour

Pacific coast states are especially "lullaby conscious," according to a check on requests for special numbers just completed by the Carnation company of Seattle and Milwaukee, in connection with its "Contented Hour" broadcasts each Monday evening over the NBC network. In November, California, Oregon and Washington made 16 2-3 per cent of the requests from the entire United States. More requests came from California alone than from any other single state in both October and November.

POPULAR GIRL PREPARES FOR PACIFIC TOUR

ANAHEIM, Jan. 15.—One of Anaheim's most popular daughters, Miss Dorothy Yungbluth, daughter of Councilman and Mrs. F. A. Yungbluth, was feted Saturday night with a bon voyage party when Miss Ellen Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Gibbs of 929 East Center street, entertained at her home.

Miss Yungbluth will sail on the Lurline on January 4 for a cruise of the Pacific ocean that will take her to the Hawaiian Islands, Philippine Islands, the Orient, the South Sea Islands and Australia. She will not return until the end of March.

The evening of games that were suited to the occasion was climaxed when the honoree was presented with a large sailing ship piled high with bon voyage gifts. The white sailing boat bore the name Lurline and was topped with an American flag and the Matson line flag. Each guest then wrote short letters to the honoree which were presented to her to be opened on certain designated dates during her trip.

Prizes for the various games enjoyed were claimed by Miss Martha Adams and Miss Marion Utter.

At the refreshment hour a buffet supper was served, Mrs. William Bushman (nee Marion Fotchman), being seated behind the coffee urn and Miss Josephine Cook behind the tea service. The long table was centered with a bowl of red and white sweetpeas and greenery while lighted tapers completed the table appointments. The individual ices were each centered with a large blue M for the Matson steamship lines.

Those present were the Misses Martha Adams, Marion Utter, Florence Backs, Helen Grafton, Carolyn Gibbs, Josephine Cook, Mary Beebe, Sarah Fay, the honoree, Dorothy Yungbluth and the hostess and the Mesdames William Bushman, George Sloop and Kenneth Walker.

FORMER RESIDENT OF ANAHEIM TO WED

ANAHEIM, Jan. 15.—Of much interest to her many friends in Orange county comes the news of the betrothal of Miss Phyliss Browne, formerly of Anaheim but now of Los Angeles, to George Candee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Candee of 137 East 47th street, Los Angeles, the marriage to take place at the Wee Kirk O' the Heather in Glendale on February 14.

The romantic announcement was revealed yesterday afternoon at a prettily appointed luncheon when the bride-elect entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Browne of 1415 South St. Andrews place.

Tiny parchment scrolls placed in the center of each red rosebud corsage that were found at the covers of each guest told the story. The table was centered with masses of sweetpeas while Valentine place cards completed the table appointments.

The bride-elect was assisting in receiving by her parents and sister, Miss Ruth Browne, the latter to be maid of honor at the marriage ceremony while a younger sister, petite Betty Browne, will be bridesmaid.

Covers were laid for the Misses Audrey Fraser of Ventura; Nelle Grafton of Anaheim; Marjorie Donker, Ruth Kimball and the hostess, of Los Angeles and Mrs. Charles Collins of Los Angeles.

Miss Browne attended the Anaheim Union High school, but graduated from the Los Angeles Polytechnic High school after which she attended Los Angeles Junior college.

ANAHEIM PERSONALS

ANAHEIM, Jan. 15.—The A. B. Paul Woman's Relief corps will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the I. O. O. F. hall, Mrs. Ida J. Hughes, recently elected president, will be in the chair for the first time.

ANAHEIM HOLDS CITY ELECTION ON APRIL NINE

ANAHEIM, Jan. 15.—With the Anaheim Municipal election not so far distant, April 9, and much to be done before ballots can be cast, thoughts are turning political and speculations are running riot as to who will attempt to fill the three councilmen chairs that will be empty and the two year unexpired term of city clerk.

The three councilmen whose terms are concluded this spring are Leo Sheridan, M. W. Martenet, jr., and F. A. Yungbluth, the latter appointed to fill the vacancy created by the death of Mayor Fred Koesel over a year ago.

In a statement to the press City Clerk John Price stated that he will run for the office of city clerk and thus it looks as if the political battle that has waged around Price and "Doc" E. E. Long for several elections, will be renewed. Rumor has it that "Doc" Long, runner up for councilman in the last election will run again but whether for council or city clerk is not known.

It is certain, however, that "Doc" Long and his co-horts are sharpening their knives for meetings on South Lemon street are being held regularly with another one scheduled for this week.

"I will have an announcement for the press within two weeks" he said as he indicated that the text of it will contain several surprises. He refused to commit himself on his candidacy.

The ball starts rolling on February 8, the date set for the notice of election and the signing of nomination papers. March 20 is the last filing date for nomination papers.

THE BANK CODE QUESTION

The announcement of the Bankers' code on December 29, to become effective January 1, raised such an immediate ruction and protest all over the country that General Johnson, the Director of the NRA, immediately cancelled it. The first order put it off until February 1. Later, the director announced a hearing on the matter for February 15. Until that time, the present practice of the banks continues.

Last August, at a meeting of the representatives of the American Bankers' Association in Chicago, a general code of practice was agreed upon and apparently approved by General Johnson, who was present. Within the framework of that general code, groups of banks within defined areas were to be permitted to assess charges for services rendered in the handling of checking accounts. It was presumed that each group would survey its own locality, and agree upon a uniform rate. The difficulty with that arrangement was that within the prescribed areas there were very large banks and very small banks; and what might be feasible for the large banks with their large commercial accounts would prove a hardship for the small banks with their small commercial accounts.

It now appears that the charges were stipulated by the New York Clearing House, and passed on through the individual states to the local communities. We glean this information from the Financial and Commercial Chronicle of January 6. The impression given, at least to the small banks, was that these charges were ordered by the NRA authorities, and that no changes could be made. Therefore, on the part of some they were reluctantly accepted under protest.

The charges were so burdensome to the depositor that it would inevitably have led to the discontinuance of millions of accounts, involving many more millions of dollars and the possible wrecking of the smaller banks. It is said that when the President read the figures, the roof of the White House was raised several feet. The editor of the New Republic remarked that the only thing the Bankers' Committee forgot was to put a turnstile at the entrance of every bank in the country calling for a nickel in the slot for every one that went into the bank and a dime to get out.

There is a general belief that it was designed to put the little banks out of business in the interest of branch banking on the part of the very large banks. Whether that were so or not, the announced code raised a new opposition to the bankers in addition to what already existed by reason of the banking debacle of last March.

Another possible explanation of the matter is that the framers may have included all of these provisions for purpose of sinking the code, and to make it ridiculous. If this were true, it was no more laudable than the other idea.

The people have become impatient with the Wiggins, the Mitchells, the Dawes, and the Lords. The sooner the bankers of the country refuse to take orders from New York, the better it will be for bankers and depositors alike. The Committee of the Senate has revealed conditions which will no longer be permitted to continue. Our advice would be to bankers to scrutinize the origin of all suggestions made, lest they fall into another trap like that into which they unwarily stepped when they adopted the code disavowed by the President and General Johnson.

SOUNDING TASTES

The National Recreation Society concerns itself with leisure time problems which we are told will be serious in the future. Five thousand people answered a questionnaire which the organization sent out. The questionnaire listed ninety-four activities and asked people to indicate the ten in order of their interest.

The resulting information reveals that among those people sounded reading newspapers and magazines was the most popular, listening to the radio came second. Others in the order of importance were: attending pictures, visiting or entertaining others, reading fiction books, motoring, swimming, letter writing, reading nonfiction books and conversation. The survey covered twenty-nine cities. Three thousand, nine hundred and seventy-seven listed newspaper and magazine reading and 2735 listed conversation.

The answers to the questionnaire are interesting. One always likes to know what other people do. It is surprising with newspaper and magazine reading being the most popular form of recreation and visiting and entertaining being high in the list, that conversation doesn't rank nearer the top for people usually like to talk about what they read. But probably many did not realize how much they like to converse.

A TRUSTWORTHY INDEX

For the last five years the Industrial Commission of New York has made an annual survey of employment conditions in selected areas of Buffalo, N. Y. It was begun by Frances Perkins, now Secretary of Labor in the President's cabinet, when she was Commissioner, and has been continued by the present Commissioner, Elmer E. Andrews.

The fifth annual survey has just been published, and reveals some interesting facts. A thorough canvass was made of a representative group of workers in the area above noted. Only those were included who were able or willing to work, both men and women. It was found that 62.7 per cent of the men were employed full time during November, 12.2 per cent were employed part time, and 25.1 per cent could find no job. Thus one-fourth of the men able or willing to work are still unemployed. This, however, is 7.5 per cent better than it was a year ago.

The statistics of the past five years of those able or willing to work who could not find work, are as follows: 1929, 6.2 per cent; 1930, 17.2 per cent; 1931, 24.3 per cent; 1932, 32.6 per cent; 1933, 25.1 per cent. This is a reliable index, and would apply quite generally to conditions in the whole country. Although it might be well to make a similar survey in a number of other areas.

There is one phase of the survey, however, which is not so favorable. It is that 56.2 per cent of the women able and willing to work in 1933, but unable to find a job, is to be set over against 25.4 per cent in the same condition in 1932. That is, while there were 7.5 per cent less men unemployed in 1933 than in 1932, there were 31.2 per cent more women unemployed this year than last year. That is, while employment has increased for men over last year, unemployment of women is more than twice as great. It would be of interest to know whether this increased number of unemployed women were in absolute need of work, or whether they were working merely for "pin money" for themselves. If the former, the figures are significant; if the latter, they do not much matter.

This is a study which is very much worth while, and with the increase in the number of years will serve as a very reliable index of employment conditions.

NOT "A GOOD FELLOW"

Mayor La Guardia of New York around the time of his assumption of office announced bluntly that he was not going to try to be "a good fellow."

"An elected public official under our form of government must be ungrateful," he said. "I have many friends who worked hard for my election. I cannot appoint them to office, because they don't happen to be fitted to hold it. You can't be a good fellow and a good mayor."

This idea expressed by Mayor La Guardia should be expressed by more elected officials. If ever the idea became fixed that nothing was to be expected of elected officials except appointments for ability and fitness alone it would be excellent for the administration of the affairs of the people of the country.

Nosing Out the Nose

Christian Science Monitor

The public's nose is very much in the public eye at the moment. It is threatened with technological unemployment. That the machine age has overtaken it is indicated in the reports fresh from Harvard University which tell of the osmoscope, invented by Prof. Gordon M. Fair.

The scope of the osmoscope promises to be greater than that of the most protrusive protuberance yet projected by a human face. It is expected to measure incredibly faint odors. Among the famous noses of history, indeed, it will have the unique distinction of being outdone not even by that mighty olfactory organ of Cyrano de Bergerac. True, Cyrano's nose could smell a personal enemy. But Professor Fair's nose—that is, his mechanical one— will go further. It will sniff public enemies, such as impurities in a city's drinking water.

Of course, from the aesthetic point of view, the osmoscope may still lack something. But by fortunate coincidence a beauty expert has come forward in the last day or two with a study of ways to remedy defects of the nose. Perhaps this expert's theories can be applied to the contours of the osmoscope to such an extent that everybody will be glad to wear one in place of his regular—but rather irregular—appurtenance.

Thus has everyone's nose assumed a new prominence. It is unlikely forward-looking people will be content to go around with quite-old-fashioned, evidently inefficient and totally unimproved gibbosities preceding them. For within reach is the osmoscope, capable not only of doing a better job, but perhaps of being left at the beautician's while its owner goes about his business, and even of being steam-heated on frosty mornings.

Pasadena and Marathon

New York Times

Columbia's football triumph at Pasadena gives every promise of winning place in the revised list of fifteen decisive battles of the world. We all know that the first of these historic encounters, Marathon, was decisive for civilization because it was a victory of the West over the East. No time is now being lost in deducing the most momentous consequences from the triumph of East over West in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

It is many years since the course of athletic empire began moving, away from the East to the Pacific. Of late, Western supremacy has become so conspicuous that it was no longer possible to doubt the fact, and the experts have been reduced to look for the reasons. They have found them in the West's climate, its open spaces, its youth. These reasons are so sound that it behooves us now to pause a moment before discarding them on the strength of a single Eastern touchdown.

Yet it may very well be that the Pasadena victory is all that was needed to rouse the drooping manhood of the East and ban the spirit of defeatism. It needed just one Marathon to show that the armies of Darius and Xerxes could be beaten.

Political Window Dressing

San Francisco Chronicle

"Rationalization" is the commonest form of self-deceit. It consists in giving a plausible reason for what we have done for quite other motives.

So we have Mussolini wanting to reorganize the League of Nations, to remove the objections America, Germany, Japan and Russia have to joining or remaining in it; France insisting on leaving it as it is, in the interest of the democracies against the dictatorships, and Germany demanding, in or out of the League, its right of "equality."

All good causes—too good to be the actual motives. What Mussolini wants is to make over the League so France can no longer control it and he can. France is loyal to the League "as is," wholly because, on that setup, France and its allies can run it. Hitler wants "equality," not because it is right, but because he wants to use it to do wrong to Poland and Austria. The actual motives are very real. The rationalized explanations are window dressing.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

IT'S DIFFERENT IN THE DARK

Somewhere there must be giants
For little boys to slay,
And wicked gnomes
That make their homes
In mountains far away.
There must be friendly goblins
That always flit about—
A gallant band
To be on hand
To help a fellow out.

For when the sun is shining
Nobody is as bold
As Tommy is;
That sword of his
Could hack down foes untold.
The very worst of pirates
Would surely be afraid
And shake with awe
If once they saw
That keen and gleaming blade.

But when the shadows gather
And, through the velvet gloom,
A furry mouse
Creeps in the house
And scampers 'round the room,
He hides beneath the covers,
Once more he says his prayers,
And, oh! he's glad
His great big dad
Is only just downstairs.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

SEDATE REVOLUTIONISTS

We Americans are sedate revolutionists!

We undergo the most radical readjustments in our life and enterprise without riot or blood-letting. We bear a thousand marks of rawness in our national culture, but this is a sign of rare maturity of temper. Under the surface of American life there is a genuine realism that needs but a challenge to evoke it.

A glance backward at 1933 is all that is needed to prove this. I wonder what the readers of these articles would have thought of my sanity if, in the late summer of 1932, I had prophesied that, during the year 1933, the following would take place:

That all the banks in the United States would be closed by national order.

That most of them would be reopened through federal assistance before the year was out.

That the national government would disavow its ontracts to pay in gold or its equivalent.

That the President would be invested with virtually dictatorial power over the life and fortune of the individuals and institutions of the nation.

That the national government would virtually dictate the wage scales of the country.

That a sweeping policy of price-fixing would loom as a definite possibility.

That the national government would pour millions multiplied into the pockets of the farmers for not producing foodstuffs and industrial raw materials.

That the national government would take the first steps in a program of spending on public works, subsidies and the like, which would shoot the public debt beyond the debt that the World War piled up.

That prohibition would be wiped out.

That the anti-trust laws would be more or less set aside.

That Soviet Russia would be recognized.

That a system strikingly like the corporative state of Mussolini would become a living possibility, with the national government serving as the not-so-silent partner in virtually every important industry in the country.

Suppose I had predicted all this in the late summer of 1932 as about to happen within the brief space of a year! I can see the flood of protesting letters that would have reached my desk. And yet all this is now history.

Even if I disagreed with seventy-five per cent of all this, it would nevertheless make me very happy. For a people that can digest all this in a year, without batting an eye, is a people that will sooner or later do a good job of adjusting the old tools of government to the new tasks of government.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

SPOILED CHILDREN

When little children discover that they hold one's happiness in their infant hands they take great delight in exercising their power. Inexperienced and ignorant of the implications of their relationship to mothers and grandmothers and other fond relatives they strike right and left and never heed the pain they cause.. They don't feel it for they have not reached the stage of reflective thought. The adult has and suffers in consequence.

Bunnie was the only child in a big family of adults. Aunts and uncles and grandparents and father and mother united in adoring him. He was handsome, bewitching and remarkably intelligent. Above all others he loved his mother and upon her fell the brunt of the spoiling he experienced at the hands of his relatives.

Coming home after a trip to the circus with auntie, Bunnie met the welcoming committee of father and mother and grandpa with scowls. Strutting and swaggering he sent a shaft in his mother's direction. "You needn't ask me what I saw. I'm not going to tell you. I don't like you."

Mother was deeply hurt. "Tut, tut," said grandpa. "What's this? A strange little boy got in here by mistake. Grandpa wants his own Bunny."

"Here I am, grandpa," and instantly Bunnie was all smiles. But he clambered down almost immediately from the grandfatherly arms and began peering about for his mother. Spying her in another room he ran to her and assuming the pose of "Napoleon" he announced, "I won't show you what Aunt Mary bought me. And I won't tell you who took me in to see the monkeys, either. I'll tell everybody but I won't tell you, 'cause I don't like you."

His astonished mother could do nothing but weep. "I don't care if you do cry. I don't like you and I'm not going to give you a kiss either." This in spite of the fact that he had not been asked for a kiss. Nor for any expression of confidence. His mother pleaded with him in vain. He was not going to let her think he wanted any attention from her but that was really what he wanted most of all. Pleading with him would not correct his attitude. Quite the opposite.

The spoiled child gets an exaggerated notion of his importance to the people about him. As soon as he feels important he wants to prove his power. He tries to show the family they are right in considering him wise and important and powerful. But he does not know how. He goes about it wrong end first.

When a child struts like this the best thing to do is to turn a cold shoulder toward him. Yawn at his impassioned statements of like and dislike. Don't hear his pronouncements. "Quite all right if you feel that way, I'm sure. I am going out for a visit to the farm. It's delightful out there today. Good-bye," will go farther toward bringing the spoiled child to a proper sense of his place in the family than all the scolding and pleading and tears combined.

Don't overdo affection and pride and thec hild won't get this way. But if he has arrived at this unpleasant stage, try sending him to Coventry. The more intelligent he is the sooner he sees the point.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)

The Committee of the Senate has revealed conditions which will no longer be permitted to continue. Our advice would be to bankers to scrutinize the origin of all suggestions made, lest they fall into another trap like that into which they unwarily stepped when they adopted the code disavowed by the President and General Johnson.

SOUNDING TASTES

The National Recreation Society concerns itself with leisure time problems which we are told will be serious in the future. Five thousand people answered a questionnaire which the organization sent out. The questionnaire listed ninety-four activities and asked people to indicate the ten in order of their interest.

The resulting information reveals that among those people sounded reading newspapers and magazines was the most popular, listening to the radio came second. Others in the order of importance were: attending pictures, visiting or entertaining others, reading fiction books, motoring, swimming, letter writing, reading nonfiction books and conversation. The survey covered twenty-nine cities. Three thousand, nine hundred and seventy-seven listed newspaper and magazine reading and 2735 listed conversation.

The answers to the questionnaire are interesting. One always likes to know what other people do. It is surprising with newspaper and magazine reading being the most popular form of recreation and visiting and entertaining being high in the list, that conversation doesn't rank nearer the top for people usually like to talk about what they read. But probably many did not realize how much they like to converse.

A TRUSTWORTHY INDEX

For the last five years the Industrial Commission of New York has made an annual survey of employment conditions in selected areas of Buffalo, N. Y. It was begun by Frances Perkins, now Secretary of Labor in the President's cabinet, when she was Commissioner, and has been continued by the present Commissioner, Elmer E. Andrews.

The fifth annual survey has just been published, and reveals some interesting facts. A thorough canvass was made of a representative group of workers in the area above noted. Only those were included who were able or willing to work, both men and women. It was found that 62.7 per cent of the men were employed full time during November, 12.2 per cent were employed part time, and 25.1 per cent could find no job. Thus one-fourth of the men able or willing to work are still unemployed. This, however, is 7.5 per cent better than it was a year ago.

The statistics of the past five years of those able or willing to work who could not find work, are as follows: 1929, 6.2 per cent; 1930, 17.2 per cent; 1931, 24.3 per cent; 1932, 32.6 per cent; 1933, 25.1 per cent. This is a reliable index, and would apply quite generally to conditions in the whole country. Although it might be well to make a similar survey in a number of other areas.

There is one phase of the survey, however, which is not so favorable. It is that 56.2 per cent of the women able and willing to work in 1933, but unable to find a job, is to be set over against 25.4 per cent in the same condition in 1932. That is, while there were 7.5 per cent less men unemployed in 1933 than in 1932, there were 31.2 per cent more women unemployed this year than last year. That is, while employment has increased for men over last year, unemployment of women is more than twice as great. It would be of interest to know whether this increased number of unemployed women were in absolute need of work, or whether they were working merely for "pin money" for themselves. If the former, the figures are significant; if the latter, they do not much matter.

This is a study which is very much worth while, and with the increase in the number of years will serve as a very reliable index of employment conditions.

NOT "A GOOD FELLOW"

Mayor La Guardia of New York around the time of his assumption of office announced bluntly that he was not going to try to be "a good fellow."

"An elected public official under our form of government must be ungrateful," he said. "I have many friends who worked hard for my election. I cannot appoint them to office, because they don't happen to be fitted to hold it. You can't be a good fellow and a good mayor."

This idea expressed by Mayor La Guardia should be expressed by more elected officials. If ever the idea became fixed that nothing was to be expected of elected officials except appointments for ability and fitness alone it would be excellent for the administration of the affairs of the people of the country.

Nosing Out the Nose

Christian Science Monitor

The public's nose is very much in the public eye at the moment. It is threatened with technological unemployment. That the machine age has overtaken it is indicated in the reports fresh from Harvard University which tell of the osmoscope, invented by Prof. Gordon M. Fair.

The scope of the osmoscope promises to be greater than that of the most protrusive protuberance yet projected by a human face. It is expected to measure incredibly faint odors. Among the famous noses of history, indeed, it will have the unique distinction of being outdone not even by that mighty olfactory organ of Cyrano de Bergerac. True, Cyrano's nose could smell a personal enemy. But Professor Fair's nose—that is, his mechanical one— will go further. It will sniff public enemies, such as impurities in a city's drinking water.

Of course, from the aesthetic point of view, the osmoscope may still lack something. But by fortunate coincidence a beauty expert has come forward in the last day or two with a study of ways to remedy defects of the nose. Perhaps this expert's theories can be applied to the contours of the osmoscope to such an extent that everybody will be glad to wear one in place of his regular—but rather irregular—appurtenance.

Thus has everyone's nose assumed a new prominence. It is unlikely forward-looking people will be content to go around with quite-old-fashioned, evidently inefficient and totally unimproved gibbosities preceding them. For within reach is the osmoscope, capable not only of doing a better job, but perhaps of being left at the beautician's while its owner goes about his business, and even of being steam-heated on frosty mornings.

Pasadena and Marathon

New York Times

Columbia's football triumph at Pasadena gives every promise of winning place in the revised list of fifteen decisive battles of the world. We all know that the first of these historic encounters, Marathon, was decisive for civilization because it was a victory of the West over the East. No time is now being lost in deducing the most momentous consequences from the triumph of East over West in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

It is many years since the course of athletic empire began moving, away from the East to the Pacific. Of late, Western supremacy has become so conspicuous that it was no longer possible to doubt the fact, and the experts have been reduced to look for the reasons. They have found them in the West's climate, its open spaces, its youth. These reasons are so sound that it behooves us now to pause a moment before discarding them on the strength of a single Eastern touchdown.

Yet it may very well be that the Pasadena victory is all that was needed to rouse the drooping manhood of the East and ban the spirit of defeatism. It needed just one Marathon to show that the armies of Darius and Xerxes could be beaten.

Political Window Dressing

San Francisco Chronicle

"Rationalization" is the commonest form of self-deceit. It consists in giving a plausible reason for what we have done for quite other motives.

So we have Mussolini wanting to reorganize the League of Nations, to remove the objections America, Germany, Japan and Russia have to joining or remaining in it; France insisting on leaving it as it is, in the interest of the democracies against the dictatorships, and Germany demanding, in or out of the League, its right of "equality."

All good causes—too good to be the actual motives. What Mussolini wants is to make over the League so France can no longer control it and he can. France is loyal to the League "as is," wholly because, on that setup, France and its allies can run it. Hitler wants "equality," not because it is right, but because he wants to use it to do wrong to Poland and Austria. The actual motives are very real. The rationalized explanations are window dressing.

"And I Thought I Was Red!"

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

IT'S DIFFERENT IN THE DARK

Somewhere there must be giants
For little boys to slay,
And wicked gnomes
That make their homes
In mountains far away.
There must be friendly goblins
That always flit about—
A gallant band
To be on hand
To help a fellow out.

For when the sun is shining
Nobody is as bold
As Tommy is;
That sword of his
Could hack down foes untold.
The very worst of pirates
Would surely be afraid
And shake with awe
If once they saw
That keen and gleaming blade.

But when the shadows gather
And, through the velvet gloom,
A furry mouse
Creeps in the house
And scampers 'round the room,
He hides beneath the covers,
Once more he says his prayers,
And, oh! he's glad
His great big dad
Is only just downstairs.

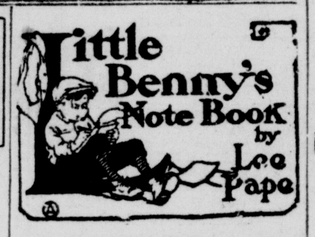
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



Sunday afternoon it was raining cats an dogs mixed with hail, and the wind was blowing fearse, sounding even colder than what it really was, and pop was looking at diffrent parts of the Sunday paper, saying, Just look at these travel ads, warmer climes, sunny skies, yee gods it's enough to make your mouth water and your sole dissatisfied. Listen to this, Why not spend 2 unforgetable weeks in glorious sun drenched Bermuda, where the sparkling ocean beckons you to a warm plunge and the broad coral beech invites you to a long languorous sun bath? Why not? Why not indeed? Meerly for the lack of time and money, that's why not, pop said.

O well, there are millions of other people in the same shoes, ma said, and pop said, Here's another one to brake your hart and make you weep scalding tears of futility.

And he read it out loud, being, A few balmy luxurious days on the carefree decks and in the resplendent sun bathed Roman pools of either the giant Luxuoso or her sister giantess Luxuana, and then, ah then, 10 glorious frost free days basking in the semmy tropical Bahamas. Yee gods this is more than I can stand, with a cold coming on and the paper announcing colder but not fairer, pop said.

A well, never mind, I've just thawt of a good solution, or at least a compromise, ma said. Well, that's slitely more sensible, hee hee, ma said.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

SEDATE REVOLUTIONISTS

We Americans are sedate revolutionists!

We undergo the most radical readjustments in our life and enterprise without riot or blood-letting. We bear a thousand marks of rawness in our national culture, but this is a sign of rare maturity of temper. Under the surface of American life there is a genuine realism that needs but a challenge to evoke it.

A glance backward at 1933 is all that is needed to prove this. I wonder what the readers of these articles would have thought of my sanity if, in the late summer of 1932, I had prophesied that, during the year 1933, the following would take place:

That all the banks in the United States would be closed by national order.

That most of them would be reopened through federal assistance before the year was out.

That the national government would disavow its ontracts to pay in gold or its equivalent.

That the President would be invested with virtually dictatorial power over the life and fortune of the individuals and institutions of the nation.

That the national government would virtually dictate the wage scales of the country.

That a sweeping policy of price-fixing would loom as a definite possibility.

That the national government would pour millions multiplied into the pockets of the farmers for not producing foodstuffs and industrial raw materials.

That the national government would take the first steps in a program of spending on public works, subsidies and the like, which would shoot the public debt beyond the debt that the World War piled up.

That prohibition would be wiped out.

That the anti-trust laws would be more or less set aside.

That Soviet Russia would be recognized.

That a system strikingly like the corporative state of Mussolini would become a living possibility, with the national government serving as the not-so-silent partner in virtually every important industry in the country.

Suppose I had predicted all this in the late summer of 1932 as about to happen within the brief space of a year! I can see the flood of protesting letters that would have reached my desk. And yet all this is now history.

Even if I disagreed with seventy-five per cent of all this, it would nevertheless make me very happy. For a people that can digest all this in a year, without batting an eye, is a people that will sooner or later do a good job of adjusting the old tools of government to the new tasks of government.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

SPOILED CHILDREN

When little children discover that they hold one's happiness in their infant hands they take great delight in exercising their power. Inexperienced and ignorant of the implications of their relationship to mothers and grandmothers and other fond relatives they strike right and left and never heed the pain they cause.. They don't feel it for they have not reached the stage of reflective thought. The adult has and suffers in consequence.

Bunnie was the only child in a big family of adults. Aunts and uncles and grandparents and father and mother united in adoring him. He was handsome, bewitching and remarkably intelligent. Above all others he loved his mother and upon her fell the brunt of the spoiling he experienced at the hands of his relatives.

Coming home after a trip to the circus with auntie, Bunnie met the welcoming committee of father and mother and grandpa with scowls. Strutting and swaggering he sent a shaft in his mother's direction. "You needn't ask me what I saw. I'm not going to tell you. I don't like you."

Mother was deeply hurt. "Tut, tut," said grandpa. "What's this? A strange little boy got in here by mistake. Grandpa wants his own Bunny."

"Here I am, grandpa," and instantly Bunnie was all smiles. But he clambered down almost immediately from the grandfatherly arms and began peering about for his mother. Spying her in another room he ran to her and assuming the pose of "Napoleon" he announced, "I won't show you what Aunt Mary bought me. And I won't teli you who took me in to see the monkeys, either. I'll tell everybody but I won't tell you, 'cause I don't like you."

His astonished mother could do nothing but weep. "I don't care if you do cry. I don't like you and I'm not going to give you a kiss either." This in spite of the fact that he had not been asked for a kiss. Nor for any expression of confidence. His mother pleaded with him in vain. He was not going to let her think he wanted any attention from her but that was really what he wanted most of all. Pleading with him would not correct his attitude. Quite the opposite.

The spoiled child gets an exaggerated notion of his importance to the people about him. As soon as he feels important he wants to prove his power. He tries to show the family they are right in considering him wise and important and powerful. But he does not know how. He goes about it wrong end first.

When a child struts like this the best thing to do is to turn a cold shoulder toward him. Yawn at his impassioned statements of like and dislike. Don't hear his pronouncements. "Quite all right if you feel that way, I'm sure. I am going out for a visit to the farm. It's delightful out there today. Good-bye," will go farther toward bringing the spoiled child to a proper sense of his place in the family than all the scolding and pleading and tears combined.

Don't overdo affection and pride and thec hild won't get this way. But if he has arrived at this unpleasant stage, try sending him to Coventry. The more intelligent he is the sooner he sees the point.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)
